

BOSTON'S STEADINESS WINS FIRST OF BIG GAMES FROM BROOKLYNITES

and forced Ernest Shore out of the box late in the game.

Rube Marquard pitched fair ball for Brooklyn, and in fact had he received good support might have won his game, but infield errors by Ivor Olson and George Cutshaw, together with Stengel's wild heave, gave the Boston team a start, and despite the rally in the ninth the Dodgers could not catch the world's champions.

For the first few innings both Shore and Marquard were using their speed, and both fanned five opposing batters, but after the fourth inning the satters solved the delivery, and it was only by fast Boston fielding that Brooklyn did not score.

There were no heroes crowned in today's game, but two men who were filling the places of Boston stars were most in the limelight. Clarence Walker, who took the place of the great Tris Speaker, and Harold Janvrin, who substituted for Jack Barry, made good with the stick. Janvrin secured a double and a single and also sacrificed, while Walker added a triple and single to his record.

Strong in Field
Janvrin played a great fielding game until the ninth. He broke into two double plays, and inasmuch as his slip in the ninth did not prove costly to Boston, the fans will forget this part of the program. These two were trying to fill the places of two great stars and their work this afternoon was impressive.

Jake Daubert failed, but Harry Myers, Zack Wheat and Charley Stengel hit well, and "Chief" Meyers hit one over the outfield that would have been a homer to a faster man. Ivor Olson fell down in the test today, and his two errors upset the Brooklyn defense. Jimmy Johnston, the ex-Constler, broke into the game late, and proved to be an excellent pinch hitter. Hooper and Lewis hit.

Harry Hooper and "Duffy" Lewis played to world's series form, and both hit for doubles during the day. After hitting for three bases, Wheat was thrown out at the plate by a perfect throw by Hooper. Forrest Cady, who was back of the plate handling Shore's shoots, was given transportation to first by Rube Marquard on three occasions. Cady was passed purposely to get Shore.

Boston was leading by a score of 6 to 1 when Brooklyn came to bat in the last of the ninth inning. Even the Brooklyn rooters had given up hope when Daubert came to bat. The southpaw first-baseman waited and was given four balls. Charley Stengel hit a sharp single and Daubert reached second. Wheat came up and forced Daubert, and Stengel went to second.

Shore Unsteady
Shore was unsteady and hit Cutshaw and the bases were full when Mowrey came up. Mowrey hit a hard drive to Janvrin, who booted the ball, and both Stengel and Wheat crossed the plate as the Brooklyn rooters cheered. Ivor Olson singled and the bases were full once more. Meyers fouled out, Fred Merkle went to bat for Pfeffer, and the ex-Giant worked Shore for a pass, and Cutshaw scored. Shore was weakening, and Carrigan jerked the tall pitcher and sent Carl Mays into the box, with Chester Thomas behind the plate. Myers got a scratch hit and Mowrey tallied, making the score 6 to 5.

Ninety thousand eyes were focused on Jake Daubert as he marched up to the plate with two men out, and three men on the bases. The Boston yell was hushed. Over in the other stands the Brooklyn rooters urged Daubert to hit the ball. It was the tense minute of baseball—two men out and three men on bases. If Daubert hit, it perhaps meant a victory for Brooklyn.

Mays pulled at his belt and looked at the former National League leading hitter. Daubert had fanned twice, and Mays had been watching the duel between Shore and Daubert. A hit meant defeat, and the young pitcher put everything that he had on the ball, and Daubert swung. As the bat met the ball the stands were hushed, and then one mighty cheer went up from the stands as Hoblitzel gathered the ball in for the last out, and the first victory for Boston.

Rooters Wait Patiently

All night long a long line of rooters had gathered at the field, and thousands waited throughout the night, ready to secure their seats when the gates were open. Bonfires were lighted and messenger boys, laborers and dyed-in-the-wool fans played cards, talked baseball and made impromptu beds out of old boards. Many of them brought chairs with them and hundreds brought their lunches.

At 3 o'clock this morning a fan who had secured tickets passed by Braves' field and found 3,000 fans with lunches and cots with them. Some were sleeping while others gathered in little knots to talk about the game of the morrow. This was baseball, and showed the hold that the great American game has on the public. All these fans were in the stands today and Boston's victory paid them for the long hours of waiting.

[Note.—The box score today was compiled from the reports received, is as nearly perfect as could be obtained, and with the exception of assists is probably all correct. In one or two cases the assists were not obtained in the running story of the game.]

LAHAINA TAKES ON APPEARANCE OF NAVAL CENTER

(Special Star Bulletin Correspondence)

WAILUKU, Maui, Oct. 6.—With four submarines there and two ships of the United States navy acting as parent ships for the undersea craft, Lahaina has been an active place during the past week. The fleet, consisting of the K-3, K-4, K-7 and K-8, and the cruiser St. Louis and the tender Alert, with about 400 men, arrived in Lahaina early in the week and the submarine crews immediately began torpedo battle practice, much to the interest of the Lahaina people and others who have come from central Maui to watch the work of the sailors.

The St. Louis is acting as tender for the K-3 and the K-4 and the Alert for the K-7 and K-8. The target practice is held along the coast between Olowalu and Kanaapali. Three lifeboats, 150 feet apart, are trailed along behind the tenders and in the center of the lifeboats there is a large canvas target at which the torpedoes are directed after the submarines are submerged.

On Wednesday evening Maj. Young, acting commander of the 3rd Militia Regiment, made an official call on Commander Hart, who is in charge of the submarine flotilla and tenders. On next Tuesday night Mr. and Mrs. Young will entertain the 14 officers of the fleet at a dinner at their home. A week from tomorrow night a dance is to be given in the Lahaina armory in honor of the visiting officers to which the public will be generally invited.

John Kaukaku, the aged and well-known lighthouse keeper at the Diamond Head lighthouse, was found Friday morning in a helpless paralyzed condition by his assistant and was removed to his home in Wailiki Friday afternoon in the emergency hospital ambulance.

Frank Stevenson, emergency hospital assistant, says that to carry Kaukaku from the top of the lighthouse where he had probably lain for hours it was necessary to strap him to the stretcher and carry him almost perpendicularly down the circular stairs.

LIGHT VOTE CAST AT POLLS TODAY

2d Precinct, 4th District
Registration: 502.

Up to 10:15 o'clock this morning only 87 votes had been cast at the polls in the second precinct. This was unusually light considering the number of registered voters. The heaviest voting was at 10 o'clock, but a lull followed. Former Mayor Joseph J. Fern cast his vote in this precinct. Some trouble was experienced in the second by those in charge of the booth in setting straight a number of voters who did not know in what precincts they were to cast their votes. More than a dozen voters were put straight. The voting is progressing quietly, no disturbances or contests having been reported.

3d Precinct, 4th District
Registration: 462.

Up to 11 o'clock this morning 134 votes had been polled, the voting having been fairly heavy all morning. The heaviest voting of the morning was done between 8 and 8:30 o'clock. Those in charge of the booth report that the balloting is progressing quietly, and that there have been no contests or disturbances.

4th Precinct, 4th District
Registration: 509.

One of the biggest votes to be cast this morning was in the fourth of the fourth, which is largely a Republican precinct. At 11 o'clock 138 ballots had been cast. The heaviest voting of the morning was done between 9 and 9:30 o'clock, 86 votes having been cast up to the half hour. No contests were reported. There were no disturbances.

5th Precinct, 4th District
Registration: 454.

Voting was unusually active this morning. At 11 o'clock an even hundred votes had been slipped into the big box, a gain of 29 over the preceding hour. However, the voting was rather slow considering the number of registered voters, the heaviest polling of the morning having been done between 8 and 8:15 o'clock.

6th Precinct, 4th District
Registration: 555.

Voting was light all morning. At 9:45 o'clock 91 votes had been cast. The precinct is largely Democratic. No contests were reported and there were no disturbances of any kind.

7th Precinct, 4th District
Registration: 418.

At 9:55 o'clock this morning only 26 votes had been cast, but those in charge of the polls predict a big rush of eleventh hour voters late this afternoon. There were no contests or disturbances.

8th Precinct, 4th District
Registration: 529.

Voting is slow, and at 1 o'clock only 140 ballots had been placed in the box. The heaviest voting was from 8 to 8:30 o'clock this morning. Those in charge of the polling place report that there have been no contests or disturbances.

9th Precinct, 4th District
Registration: 569.

Light voting characterized the morning's record at the ninth precinct of the fourth district, though it is expected by officials present that considerably heavier voting will be the result of the later afternoon hours.

10th Precinct, 4th District
Registration: 194.

At 12:15 o'clock this afternoon 56 votes had been given at the tenth precinct of the fourth district. It is expected that the afternoon hours will show quite an increase over this number, which is about one-third of the registration.

12th Precinct, 4th District
Registration: 432.

In the 12th precinct of the 4th district the voting went regularly. 124 votes having been cast up to 12:45 o'clock. There have been no contests or disturbances.

11th Precinct, 5th District
Registration: 665.

Between 8 and 9 o'clock this morning voting was heaviest at the eleventh precinct booth. Several hands of musicians appeared during the morning to render selections. The vote at 12 o'clock was 161. W. C. Achi, senator, voted in this precinct.

12th Precinct, 5th District
Registration: 194.

W. T. Brigham, curator of the Bishop Museum, was the first man to cast a vote at the twelfth precinct booth this morning. At noon today there was a total of 48 votes recorded. A Hawaiian women's quintet, representing Willie Crawford, furnished music during a part of the morning. The only difficulty that arose at this booth was through the fact that one man had not been placed on the registered list by some mistake and had to get a letter from the clerk's office. The matter was soon adjusted satisfactorily.

13th Precinct, 5th District
Registration: 420.

Twenty minutes after noon today the voting in the thirteenth precinct totaled 128, the last 13 coming in in about 25 minutes. Voting is usually heavy at this booth, sometimes reaching as much as 125 in the first hour, but this morning it came slow. "Link" McCandless, Democratic candidate for delegate to Congress, was the second man at the polls, and, according to persons present, was on hand before they opened this morning.

14th Precinct, 5th District
Registration: 664.

The fact that many of the water-front strike-breakers are registered in the fourteenth precinct of the fifth district is believed to be the cause of light voting during the morning. A total of 111 votes had been cast at 11:30 o'clock today, which is light, according to former polling here. The afternoon was expected to bring up the number considerably.

15th Precinct, 5th District
Registration: 334.

This was the Aala Park booth and up to noon was conspicuous for the lightness of votes. Only 69 votes had been recorded here at the noon hour.

an exceedingly light showing, according to registration. The prediction is made at the booth that the afternoon vote, while possibly heavier, will not be as high as in former years.
Little Trouble With Registration
At noon today only 15 voters had applied to the Registration Board because of mistakes in the registration list of whom nine were passed.

on was Albert V. Gear, a member of the board, whose name was spelled incorrectly. The other two members after deep deliberation decided that it was all right for Gear to vote.
Besides Gear the members of the board are Samuel Chillingworth and Wm. Buckle.
