

YOUNG ROOF IS MAKING CHANGES FOR BIG SEASON

The management of the roof garden at the Alexander Young hotel is making many changes and additions, which make for an enjoyable winter season at the popular social rendezvous. December 19 will see an entirely new program.

Coming in the Wilhelmina as the next series of entertainers, are the well known Pertta Newport, who was favored so much during her previous visit; the funny, piquant little Billie Fisher, singer of rag-time rages, and the dancing duo, Arthur Norbury and Marian Goo, whom Manager T. B. Thiele of the Territorial Hotel Company met and booked during his recent visit through the United States and Canada.

Besides these entertainers the musical Russians, who have become almost a part of the roof with their exquisite offerings, are still booked for several months.

Recently several thousand feet of lumber was laid on the roof a few inches above the cement floor, so the winter rains may wash down the side curtains and run under the new flooring unnoticed. The canvas awning has been entirely restretched and securely tied to avoid the disagreeable flapping which accompanied the heavier winds, and a new canvas dancing surface has been laid over the central pavilion which has also been raised a few inches above the new flooring that the audience may see the entertainers when the latter are on the floor.

Chairs of a more comfortable pattern than the old folding arrangements have been added to the general equipment, and Thiele announces that more tables and chairs are on the way. Rain curtains will be put on the Ewa side, too.

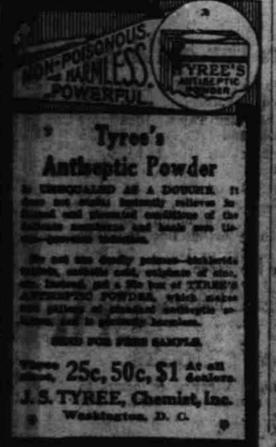

"Although the roof has never been a money-making proposition for the company," says Thiele, "we feel that it is almost indispensable for the amusement and entertainment of the guests of our company and their friends, and therefore we feel we should continue it. And if we are to have a roof garden we propose that its appointments and attractions will be such that neither we nor our guests need be ashamed of."

MOVEMENT FOR BETTER PAY TO TEACHERS WILL BE CARRIED ON

Issue Referred to New Officers; Military Training Urged By Capt. L. G. Blackman

In order that the request may reach the proper authorities, the resolution introduced at the annual meeting of the Territorial Teachers' Association Friday, urging more pay for teachers, has been referred to the newly-elected officers of the association.

The new officers, as announced in the second edition of Friday's Star-Bulletin, are Capt. L. G. Blackman, head of the Honolulu Military Academy, president; Mrs. Minnie H. Churchill of Waialua, vice president; Miss Katharine L. Woodford of McKinley high school, secretary-treasurer.

Among the interesting addresses delivered at the meeting was one by Capt. L. G. Blackman, school commissioner and commandant of the Honolulu Military Academy, who spoke on "Military Training in Schools." He said, in part:

"So far as the actual benefits derived from military training are concerned, they group trenches primarily under physical and moral advantages. The former are hygienic, the teaching both of the individual and the community, the economic, treating of the care of the clothing and belongings, and directly physical, shown chiefly in alertness and the possession of a well-poised and correctly developed body.

"I stand for military training in schools, not because when I look to Europe I see the powers there locked in the greatest conflict of history, nor because when I regard the territorial limits of the United States I see to the north one of our great neighbors taking part in a titanic combat with a distant foe, while to the south I see another great neighbor distracted by internecine strife; I stand for military training in schools not because of the wastage of manhood on the firing line, but because I see in this great land I speak not as a Hawaiian, but as an American) a far greater wastage of our manhood in the work of the saloon, in dens of infamy, and in other fields of battle upon which the morale of the youth of our nation is being frittered away."

The work that is being done in Honolulu for mentally and otherwise defective children was told by Miss Gertrude Mason, head of the school for defectives. As an exhibit two blind men were observed making fishing nets and putting cane bottoms in chairs, while a deaf mute, a boy about 11 years old, was weaving attractive baskets from raffia.

DARING HEROINE AT THE EMPIRE

A leap from a high bridge to the roof of a rapidly moving freight car, a hand-to-hand fight on the top of the car, which ends when the combatants roll off the roof and land in a swollen stream of water which the train is crossing, and a few of the sensational incidents connected with the appearance of Miss Helen Gibson, a new star who will greet patrons of the Empire theater today. Miss Gibson is featured in the big railroad drama, "The Girl Who Dared." Miss Gibson is rated a worthy successor to Helen Holmes, a heroine and a central figure in scores of spectacular moving picture productions.

Beatie Kytton, a reigning favorite with Honoluluans, will return to the Empire today in a delightfully refreshing vehicle. "The Regeneration of Jim Halsey" is a three-act dramatization of Morris Hargood's clever story recently concluded in one of the mainland fiction magazines. Thomas Santicite will make his bow to local spectators in this production. Burns and Stites are a pair of comedians who in their inimitable "pokes and jibes" will extract all that is laudable from the farce, "Behind the Scenes."

HEAVIER NAVAL ARMAMENT ASKED

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 2.—Capt. Jonas McKean, U. S. N., yesterday urged the house naval committee to recommend the purchase of a site near Jamestown, Va., for use of the navy as an aviation base. Jamestown is located upon the James river, not far from Newport News, and is said to be a splendid site for such a purpose as suggested by Capt. McKean.

Capt. Plunkett, who also appeared before the committee, advocated the use of the largest possible guns in the American navy. He pointed out that the sea battles of the present war have been won by gun fire of the heavier artillery engaged, and declared that the navy of the United States should be provided with the very largest possible to construct.

Capt. Plunkett said that the department is planning to equip the new battleships with 16-inch rifled guns of the highest power, instead of 14-inch guns, and expressed his conviction that when the lessons of the European war are fully learned it will be found that the nations are using 18 and even 20-inch guns.

REP. JAMES MANN SAYS G. O. P. CONTROLS HOUSE

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 2.—That the control of the lower house will be safely in the hands of the Republicans, who will organize it on the opening day of the new congress, is the belief of Representative James Mann of Illinois, who states that he has canvassed the situation and is able to state that the party will muster 218 votes on the first roll call. This will leave the Democrats in a minority of one, even should the Progressives, Independents and Prohibitionists vote with the Democrats, an improbable supposition. The probabilities are that the Republicans will secure a majority of the independent vote and will organize the house by a majority of 6 to 8. In the present house the Democrats have a total of 227 straight party votes, a clear majority in the house of 19.

Representative Mann, who is the Republican minority floor leader, announced yesterday that he is not a candidate for the speakership.

GOOD BOOK WEEK

When you buy your boy a book Get him what rings true. Don't think that any silly trash is good enough for you.

Fairy tales are different. They represent great truths; imagination feeds on them. They help to train our youths.

But some there are who see no folly in most senseless plots; They buy their boys whole series, Buy them in job lots.

The boy lives in his hero, He reads preposterous things, Exalts himself in consequence A false note through him rings.

He then feels most important, Sometimes he runs away, He loses taste for good books, Mental effort doesn't pay.

You'll not regret the right kind; The boy prefers what's true; He gets his thrills in these books, And he gets upliftment, too.

So when you buy your boy a book Get him what rings true; Don't think that any silly trash is good enough for you.

SALT LAKE ELEPHANT FRIGHTENED, ESCAPES

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah.—Princess Alice, a huge elephant of Liberty Park zoo, property of the city, escaped from her keepers recently and ran frightened and fled. She ran across the mountains, five miles from the park, leaving a trail of destruction in her way. The elephant was being used to move a house at the park when a chain snapped and she became frightened and fled. She ran across lots, breaking down fences and bowling over outbuildings. When she reached the foothills she became tired and submitted to capture by her keepers.
