"RADIUM QUEEN" VISITS ISLANDS BRINGING CURE

Woman Who Has Spent Fortune to Secure Marvelous Substance, in Honolulu

Known to the newspapers of the eastern coast as the "Radium Queen" or the "Radium Lady," Mrs. Jennie Agan of New York City who is now visiting in Honolulu has probably had more experience with the elusive ore or substance or whatever it is than any other woman who does not delve into study of the mineral kingdom as a business.

Mrs. Agan is the mother of Madame Mariska Aldrich and is the widow of the late Dr. David Agan, well known New York physician and surgeon of a few years ago who devoted much of his time in the later years of his life to the study of radium healing.

"My husband was really a pioneer in investigations of this sort," said Mrs. Agan to a representative of the Star-Bulletin, and it was through him that I came first to put faith in it."

Following the death of her husband Mrs. Agan went to Europe in poor health following worries. While in Austria she suffered a nervous collapse and was induced by friends to go to the government sanitarium at Jochimsthal where radium treatment was being given. Her cure after treatment by the government doctors led her still further into an investigation of the powerful substance.

Convinced of Healing Powers. "I have learned the advantages of radium as a healing medium," she said, "now I shall turn my means over to getting it to all others I can who are in need of treatment."

With this end in view this great-hearted woman secured the radium in a form suitable for treating others—the radium pad the secret of which is known only to the government physicians of Austria.

Austria has long led the world in experimentation with the wonderful element, and these physicians, so Mrs. Agan says, alone know the secret of putting it into pure or nearly pure state. In this state it is said to be harmless when used in combating disease. That is it may be used without injurious results such as burning.

Mrs. Agan will not say how much she paid for the several radium pads which she carries with her, but mainland papers guess the price at something not much less than $1,000,000.

"People would think me very foolish should I say just what I have spent in the purchase," she says, "so you see it is much better for me to remain quiet on that detail."

She has loaned her pads to many prominent physicians in the states, and has with her letters testifying to the good results of the trial treatments made with them. She extends this offer—free—to Honolulu physicians.

The pads are simple looking enough—small squares of chamois skin being used to cover the element within. They are applied to the body directly over the diseased or aching portion and allowed to remain from a few minutes to an hour or so, the result being, it is claimed, to cause the pain to cease after a short time.

"They seem to be of especial value in the treatment of nervous diseases such as sciatica, neuralgia, or rheumatism," says Mrs. Agan, and adds laughingly, "No one needs to die in Honolulu while I am here."

Shows Radium Pad. As a matter of curiosity she carries besides the radium pads, a radium tube, which is a metal chamber shaped something like the old fashioned magnifying glass and containing a minute particle of radium ore—so small that it is invisible to the naked eye. Held to the eye when in the dark, the tube displays a wonderful sky filled with miniature meteors and shooting stars, darting here and there without ceasing.

The pads bear the imperial seal of the Austrian government. Austria has contracted with Germany for its entire supply of purified radium for the next 10 years, though the secret of the refining process is still Austria's own and is likely never to be given up.

During her recent stay in New York, Mrs. Agan says, scientists of Columbia University borrowed the pads and carried on extensive experiments with them.

Mrs. Agan is with her daughter, Madame Aldrich, at the home of Mrs. Francis Gay, who arrived together with them last Monday on the Sierra.

RAILWAY RATES FALL STEADILY IN PAST DECADE

Percentages of Stocks Paying in 1915 is Smaller Than For Eleven Years

The percentage of railway stock on which dividends were declared was smaller in 1915 than in any other year since 1904 and the average rate of dividend declared was the lowest since 1905, says the Railway Age Gazette in an editorial in its current issue analyzing the statistics of the interstate commerce commission for the fiscal year ended on June 30, which have just been issued.

"While many persons are talking about the remarkably large current earnings of the railways," the editorial says, "these statistics have disclosed some striking facts illustrating the extent to which the railway business was depressed before the phenomenal increase of earnings began."

"The stock on which any dividends were paid was only 60.45 per cent of the total. In other words, no dividends at all were paid on 39.55 of it. The average rate paid on all stock was but 3.8 per cent."

"It will be noted that the largest amount of dividends ever declared was in 1911, and that the next largest amount was in 1914. The amount in 1914, however, was swelled by large extra dividends declared by the Union Pacific and the Central Pacific in connection with the dissolution by the courts of the Harriman system."

"The reduction in the amount of stock-paying dividends and the amount of dividends paid in 1915 was due to the decline in the net operating income of the railways in 1914 and 1915. This was due chiefly to increases in operating expenses and taxes. The increases in operating expenses were due chiefly to advances in the wages of labor, and it may be said truly that the entire reduction in net operating income and in dividends, and the fact that many roads became unable even to pay their interest, were attributable to increases in wages and taxes. It is especially important that the public should be reminded of these facts at this time."

The Gazette gives the following table to show the amount of stocks on which dividends were declared, the amount of the dividends and other figures for the years 1905 and 1915, inclusive:

| Year | Stock-paying dividends | Dividends paid | Per cent of stock paying dividends | Average rate on dividends, all stock |
|------|------------------------|----------------|------------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| 1915 | $5,219,846,662 | $228,477,938 | 60.45 | 3.80 |
| 1914 | 5,667,072,956 | 461,653,346 | 64.39 | 5.13 |

Includes extraordinary dividends of the Union Pacific and Central Pacific of more than $5,000,000 greater than the dividends of those companies for the preceding year.

POLICEMAN GIVES BLOOD TO SAVE FRIEND HE SHOT

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 28.—The accidental shooting of one policeman by another and the giving of 32 ounces of blood by the man who did the shooting to save the victim's life was reported from the northeast section of the city.

Patrolman Ernest Auty of the Front and Westmoreland streets station, while sending a revolver, accidentally shot Patrolman Klien of the same station, in the neck. Klien was removed to the Episcopal hospital in a critical condition and word was sent out that an operation for blood transfusion would be necessary to save the man's life.

Auty at once came forward and offered his blood to save the life of his friend and brother patrolman. For an hour he lay beside Klien at the hospital, while 32 ounces of his blood were sent into the veins of the stricken man. Auty remained at the hospital for a few hours and was then discharged.

Klien's condition was reported at a late hour last night to be critical. The accident occurred shortly after roll call, while the men were assembled at the station prior to dispersing to their several beats. Auty was fingering a revolver, which he had recently cleaned and which was supposed to be empty. Klien joined him, took the revolver and examined it. He passed it back to Auty, who was in the act of putting it in his pocket when it was discharged.

Klien staggered and fell. The 32-caliber bullet had passed entirely through his neck.

Traffic was held up on trolley cars and railroad at Mount Vernon, Ill., when a swarm of bees alighted on the switch stand.

Preferred Method For Execution of Turtle is Sought

Robert W. ("Bob") Shingle has not exactly a white elephant on his hands, but a turtle. He wants it to be soup. But he does not know how to kill it. All day Sunday he was stopping old and wise-looking Hawaiians to ask them how to kill a turtle. Some said to cut the head off. Others thought it best to gently insert a knife into its anatomy at this point or that point. Shingle got twisted. He isn't sure which is the wisest of all the wise old men. So he is still worrying over how to kill the turtle, and his friends—who know about it—are still hungering for turtle soup.

Mayor Lane caught the turtle Sunday morning at "Wally" Davis' place at Wokapu. As soon as he brought it in it was turned over on its back on the grass where Shingle's machine would drive up. The latter arrived with Prince Kuhio and three machine loads of friends and the first thing that met their eyes was the turtle. "Turtle soup," he exclaimed, and tried to induce the cook he had brought with him to make it for dinner, but without success.

At least 50 people were the guests of Davis between Saturday night and this morning. Several different parties drove up during the week-end, pitched their tents and made themselves at home. Davis is a genial host and saw to it that there was entertainment for all.

Saturday night there was torch fishing. Eels, clubbed over the back with an iron bar; kuma, reserved for the table of the chiefs in the old days; squid, lobsters and half dozen other varieties of fish filled the bags of the party when it returned.

Sunday morning everyone went to visit the fish gods, two pieces of white polished stone, and to bathe. More fish were caught, floral offerings were discovered scattered before the gods and the party returned to leaf the afternoon away.

On the way home most of the party stopped to hukilua, "pull the leaf." A monster haul was made and all went home with fish enough to last a week.

MUN LUN SCHOOL HOLDS BIG FIELD MEET ON FRIDAY

More Than 300 Students Take Part in Athletic Affair at Moanua Links

More than 300 students of the Mun Lun Chinese school journeyed out to the Moanua golf links for field meet followed by a picnic Friday from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. The whole student body started out on special cars and reached the golf links at 10 o'clock. After a short rest, games were played. Girls as well as boys took an active part in the different events of the day.

Among the games, one of the most interesting was a 50 yard dash between 14 girls and an old instructor of the school, K. Say. The race was so close at the finishing line that the judges in charge had a hard time picking out the winner. Finally they decided that Say should be awarded first place. The girls who ran against him stated that they would race Say again some other time.

The games were but half way through when lunch hour came. Lunch was served and every boy and girl had enough to eat. After an hour's rest when lunch was over, games were again continued. The races in the latter part of the day came out with lots of speed and pep. The last event of the day was a baseball game between the seniors and the juniors. It was a hard fought game all the way through. Both teams were heartily cheered by the school fans and fanettes. The score stood 3-3 until the last frame, when the juniors chased a run across the pan, through some daring base running making the score 4-3. HONOLULU OIL COMPANY'S STATUS IS UNCHANGED, SAYS LAND OFFICE

Matter of Issue of Patent is Still Being Investigated; Company's Case Strong

Lower quotations from the main land on Honolulu Consolidated Oil stock last week occasioned many surmises here as to the cause and not a few concluded that an early fastening of patents on the land emanating from Washington. A cable to a correspondent of the Star-Bulletin at the capital city brought the reply that there were no new developments evidenced; that both Secretary Daniels and his confidential secretary were absent, but that inquiry at the land office brought the reply that the situation was unchanged, patents were not issued, but the matter was still under consideration.

The report upon the hearing on leasing of oil lands before the committee on public lands of the senate gives some information on the status of Honolulu Oil Company lands, which may be quoted in part. Senator Works said that he wanted to ask about one particular entry, which, he had understood, was about ready for patent, the Honolulu Oil Company, and asked whether Secretary Daniels had investigated this and if so whether he had had anything to do with the holding up of the entry.

Daniels Explains "Holdup" Secretary Daniels replied that he had investigated it; that as soon as he had heard of the decision in that case he requested the secretary of the interior to give a hearing; that the secretary of the interior and attorney general had discussed the matter and the latter gave the legal opinion that the Honolulu case had not been diligently prosecuted. The commissioner of the land office rendered a decision to that effect and the department of justice and navy department felt that the decision opened up a new question as to whether the building of pipe lines and of roads to discontinue and separate claims constituted such discovery work as to entitle to a patent.

Admits Discoveries Made To the question as to whether oil discoveries had not already been made, Daniels replied: "In some places. Our position was that if you open the door and permit a man to get a patent because he has built a road and because he has made a pipe line; you open wide the door when it is left to him alone to determine how far the line should go."

Daniels admitted that the matter had been held up at his request and that he understood an opinion had been previously rendered by the commissioner of the general land office and the land had been clear listed.

The decision of the land office of the department of the interior clearing listing for patents the properties of the Honolulu Oil Company was then read into the records of the hearing.

DEMOCRATIC CHOICE FOR SENATOR LEADS

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless) DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 27.—Senator Culberson, the administration candidate for the senatorship nomination, is leading former Governor C. B. Colquitt two to one in the senatorial fight at the primaries, where, if he wins, he is practically sure of election.

Colquitt is running behind what his followers believed him capable of doing. Even in the so-called "German counties" he has dropped far behind Culberson.

Colquitt has made a special appeal to the German-American voters of Texas during his campaign, but it has apparently failed to produce results.

SIR GEORGE O'RORKE DEAD AT AUCKLAND

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless) WELLINGTON, N. Z., Aug. 27.—Sir George Maurice O'Rorke, eight times speaker of the New Zealand house of representatives and one of the most prominent leaders of this country, died at his home, Onehunga, near Auckland, yesterday afternoon. Sir George was born in 1830 and was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, where he was graduated in 1852. He entered politics after his return to New Zealand and held various offices under the colonial government. In 1880 he was knighted for the services he had rendered.

DENY SUBMARINE LOSS

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless) BERLIN, Germany, Aug. 27.—The German admiralty last night issued a flat denial to the story coming from London that a German submarine was lost in the great naval battle off Horn Reef and the coast of Jutland.

Thomas A. Brown leaped from the thirteenth story of the Fourth National Bank building at Atlanta, Ga.

It further developed that they were 2088 acres in the Honolulu Company's claims that were clear listed last September.

Referring to the Elk Hills country testimony from Willis N. Mills, it was added that attention to that country as an oil possibility was brought about "by the efforts of Capt. Matson and his associates in drilling the Honolulu well and bringing in a gusher. I think it was in 1908 or 1909, and know it was before the first of September withdrawal order."

"Capt. Matson went out in the broken Buena Vista hills, which rise to an elevation of from 500 to 700 feet above the floor of the valley. There were no roads and not a drop of water for six miles. They had to haul their machinery. They were over seven miles as the crow flies from the nearest discovery. He and his associates went out there and with conspicuous business courage that was never known before in the oil industry in California spent $2,100,000 in an endeavor to develop 31 oil wells at a cost of $100,000 each. They based their action in geological deduction alone, on nothing else. They spent a fortune. The wells cost $100,000 each, there were 31 of them. They lost 14 because they have not yet made discovery but they got 17 discoveries. Capt. Matson made every one of these discoveries with the possible exception of section 4 before the creation of naval petroleum reserve No. 2."

"When he had made those discoveries the navy stepped in and drew an imaginary line around them and said, 'These are our lands.' He had earned a vested right in those lands before the reserve was created. He was entitled to his reward for going 7 or 8 miles from the nearest well. He built 30 miles of macadam roads, telephone lines, gas and water lines to all locations."

Continuing and referring to the action of the navy department Mills said: "They have asked the secretary to hold the patents in abeyance which would automatically hold up the decision until the department of justice could investigate the facts and laws and present its views."

In answer to a question from Senator Clark he said that the law in relation to disposal of the government domain provides that the facts shall be presented to the interior department, the secretary shall pass on the sufficiency of the facts and law applicable to them and determine whether or not the title shall pass from the government. That such decision is final and that so far as the disposition of public domain goes no part of that disposition lies within the jurisdiction of the department of justice.

The attorney-general said before the committee that "the Honolulu case, I understand, is regarded by the interior department and by attorneys of my department as a case supported by a state of facts far more favorable to the claimants than in any of the other cases in suit."

So favorable was all of the testimony adduced before the senate committee that among those interested in California oil lands, and especially in the Honolulu Oil Company, the impression prevailed that the land office could hardly do otherwise than issue patents and such belief has been little if any shaken by the delay in issuing those patents which will perfect the title of the company to the lands upon which oil was developed under such tremendous difficulties.
