

WAR RELIEF BODY RECEIVES U. S. RECOGNITION

The War Relief Committee today received wireless notification from the American Red Cross in Washington that its application to become an auxiliary of the main organization had been approved.

"This gives the War Relief Committee an official status," declared A. L. Castle, "and we shall have no hesitancy now in going ahead on a financial and membership campaign. We received also 5000 membership blanks from the American Red Cross, and as soon as we have perfected plans we shall go ahead and try for members. The least a person can do under the present circumstances is to join the Red Cross. It is inconceivable that anyone could refuse to join."

"In addition to memberships, however, we desire regular monthly or quarterly contributions, so that regular remittances may be made to Washington, and also the fine work continued by the ladies of the Hawaiian Allied War Relief, which is now affiliated with our body. We hope to be able to handle all the finances for them and to relieve them of this part of the work. Hawaii hasn't yet begun to give, and won't until we reach the point suggested by the Boston Herald, 'If you haven't paid until it hurt, than you haven't begun to pay.'"

Here is what the American Red Cross is providing for American troops:

Fifty movable base hospitals, completely equipped with the best physicians, surgeons and nurses in the country, ready for instant service; each hospital capable of caring for the wounded of an army of 20,000 men.

Fifty ambulance companies to carry the wounded to these hospitals.

Two hundred to four hundred sanitary training detachments to train an adequate force of men for the army medical corps.

Huge supply depots, strategically situated to receive and distribute supplies of every kind needed by our soldiers and sailors.

Information bureaus, to provide prompt means of communication between the enlisted men and their families.

Refreshment units, to care for

FORD WANTS TO SERVE U. S., MAY GO TO THE FRONT

Alexander Hume Ford, super-booster for Hawaii and publisher of the Mid-Pacific magazine, who is now on the coast, intends to enter war work just as soon as his health permits, according to information brought to Honolulu by returning island residents and letters received from him by his friends. As Ford is a pacifist, it is believed that his intentions are to enter Red Cross work.

"I have a slight of building up before me, then I want to get to the front just as soon as I am able. I may be in Hawaii working for the great cause, but I may be more useful in Europe," Ford says in one of his letters.

That Ford is to enter the new work with his characteristic enthusiasm is shown by the following statements in another letter:

"The republicanizing of the world is going on under our eyes. It is the biggest thing the world has ever seen. I see by the wireless that even the Germans want free government and that the great movement is now a world movement."

CORAL AT BEACH TO BE GATHERED UP BY OUTRIGGER

No longer will loose coral on the beach and in the water of Waikiki bewilder the toes of men, women and children using the beach, if everyone of the aforementioned people does his or her share tomorrow by helping the Outrigger Canoe club pick up all the loose coral which has rendered bathing there a discomfort instead of a pleasure, for the last three months.

President H. B. Campbell said this morning that the club's cleanup day campaign to rid the beach of loose coral will be held tomorrow. He appeals to all bathers, whether or not members of the Outrigger, to "do their bit" by picking up at least one piece of coral and helping to make bathing once more a delight instead of a modified form of toe-stubbing torture.

"We will have a large boat in the water to receive the coral, Arthur H. Hobart, one of the enthusiastic members having undertaken to secure such a craft, and move it from place to place to gather up the coral," said President Campbell this morning, "and we want everyone to help clean up all the loose coral. The outrigger canoes will also be used and we look for some lively competition in the coral picking line. If every person visiting the beach tomorrow will pick up one piece of loose coral the results will be grand, and women and children will no longer get their legs cut and feet bruised by the shifting pieces."

News of the Outriggers' decision to clean up the coral which has made bathing a positive discomfort for some months past, was received with loud cries of delight and approbation this morning by those who have suffered silently from bruised toes and barked shins while trying to enjoy a swim between the beach and the diving platform.

HAWAII EXPECTS TO ENROLL 9000 IN REGISTRATION

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence.) HILO, Hawaii, July 27.—If the estimate of County Clerk Archie Hapai turns out to be correct, he and his assistants will register about 9000 men on Tuesday for the selective draft.

The county clerk has been very busy sending out the necessary supplies for the registration work and thousands of blanks and cards have been shipped to the various centers. The cards will be given to every man who registers and that will be his proof that he has registered.

Some amusing things have happened in connection with those people who are wishing to register before the date for so doing. One man saw the county clerk the other day when asked when he was born, declared that he had come into the world in the year 2509. That stumped Hapai and he asked for the answer again. Once more the reply was 2509. "Why, we haven't reached that year yet," exclaimed the astounded county clerk. "I don't care, that is my year," returned the applicant for registration and that made Hapai wonder if the man was sane or not. It later developed that what the man was trying to state was that he was twenty-five years and nine months old.

"This registration affair is going to cost a lot of money," said County Clerk Hapai, "and it will be a good job when it is all over. While I say we may register nine thousand men, it may turn out that only six thousand respond to the call."

OIL SHORTAGE MENACES CITY

capacity was 90,000 barrels, was commandeered by the government, and this necessitated taking ships off the Hawaiian run for the more important work along the coast. The government is being supplied first in all branches of the work.

A. E. Davidson, local agent for the Associated Oil Company, stated this morning that while they would have sufficient oil to meet the demands of their old contracts, that on account of the uncertain transportation facilities they would not be able to fulfill any new orders. They have received orders to conserve their supply.

When questioned this morning the management of the Standard Oil Company stated that they had received instructions not to sell any crude oil except on old contracts, but would not give any reasons for this stand. Oil Refused Mid-Pacific.

One thousand gallons of fuel oil for use in a stove at the Kawaihau school for girls, could not be obtained by Merle L. Copeland, assistant treasurer of the Mid-Pacific Institute, although he approached every oil agency in the city—the Standard, Union and Associated oil companies—within the last few days.

"We use about 500 gallons a month and I requested the Standard Oil Company and other companies in the city for the oil, but they told me that they could not fill my orders."

"We do not have a standing contract with the oil companies, and for that reason were not able to get what we wanted. We have oil left for about a week, but I do not know what we will do for the twenty-five girls, who are now at the school after that time. I am looking into the matter now."
