BATTALION AIM OF C. A. BRANCH NATIONAL GUARD

Two additional companies of the Coast Artillery, National Guard of Hawaii, are being formed and National Guard authorities hope to have them completed by Friday.

At the present time the new 2nd Coast Artillery Company in process of formation at Kaimuki has half the men necessary enrolled and excellent progress is also reported by the Waikiki company, the third being organized by 1st Lieut. J. L. Caldwell. A meeting of this company is called for Wednesday evening at the home of D. Kalaokalani.

If the two additional companies can be mustered in there will be three Coast Artillery companies in the National Guard, and it is the hope of National Guard authorities to form a fourth company in the near future.

If this can be done, the Coast Artillery companies will become a battalion, entitled to battalion equipment and a brass band of 25 men.

GOOD ATTENDANCE IS HAD AT GUARD BALL; ANOTHER THIS WEEK

Nearly a hundred couples attended the masked ball given Saturday night in the armory for the benefit of the enlisted men's club room of the National Guard.

Another of the dances will be given Saturday evening. According to National Guard authorities they give soldiers and the general public an opportunity for wholesome amusement and recreation under proper auspices and are proving to be one of the best means of entertaining the enlisted men of Oahu.

N. G. OFFICERS TO VISIT LIHUE THE 4TH

Prominent officers of the National Guard of Hawaii are planning to attend the Lihue, Kauai, Fourth of July celebration. Brig-gen. Samuel I. Johnson, N. G. H.; Col. Charles S. Lincoln, and Capt. E. L. Noggle, commanding officer of Field Company A, Signal Corps, are among those planning to go. Capt. Noggle will take photographs of the events at Lihue.

PAY OFFICE IS NOW IN ITS NEW LOCATION

Today has been moving day for the naval pay office in this city. The office, in charge of Paymaster W. T. Gray, U. S. N., moved to the Pearl Harbor naval station this morning, and

K BOATS' CHIEF REASSUMES HIS COMMAND TODAY

Having recovered from an attack of erysipelas which made him see crutches for two weeks, Lieut.-comdr. Thomas C. Hart, commanding the third submarine division, the K boats, was able to resume his command today, leaving for his flagship, the U. S. S. Alert, this morning.

The commander has been around for the last few days, but today was the first he was able to make the trip to Pearl Harbor, where the submarines are stationed. He is able to walk now without the assistance of crutches.

Lieut.-comdr. Hart has kept in touch with the division's activities in the last two weeks by using the long-distance telephone. His men are much pleased at his return.

ONE CASE ENDED, ANOTHER CHARGE QUICKLY LODGED

When Kim's trial for selling liquor without a license was finished at noon today, another charge which had developed in connection with the first was presented by Prosecuting Attorney Chillingworth, subornation of perjury, that is, inducing someone else to commit perjury. Verdict on the first charge will be announced by Judge Monsarrat Wednesday and a hearing on the second, to which Kim's attorney, William J. Sheldon, entered for him a plea of not guilty, will be heard Thursday.

Kim's defense in the liquor case is that he served laborers in his mess camp up Upper Nuuanu Valley with liquor but charged them pro rata for it and did not sell it to outsiders. He says he was merely furnishing the men with their own liquor.

The prosecution endeavored to show, however, that even if this were the case that Kim was making considerable money on the venture.

Judge Monsarrat said he had never heard a similar case and wished to take the matter under advisement.

CHINA'S STRONG MAN MOURNED IN CEREMONY HERE

leaders of the Chinese community. The Hawaiian Band, stationed under a marquee on the lawn, played slow music for various features of the ceremonial.

Consul Tsz-Ang Woohuan, the Chinese Republic's representative in Hawaii, headed the consular staff, which stood on the veranda and received the guests, who then registered in a special book and were escorted into the two main rooms, where seats had been provided.

Then, as the Hawaiian Band sounded slow music, the consul and his staff entered the rooms, taking their position in front of the portrait of Yuan. This portrait was draped in somber black and purple, and a photograph showed the president in uniform and is a fine picture of this "strong man of China." On the wall beside the portrait hung long white cloth funeral banners, inscribed in Chinese characters.

Just beneath the portrait stood a black-draped table, upon which were two tall glass candlesticks, one on each side of the portrait, and dishes of fruit, together with wine.

Offerings Made.

Consul Woohuan, with his staff at his right and left, stood directly in front of the portrait. He was in white uniform, with gold lace. The tall candles were lighted and then a match was touched to a small bronze incense burner. As the incense was wafted into the air, the consul took a glass of wine, bent until it nearly touched his forehead, and offered it in veneration of the emperor. This was repeated twice, the third glassful being left on the table. Consul Woohuan then offered flowers and fruits in the same manner, bowing as each was presented.

Eulogies to Late President.

During this time the guests were seated, and the same order was observed while Consul Woohuan read first in Chinese and then in English a brief but eloquently worded eulogy of the dead president. The English translation is as follows:

"The eulogy which I have just read before the altar is written in conformity with the Chinese usage, in the style of poetry. The wording being figurative and flowery, it is impossible to render it literally into English. However, the general meaning consists in the following points, leaving off the commencing and closing phrases relative to the sacrificial details:

"That His late Excellency Yuan belongs to a distinguished noble family in the center of China proper; that he was born with many conspicuous qualifications to respond to the requirements of this generation—a man of great ability, intelligence, courage, patience and patriotism. Of the great services he has rendered to his country during his life time the most conspicuous are as follows:

"It was he who created the modern army of China and even up to the present most of the commanders and generals belong to his pact; it was he who checked the progress of the Boxer movement in 1900, when he was governor of Shantung and thus saved the Southern provinces from participating in the sufferance of that calamity; and it was he who crowned the success of the Republic of China with the recognition of the friendly powers. His love of his country, to equal China to the world powers in economic developments, in foreign relations and in many other lines for the welfare of the people of his country, in spite of risks, at last exhausted his vitality."

Other eulogies in Chinese were read by Chinese guests. All the eulogies were intoned in a low key as impressive as a chant.

Guests Honor Departed.

Then the Hawaiian band again sounded in dirge-like musical phrases. The consul and his staff bowed three times, facing the portrait of their late president. During the bowing ceremony the guests stood, resuming their seats for a few brief moments following, while the Chinese national anthem was played. This concluded the ceremony.

Consul Woohuan's eulogy to the late president drew from the guests words of appreciation. It was succinct and appropriate.

The list of invited guests, most of whom were present, was as follows:

HONOR PAID MEMBERS OF LOCAL SALVATION ARMY

Farewell services were held in Central Union church last night for Col. Blanche E. Cox and Adjutant Duncan of the local Salvation Army, who will leave for the mainland in the Matsunia next Wednesday after a long period of successful service in Hawaii. Following an introduction of the speakers by Rev. A. A. Ebersole, who pointed out that they have done splendid work in the islands, Colonel Cox preached an inspiring sermon on "Love," as described in Corinthians XIII. At the close of the services the members of the congregation met and personally thanked and gave Colonel Cox and Adjutant Duncan their aloha.

BEAUTY A GIFT WOMEN SHOULD STRIVE FOR

Beauty is the one supreme gift for which every woman should strive. Not mere physical beauty (that is secondary), but a combination of the external and spiritual beauty combined.

No woman can be beautiful, in the finer sense of the word, unless she is the possessor of a pure mind and a noble character. Her features may be perfectly moulded, but without these qualities there will be something which will bar her from being a real beauty. On the other hand, a woman with irregular features, who does possess these qualities, may impress the world as a real beauty.

Vanity, ill temper, selfishness, pettiness, hateful thoughts, an impure mind, are beauty's bitterest enemies. Nature may have been most generous in the chiselling of the features and in the moulding of the body. But if
