so whether the Kona gale was blowing at the time the Maui grounded this morning is not known. It is surmised the vessel may have been steering too close a course and failed to clear Makalawena point, which she has to pass when going from Mahukona to Kailua.

The Maui is a steel hull vessel, 171 feet long, 30.1 beam, 14.3 feet deep, of 631 gross and 404 net tons. She was built in 1897 at San Francisco. There are 45 men in her crew and her indicated horsepower is 447.

There were no passengers aboard.

"SANITARY" DRINKING FOUNTAINS FOUND NOT TO BE FULLY EFFECTIVE

(By Associated Press)

IOWA, CITY, Iowa.—Impurities that remain suspended at the top of the stream from a continuous flow drink fountain are proved to have been responsible for diseases of the throat, according to the investigations of Professor J. H. Dunlap, of the department of sanitary engineering of the University of Iowa. In his report he says that infectious organisms have remained suspended at the crest of the column of water for as long as 135 minutes.

In general Professor Dunlap says that both the continuous and intermittent flow types of so-called sanitary drinking fountains were found to be far from sanitary. They are not on principles of good sanitation, this report states. The main difficulty with the intermittent type is that persons will place their mouths directly on the metal top of the bubbler.

"The continuous flow type is not much better," says Professor Dunlap, "because organisms from the mouth of the user remain dancing in the column of water after the fashion of a rubber ball on the garden fountain, even though the bubble is increased to the impracticable height of four inches."

A recent investigation, according to the report, showed that 43 out of 77 bubble fountains were contaminated. The best construction for the fountains, Professor Dunlap says, is for the column of water to be thrown at a slant, because then the impurities can dance no more.

YOUNG EMBEZZLER LEARNED
POKER IN BANK'S BACK ROOM
MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Five prominent city and county officials were named in the confession of Stanley Bartkowiak, 29 years old, a bank clerk here, who was sentenced to serve two and a half years in the penitentiary for embezzling $8,047. The youth, employed in the German-American bank, laid his downfall to a fondness for poker, which he testified was taught to him in the back room of the bank, where games were a daily occurrence after banking hours.

'HOME RULE' FOR HAWAII ADVANCES

knows, of grave importance. However, and particularly should the legislature adopt resolutions along proper lines, I believe the time is not far distant when our powers will be broadened preparatory to putting us on probation for statehood. Of course local opposition of the Chamber of Commerce to a bill like the one providing for the election of a governor may have some weight, although I still think that will be passed.

Future Possibilities
When it has time, Congress will also, in my judgment, be ready to give the legislature the power to do as it pleases on both the woman suffrage and the prohibition questions, that is, to grant the legislature the power to pass on these questions, or the power to call a plebiscite to settle them. This seems to me to be the sentiment of many of the members with whom I have conversed, and certainly is the sentiment amongst a large number of the senators. The District of Columbia "dry" bill passed solely because several of the senators were of the opinion that Congress had no power to provide for a referendum in the district. Of course that does not apply to Hawaii. On the woman suffrage question I imagine those who favor the constitutional amendment and those who oppose it would vote in favor of leaving the question, insofar as Hawaii is concerned, to the people themselves.

Opposition to Land Bill
There will be considerable opposition to the bill giving Hawaii absolute power over the public lands, and a campaign of education will be necessary before anything can be accomplished along this line. The proposed legislation seems to the average congressman to be too great a departure from the public land system of the United States. We tried to point out to the committee the fact that the public lands of Hawaii were in an entirely different situation from those of the mainland of the United States, in that the United States originally secured them from Hawaii, and perhaps when a further hearing is had in Washington something along this line may be accomplished.

Against Non-Resident Appointees
The bill concerning the qualifications of federal officials—that is, requiring that they should be residents of Hawaii—will in my judgment win in two years become a law. It is true indeed, that congressmen desire patronage, but they are confronted with the platforms of the two parties on this subject, and it seems to me they are going to favor it. Then, too, some of the members of congress are rather in favor of having patronage taken away from them since if they have a given candidate for a job and fail to secure his appointment, the fault is usually attributed to them.

Praises New Postmaster
"Speaking of mainland appointments, I had the pleasure of becoming very well acquainted with the new Honolulu postmaster, Mr. McAdam. Inasmuch as it appeared to be written down that we had to take a mainland man, we are fortunate in securing one of the type of Mr. McAdam. He is quiet and unassuming, but has had considerable experience in postal matters, and is quite an organizer. He will come to the Honolulu postoffice at a time when it becomes of much more importance than it has been in the past, since it will be the head office for all the islands. Mr. McAdam is a very pleasant man to meet socially, and aside from the mainland part of it, I am sure Honolulu people will like him. He is exceedingly anxious to make good and to overcome the prejudice against him as a mainland-er."

Nails Kuhio-Iaukea Story
"I was rather amused by a paragraph in one of the Honolulu papers that Kuhio had been opposing the confirmation of Iaukea for secretary. As a matter of fact, the delegate laid aside all personal differences he might have had with Iaukea, and not only did not oppose his confirmation, but endeavored to secure it. Day after day, while in the delegate's office, I heard him make inquiry as to the status of the appointment. The delay in the confirmation was certainly not due to any opposition on the part of Kuhio."

Kuhio Stays For Extra Session
"I left the delegate in San Francisco. He had booked to return on the Ventura, but when the call for the extra session came, concluded to remain and return to Washington. The failure of several of the confirmation bills, and the possibility that the present crisis may suggest legislation in which Hawaii may be vitally interested, convinced him that he had better return. I found much interest in Hawaii on the mainland, and believe that as a tourist resort we are going to beat the world. I saw advertised in Washington a moving picture and a lecture on Hawaii by Newman one Sunday evening at the Belasco theater, and attended. The audience was large—save myself—fashionable, and wholly enthusiastic. Newman's pictures are excellent, and his lecture a boost for Hawaii."

"I thoroughly enjoyed my stay in Washington. I was there during a somewhat tense period, and no one at all interested in public affairs could suffer from ennui."
Breckons makes no predictions regarding prohibition for Hawaii, but says that the plan for a "petition-plebiscite" was unwise and that with unity of work in Washington Congress might have passed before this an act giving the legislature the right either to pass a prohibition law or to put a referendum on the subject to vote of the people.

No reception was held this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Shelton, Alewa Heights, for Mrs. Leonard, wife of Bishop Leonard of San Francisco, and Mrs. Seaton, wife of the president of the College of the Pacific, San Jose, owing to the inclement weather and the condition of the streets. Bishop and Mrs. Leonard return to the coast tomorrow.

ANCIENT PEAR TREES ARE CONDEMNED TO BE BURNED

YALETIA, TEXAS.—Modern scientific horticulture condemns the ancient pear trees of this old Indian village and these trees which were planted by the Franciscan fathers in the sixteenth century, according to local tradition, have been chopped down and burned in the earthen ovens of the Indians as fuel. The coddling moth was responsible for the destruction of these ancient pear trees. A state inspector discovered that the trees, which are scattered through the Rio Grande valley near here, were breeding places for the insects which have been destroying pear orchards in the valley.

NEW WORK OFFERS MUCH FOR WOMEN

(By Associated Press)

LAWRENCE, Kansas.—Women bacteriologists are preferred to men in comparatively many laboratories and for that reason bacteriology is offering a new field for women. Several women bacteriologists from the University of Kansas now are bacteriological diagnosticians in big hospitals or are doing bacteriological work in other laboratories.

Every few months the university receives a call for a woman bacteriologist, but the demand for such women workers far exceeds the supply, says Dr. F. H. Billings, professor of bacteriology in the university. Bacteriological work requires painstaking and accurate effort and peculiar dexterity that makes women particularly efficient in bacteriological work. University of bacteriologists point out that the work offers a chance for original research work and thus, in addition to the fair salaries paid, give a novelty and chance for personal development that teaching frequently does not offer a woman. The work requires at least two years study of bacteriology.

There are twenty women studying bacteriology in the University of Kansas. Any woman taking up bacteriology should have at least one term in chemistry.

HONOR JACK CORNWELL

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, Eng.—In 12,000 schools in this country a picture of Jack Cornwell, the boy hero of the Jutland battle, looks down on the pupils who are now contributing their pennies to the building of a national memorial to him. Up to date remittance have been received from 28,400 schools, and 485 individual subscribers, amounting to $110,000. Besides the printing of the portraits of the boy hero, the committee in charge of the publicity work has had printed, 250,000 booklets, 175,000 posters, half a million collecting cards, and has answered 100,000 letters. The picture show Cornwell standing by his gun during the heat of battle.

WOMAN DEPUTY SHERIFF DOES NOT NEED REVOLVER

[By Associated Press]
VAN HORN, Texas.—Miss Bertie Diltz, one of the few feminine deputy sheriffs in the country, does not find it at all necessary to wear sombrero nor huge loaded revolvers in the most conspicuous manner possible. Instead she wears modish tailored suits, stylish hats and her revolver is most conspicuous through being carried concealed in her muff.

Miss Diltz says that she has never yet had occasion to use her revolver to compel a prisoner to accompany her to the jail. She arrests malefactors of greater or lesser wealth, whenever she has a warrant for them and takes them to the county jail just as do her male associates on the Sheriff's staff.

MEXICO CITY IS DULL

[By Associated Press]
MEXICO CITY.—Games of chance and skill have been pretty well banished from the cafes of Mexico City which are strictly regulated. Dominoes, one of the favorite games among the Latin races which was played almost universally in the cafes here has been prohibited by order of the police. Dice also have been confiscated.

Practically the only game which remains has no other name than "marking the paper." It is a slightly complicated "tit tat toe, three in a row." The cafes and cantinas or saloons of the capital close at 3 p. m. and remain closed until 5:30 p. m. They then open until 9 when they close for the night.

TO HAVE ARMORED CARS

AMSTERDAM.—The Dutch newspapers announce that the Dutch army is to be provided with armored cars similar to the British "tank." It is said that a portion of the new cars will be built in the United States.

To read the newspapers intelligently a man must have a vocabulary of at least 2,000 words.
