OUR BATTLESHIP HAWAII.

The battleship Hawaii!
The idea is not an especially new one. It has been previously before the public.

But we do not recall that the project has ever been presented to the men who name the ships by such a fair pleader as Princess Abigail.

Of course we wish to have the next battleship of the new navy named the "Hawaii." Of course we have a right to this distinction. This is one of the matters on which the people of this island and all the other islands can be absolutely unanimous.

If there is anything to be done that will promote a speedy acceptance of the proposal, the men and the women of Hawaii should respond immediately. We are sure they will respond.

Secretary Daniels' reply is one of the regulation non-committal type. But the fact remains that constant repetition, constant reminders of what Hawaii wants and what Hawaii should be allowed to have, will eventually land the prize.

The battleship "Hawaii" is bound to win, for the strongest argument in its favor is "Why should not a battleship be named Hawaii?"

People who oppose it are on the defensive. The initiative, the drive and the forceful pleaders are all on our side.

Let's have the battleship "Hawaii."

Do you ever doubt that this town is bigger, growing bigger every day? Let some of the recent kamaainas think not very far back when the change of commandants at the naval station was a town event. It did not stop business but it was the feature of the day. Now it causes hardly a ripple. Not because Honolulu thinks any less of the commandant of the Naval Station, but rather on account of the people having so many other things to do. The man who tries to keep this town in its old fashioned state and complains because it does not stay, is asleep at the switch.

It isn't any of the Star-Bulletin's pigeon, but nevertheless a fact that every time National Committeeman John Wilson declares that Governor Pinkham is not a Democrat, it strengthens the governor's position with the authorities in Washington. It demonstrates that at least some of the politicians with which the governor has to deal are of the pale grey and variety. And none are so quick to see it as the trained politicians of the mainland who endeavor to carry themselves so as to gain support and keep in line with the administration.

Curious isn't it that recent history should repeat the record of officials going into office on practically a peace program becoming the leading factor in setting a new mark for preparations against war. It was during Grover Cleveland's administration that the great white squadron was started, and first steps taken toward getting out of the wooden fishing boat class. But Secretary Whitney was a far cry from Secretary Daniels. Whitney initiated the program. Daniels has done it because the president requires it as a part of the administration policy.

Sir Douglas Haig, commander in chief of the British armies in France, in an interview with the Associated Press correspondent said, "England will not achieve her full strength on land, however, until next summer." This remark at the end of a statement showing that the Allies now have the whip hand, does not lend much strength to the argument of the man who expects the war to end this fall unless he assumes that the Allies can win without Britain putting her full force in the field.

In all kinds of weather and at all times of the year, Hawaii holds the palm for climate that just suits discriminating humanity.

This is a true story—the story of a Honolulu who has faith in his city.

A rumor reached the Star-Bulletin that a certain businessman who has both downtown business property and outside residence property, as well as a home on the beach, was planning to sell his beach residence to a hotel syndicate. He was asked regarding the rumor.

"Not going to sell and my property is not for sale at all," he said laconically, and then proceeded: "I bought such-and-such a corner (downtown) for certain reasons and have held on to it. I'm going to hold on to it. I bought such-and-such a tract (a few miles from the business center) for certain reason and I'm going to hold on to that. I bought my place at the beach for certain reasons and I'm going to hold on to that. None of them is for sale. It's no use to talk price."

He continued:

"I often think that Honolulu haven't enough faith in the city's future. I have. That's why I'm holding on in spite of offers made to tempt me to sell at a fine price—at a big profit. I believe Honolulu is going to grow a whole lot more. I believe in investing my money here."

This policy, he says, has made him prosperous. He intends to stick to it.

Some people think Hawaii should stop advertising because it is getting so much free boosting. Their thinker is on the wrong tack. This is the time when the organized advertising directed from Hawaii should take every possible advantage of the opportunity to drive home facts when the public is in a receptive mood. The field is in perfect condition. Now go ahead and make the most of it with definite, controlled and intelligent presentation of climatic and scenic truths.

It is to be regretted that Arfor Crane, after telling the story of going to hell in Kilanea did not also report that he was able to cool off "on the beach at Waikiki." He should be reminded that the hell represented on Hawaii permits of a come back club which most everyone joins.

The American people have always been ready to get behind a great navy. Having supported luxurious appropriations, they now look to the men in charge of spending the money, to make the new navy relatively great.

By all means let the Thirty-Second Infantry be the Hawaii regiment of the regular army. Where could the coat of arms of Hawaii be loaned for a better cause or firmer collection of fighting men.

Would it do Honolulu any harm to hold a "clean-up day" before the tourist season starts? Could it hurt the back yards to have their face washed or the front yards to be treated to a hair cut and shave.

The meeting of the Chamber of Commerce this afternoon will give us a demonstration of how businessmen do it. Also to what extent businessmen of this city are interested in the city's development.

Just about a month to the Civic Convention and County Fair. Are the businessmen of Honolulu figuring to attend in person or send one of the boys on this important mission?

Possibly the British government excluded our old friend S. S. McClure on suspicion of intending to start a 10-cent magazine over there.—New York World.

If you find these warm days oppressive, remember that by arithmetical and meteorological calculation it is more than twice as bad in Mexico, again illustrating Gen. Sherman's well-known remark about war.

NEW AUTOMOBILE AND MOTORCYCLE DIRECTORY OUT

Road Maps, Directory and Motor Hints Make It Best Publication of Kind

The Honolulu Star-Bulletin has just issued the Hawaiian Islands official automobile and motorcycle directory. This book covers the islands of Oahu, Hawaii, Maui and Kauai. In addition to publishing a complete list of registered automobiles and motorcycles, showing name of owner, machine and correct number, the directory contains much other valuable information.

One of the big features of the directory is the road maps of the four islands. Roads are outlined and stars are placed where the motorist may purchase gasoline. These maps are certain to be a big help to all automobile owners of Hawaii. The maps were all compiled, drawn and engraved by the Honolulu Star-Bulletin art department.

Many new points that have been incorporated into the directory this year are the "Helpful Hints to Autoists." These include starting the car, driving hints, special pointers, washing the car, lubrication rules, locating trouble, removing carbon from cylinders, care of tires, spark plugs, and getting longer mileage. Altogether there are seven pages of information on automobiles in addition to this. In every way the new directory surpasses anything else of the kind ever published in Hawaii.

LITTLE INTERVIEWS

—DR. J. S. B. PRATT: There isn't much news around the board of health these days. Everything is going along smoothly.

—CHARLES R. FORBES, superintendent of public works: I caught a little cold coming over from the mainland, but otherwise my vacation, while strenuous, did me a lot of good.

—A. T. LONGLEY, superintendent territorial marketing division: There are some people in Honolulu who never miss seeing a ship off. It seems to be a part of their lives and they always manage some way to get to the dock when one of the larger boats is leaving for the states. And they enjoy it thoroughly, too. I used to think it very pretty, but now, although I am only a step from the Matson dock, I seldom see a boat leave.

—ARTHUR McLELLIE, chief of detectives: With murders, robberies, chasing escaped reform school boys and the like, I'm getting so little sleep now that I can fall into a snore standing up or sitting in the car. Just about the time I get nicely started, Johnnie Keitt pokes me in the ribs and then it's all off.

—C. J. McCARTHY, territorial treasurer and harbor commissioner: I was glad to see in the Star-Bulletin that the government has appropriated $250,000 for the Kahului west breakwater. Its construction will prevent shoaling, which now clogs up the Claudine wharf. The harbor board is now having Kahului harbor dredged in the vicinity of this wharf, but dredging will not stop the shoaling. Only the west breakwater can do that. The east breakwater has already been built.

PROMOTIONISTS SAY HAWAII IS SUMMER RESORT

Wall and Halton Believe That in Time Islands Will Be Summer Playground

"If anybody ever dares to tell me Hawaii is not a wonderfully cool and ideal place in the summer time he certainly will have to make his argument good," said A. F. Wall, member of the Hawaii Promotion Committee, who returned from the mainland on the Matsonia.

According to Wall the eastern people are suffering with the heat at present, while here in Hawaii the weather is comparatively cool. Fred J. Halton also writes that the climate is exceptionally adapted for tourist travel in the summer months, and feels that the mainland people will soon realize that Hawaii is a summer resort as well as a winter watering place.

According to his statements California has spent millions of dollars to convince easterners that California is a summer playground as well as a winter one, and suggests that a lecturer be sent to the mainland to visit the large cities, and tell of what Hawaii has to offer the tourist during the summer season.
