The officers and ladies of the 4th Cavalry were hosts on Tuesday evening at one of the most attractive and enjoyable parties of the season when they entertained for Col. and Mrs. Lloyd Brett, their regimental commander and his wife. This charming affair was given at the 1st Infantry club, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The dancing pavilion looked unusually lovely with great branches of cedar hanging from the ceiling and the guileons and flags of the different regiments.

interspersed among the foliage. The pillars were wound with yellow and covered with ferns and bouquets of daisies and marigolds while tall vases of Easter lilies added much to the beauty of the scene.

In the receiving line were Col. and Mrs. Brett, Col. and Mrs. William Littebrant, Col. and Mrs. Charles Hedekin, and Capt. and Mrs. Kerr T. Riggs. Capt. Riggs as regimental adjutant, introducing the guests.

In the dining room of the club the refreshment table was arranged with a centerpiece of ferns, crape and yellow shaded candles. Here during the evening punch was dispensed and at midnight a very delectable course supper served. The committee on the decorations was composed of Mrs. Hamilton Hawkins, Mrs. Benjamin Hyer, Mrs. Conger Pratt, Mrs. Robert Love and Mrs. Howell Estes. The splendid cavalry band played delightfully during the reception and for the gay dance which kept up until the "wee hours." Highlander Milk

makes cooking a success - not a speculation

Cooking is always a success where Highlander Condensed Milk (full cream) is used. There's good reason, too, why the careful housewife should use this famous brand. Firstly, it ensures better flavoured dishes. It is easy to prove this. Try a dressing where Highlander Condensed Milk has been used against one in which ordinary milk or some other condensed milk has been employed—you can at once taste the superior flavour of Highlander. Then, too, it makes food more digestible. Scientists tell us that the process of condensation modifies the caseinogen and thus makes the milk more digestible.

Then, too, Highlander Condensed Milk is richer—you have a standard full cream milk as against a fluctuating product, of varying quality and richness.

Made from the world's finest milk, Highlander is the standard brand for tens of thousands of women who have proved its superiority. One test will suffice—you owe it to yourself to make it.

There are hundreds of recipes in the big 200-page beautifully illustrated Highlander Cook Book. Write for a free copy to-day—address "Highlander," Dept. "A," Fred L. Waltons, Ltd., Agents, Honolulu.
