THE MICHIGAN-CALIFORNIA CLUB DINNER

To appreciate and understand the beauty of art one must recognize the symbol and be able to read into the thoughts of the artist. The painting of a Corot is only the blending of colors upon the canvas, the beauty is the thought and understanding of the master, who has sunk his personality into and blended his understanding with the spirit of nature. Whether in the art of sculpture, painting or that of decoration, there must be the underlying idea that convey to the mind of others the mind of the artist.

At the dinner given by the University of Michigan and University of California Clubs to Dr. and Mrs. Armin Otto Leuschner Monday evening, Mrs. A. J. Campbell and her committee, Mrs. A. Lindsay, Mrs. E. W. Sutton, Mrs. B. C. Peters, symbolized in the decorations, the idea of higher education.

True to the thoughts of nature, which arouses the desire to investigate and understand the great phenomena of this world and which is the cause of educational institutions, Mrs. A. J. Campbell had woven these ideas into her scheme of decoration. No longer was the main of the Country Club a building of wood but a bit of nature. There in the shade of the trees, the golden lilies, bloomed and nodded and whispered their words of welcome to the honored guests, Dr. and Mrs. Leuschner. Baskets of gold were suspended from the ceiling filled with ferns and sweet-scented vines. But, as in all true settings, this nature glimpses led to the cause of the thought that was to be set as the jewel of this occasion. The thoughts and loyalty of mankind for their Alma Mater.

In the dining room the colors of maize and blue of Michigan intertwined with the blue and gold of California, symbolizing and blending the great thoughts of both colleges. As the dinner progressed, Dr. Leuschner's speech how indicated the younger University of California is to the University of Michigan.

Truly, it is a blending of the colors and mingling with them were the flowers of the golden showers, golden showers of thought, scattering seed that has not fallen on rocky soil, but today are reproducing in other lands the ideals of higher education.

Above the U-shaped table, where sat the sons and daughters of education, was traced a mortar board in the intermingling colored guaze and the golden tassel. Those who sat beneath it had the right to that symbol, and to the place cards designed by Mrs. A. J. Campbell, a mortar board upon which was written their names, symbols of attaining the degrees conferred by their college. In the suspended symbol was the thought that knowledge is ever suspended above that which we have already attained; even if we gain the mountain peaks, the guests of the evening, Dr. and Mrs. Leuschner, have gained heights, but still see heights on and on and are ever striving to know and understand; knowledge represented by the suspended, suggestion of the mortar board.

Golden lilies, coreopsis and golden shower symbolized the golden thoughts of education, and in the speeches of the evening the golden words, expressions of loyalty for this beautiful island land and loyalty for the university of "maize and blue," and for that of California's "blue and gold."

Miss Marguerite Ashford's speech glowed with that most golden quality for which Hawaii is noted. The quality of hospitality — that which makes the stranger a friend.

Long will be remembered Dr. Leuschner's response to the greetings and welcome to Hawaii, and as he by his magical power guided the audience away from this earth home up into the realms of planets, they recognized how far he has traveled and how high hangs the mortar board of attained knowledge.

THE PUNAHOU PAGEANT.
The Punahou Pageant, given last Wednesday in commemoration of its seventy-fifth anniversary, was a truly remarkable affair from its first episode until its last. The part of the pageant perhaps most impressive to the strangers here was the Hawaiian, everyone declaring it the best of its kind ever given here. Much credit for this part of the program goes to Mrs. Mary Montano, Mrs. A. P. Taylor, Mrs. Neenae Webb and Mr. L. Y. Corretthers. The detail of the pageant required weeks of deep study and careful thought.

Following is an article written by Miss Agnes Buchanan, who ably took the part of Liliha and who looked up all the interesting detail in connection with the episode.

Society turned out en masse for this event, and, what is rare, remained until the close, quite a remarkable thing, as it was after 7 when the review of the classes of the years was staged.

I. Kane (David Kalauakalani) was the creator of all waters.

two men carrying the two large state kahilis and five women the smaller kahilis.

Liliha (Aby Buchanan) was attired in a costume considered historically correct. Her toga was an ancient piece of white tapa with a brown figure along the border; her pa'u was of brown and pink tapa. She wore a real lei hulu on her head and around her neck, also a real lei palaoa. On her ears she wore very old kukul nut earrings.

Boki (Rev. Akalko Akana) appeared in a costume which he was affecting at that time, a result of having been to London, but in addition, this being a ceremony, he wore the feather helmet and aha ula of a high chieftain of the Hawaiian regime.

Liliha's attendants were dressed in the old shades of blue that prevailed in that day, with their brown and yellow tapa pa'u. It was noticeable in this court that the attendants all wore the real feather lei hulu.

Liliha was attended by her three kahili bearers, Miss Hookanu, Miss Apa and little Anna Maertens. Little Miss Maertens wore a brown mahuna tapa for her toga and a pink tapa for her pa'u, and around her neck and head she wore the real lei pua. Her whole costume belonged to her great grandmother, Tahinu.

The old chief, who stood by Liliha, was represented by Judge Archie Mahaulu, who wore just a malo and feather cape. He was wonderful as he showed his displeasure at Boki giving Liliha's lands away and his ole to Liliha as she sat on the ground. Kapunahou was paid quite a compliment in this scene of Liliha by having the blue and yellow costumes.

PRETTY WEDDING ON MAUI.

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)
WAILUKU, June 23.—One of the prettiest church weddings that ever occurred on Maui was that of Miss Alice Thayer Walker to Mr. Robert Edwin Hughes, which occurred at the Fair Union church on last Monday evening. Incidentally it is probably the last marriage that will ever be performed in that edifice, as the old building is to be razed next week to make room for a beautiful new memorial structure. Following the ceremony at the church a short reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Walker of Paia, and later the happy young couple broke away from the shower of congratulations, well-wishes and rice, and were driven to Lahaina, where they boarded the boat for Honolulu, there to take steamer for a several months' trip on the coast.

Promptly at 7:30 o'clock, to the strains of a wedding march played by Mrs. Millie B. Hair, an old friend of the family, the bride entered the church on the arm of her father, where she was met at the altar by the bridegroom, who was accompanied by Mr. Kenneth Smith as best man. Here beneath a rich floral canopy of white and green, supported by a double arch of daisies, lilies and roses that arose above the chancel and altar, a most impressive ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. Craig Bowditch, assisted by the Rev. B. B. Dodge. The bride was given away by her father.

The youthful bride was charmingly glisten in a white chiffon gown, and she wore a wedding veil, held by a shimmering silver band, that had been worn by her great-grandmother 32 years ago. She carried a large bouquet of white flowers tied with ribbons of same color.

Miss Olive Lindsay, the maid of honor, was charming in a pink crepe de chine and pink chiffon gown. She carried a sheaf of pink gladioli.

The bridesmaids were Miss Annie Walker, sister of the bride, and Miss Dorothy Lindsay. They were dainty in white organdie, and carried white roses.

The flower girls were Margaret Siskett and Gladys Venhuizen, who wore white and pink and white flowers of roses which they strewed in the aisles before the wedding party.

The profusion of floral decorations at the church were done by Mrs. James Fantom, Mrs. John Venhuizen and Miss Alexa von Teopsky.

The ushers were Mr. Seabury Short and Mr. Ward Walker.

Mrs. Charles Bryant Cooper and her two sons, Bryant and Jack, leave shortly for Maui, where they will spend the month of July. They will occupy the Harold Castle place and will "do" all of the interesting places on the island.

On Thursday afternoon, Miss Palmyra Reis, president of the graduating class of the Territorial Normal school, entertained the teachers of the faculty and the students who graduated. The affair was held at the Reis home on Magazine street.

Mrs. Robert Lishman and Mrs. Isabelle Creighton leave on Wednesday's steamer for the summer. Mrs. Lishman to visit her daughter, Mrs. George Ross of Piedmont, and Mrs. Creighton to visit her daughter, Mrs. B. D. Conrad (nee Marguerite Creighton). When Mrs. Creighton comes home in the fall Mrs. Conrad will accompany her for a long visit.

Mrs. Alexander G. Hawes, who posed as "Carmencita" in the Living Pictures of the June Fantasy.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Russel, to the regretful surprise of their friends, have received orders to proceed to the border. They will leave for San Antonio, Texas, either on Wednesday of next week or on the July 5 transport. During their short stay in Honolulu they have won many friends. They leave here, as most service people do, with keen regret and the hope that they will be sent here again in the not-too-distant future.

In sport hats of the finer type a tailored style of trimming, consisting of ribbon folds flatly laid against the hat and flat star-shaped bows, is generally the exact color and shade of the hat. In some cases the crown is swathed with wide wrinkled bands of two-faced satin ribbon, softly rather than strongly contrasting in color, with keen regret and the hope that they will be sent here again in the not-too-distant future.
