FOOD CONTROL BILL IS PASSED BY SENATE

THREE TO ENFORCE NEW LAW

Recommendations of Conferees Adopted Without Change; President Expected to Fall in Line and Sign Measure as Amended in Committee

(Associated Press by U. S. Naval Communication Service)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 8.—In the vote on the food control bill in the senate today 66 voted in the affirmative while Senators Hardwick, Hollis, Reed, and France, Groena LaFollette and Penrose registered their vote in the negative.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 8.—The food control bill today passed the senate in record time, the upper house concurring in the amendments made by the committee of conferees, which has had the bill under consideration for some time past.

According to the conferees' recommendation, control will be under the supervision of three heads.

President Wilson has been insistent that the work should be handled by one man in supreme control, but it is expected the president will sign the bill, falling in line with the recommendations made in conference.

The bill as it will be presented to the president for signature is materially different from the one originally introduced, and in certain respects is far from meeting with his approval. As introduced in the house, it placed food control virtually in the hands of one man, who, it was intended, should be Herbert C. Hoover, recently at the head of the Belgian relief commission. The bill passed the house in this form, but when it reached the senate it was to a large extent rewritten. As finally passed by the senate, the measure placed food control in the United States in the hands of a commission of three, instead of entrusting it to a single food dictator.

President Wilson made strong efforts to have this change eliminated, but the senate was obdurate, and when the bill went to conference, the house conferees gave in to those from the senate. The debate on the measure in the senate was exceedingly acrimonious at times.

PRO-GERMANISM IN JAPAN IS DYING OUT SAYS NOTED WRITER

Nipponese Leaders Realize That Nation Must Become Business One Rather Than Military, is Conclusion of Richard Washburn Child After Study of Conditions

Japan, though under suspicion, probably has no ulterior intentions toward China. That country now believes generally that the famous 21 demands made on China over a year ago were a mistake. Viscount Ishii and party are on a military and diplomatic mission to Washington, due in part to America's entry into the war. Japan has had a strong Teutonic influence, but this is fading away as the war continues, and as her leaders realize that the empire must become a business nation rather than a military one.

These are some of the observations of Richard Washburn Child, the noted writer, after a tour of the Orient and the Philippine Islands, gathering material for articles for Child's magazine and for Asia, a new publication devoted to giving to readers a closer insight of affairs in the Far East. Mr. Child was a passenger aboard the T. K. K. liner which sailed for the coast at noon today. His first article regarding China is in the current number of Collier's.

That Japan has no intention of trying to Japanese China is the frankly expressed opinion of the writer.

"There is a certain clique in China busily issuing propaganda questioning all of Japan's intentions toward China. No, the clique is not an organized one, but sometimes it appears to be. So far as regards the famous demands made on China by Japan over a year ago, I believe it was a misce on Japan's part, and that every one connected with the occurrence wants to forget the whole thing. Why? Because it created ill feeling in both America and China, and Japan's future depends on the world's good will.

"Chinese officials would not be adverse to playing America against Japan. While telling us what Japan was trying to do to their country, other Chinese officials might be just as busily engaged in informing the Japanese government of our 'bad intentions' toward China. They are politicians enough to try and play one strong country against another, while they slip through between. But they develop no statesmen capable of making China stand alone.

"I do not believe Viscount Ishii and his party have any definite instructions regarding their mission to Washington. The purpose of the trip is a general one to bring about a better feeling between the two countries and to secure better cooperation of Japan and America during the war with Germany. I would say that the mission is a diplomatic and military one, simultaneous.

SCHROEDER IS OFF ON WAY TO FACE U.S. TRIAL

Unadorned with left and dressed in a quiet gray suit, August Schroeder went aboard the steamer Maui only five minutes before it sailed at noon today for San Francisco, where he is under federal indictment on a charge of having violated the neutrality of the United States by conspiring with 124 others, to foment a revolution in India.

It was less than 10 minutes to sailing time when Mr. Schroeder reached Pier 19 in company with a representative of the Honolulu agency of the Hartford Insurance Co., which is sponsor on a $10,000 bond for his delivery in San Francisco. He spent perhaps five minutes bidding good-bye to a few acquaintances who gathered about him, well separated from the others at the steamer to bid adieu to friends.

Among the acquaintances who shook hands with him before he left were E. G. and Walter Dulsenberg, E. F. Snyder, construction engineer with the Lord-Young Co., and J. A. Pratt, a coast representative of the Bitullith Paving Co. The representative of his bondsmen also bid him good-bye, after he had inscribed some memoranda in a book, presumed to be a San Francisco address at which Schroeder will stop.

Engineer Cykler walked through the crowd of spectators to near the gangway with Mr. Schroeder, where other acquaintances, good-naturedly offered him their hands. The only representative of the Hackfeld company, seen to bid him good-bye, was Charles F. Drake, an American, who recently entered the insurance department of that company, in which department Schroeder was employed before he was suspended last week.

As Mr. Schroeder was approaching the gangway to the Maui he was asked if he had something he wanted to say before departing. "No, I have nothing to say," he answered with his set reply to all queries since news of his indictment in San Francisco.

SLACKERS ON ALL ISLANDS TO BE JAILED

"Arrest at once all who have not registered. See second section, paragraph 29, Report to this board immediately any arrests are made. Give name of person arrested." Message sent by central registration board to the sheriffs of all the islands.

WHAT appears to have been a conflict of authority as regards the arrest of persons who failed to register for military service, is reported to have been thoroughly straightened out, bringing the registration board, the police, the sheriffs and deputy sheriffs, and federal officials to a final understanding on the method of procedure.

That the disposition of all cases of "slackers" rests entirely with the central board, and that that body has the power to say what action shall be taken, is the information given the Star-Bulletin today by members of the board who have been instrumental in mapping out the "round-up" campaign which went into effect today.

Among other things, members of the board assert that, except in specified cases, the federal officials shall make no arrests unless so directed by the board. It is the duty of these officials, says the board, to secure all information possible in cases where persons have failed to register. This information must be turned in to the board which will sift it and then reach a decision as to the disposition of the cases.

If it is believed, in any certain case, that the person willfully refused to register, the board will prepare a proper criminal information which will be filed with the U. S. attorney. It is within the power of the board, say members, to say whether a case shall be prosecuted or not. Members of the board add that no case of local "slacking" will reach the federal officials until it has passed through the hands of the board.

Another assertion of the board is that federal officials may not make arrests in local cases unless so authorized by the board, but that these officials must furnish the board with all information in cases of "slackers."

Philippines Service May Become Regular Schedule If It Pays

Announcement was made in San Francisco today by Captain William Matson of the Matson Navigation Co., that the S. S. Manoa, now sailing between San Francisco and Honolulu, was to be placed on a San Francisco to Manila run, with calls at Honolulu on both outward and inward voyages. The Manila service may be established as a regular schedule if it pays. The inclusion of Manila on the Manoa schedule now is to relieve freight congestion, it is said.

That this has been contemplated for some time by the Matson company was admitted today by John Drew, head of the shipping department of Castle & Cooke, the local agents for the Matson line. When asked if the change in schedule was being made at the request of the government, Mr. Drew replied:

"No, it is a business venture. The service will be maintained during the slack sugar season of the Hawaiian Islands. The first trip to Manila will be made after this voyage of the Manoa to Honolulu is completed," he added.

The Manoa is due in Honolulu early tomorrow morning. It was also reported today that the Matson vessel, Hyades, might be put back on the Seattle-Honolulu run.

As at present planned, the Manoa is to be kept on the Manila run for two months and a half, beginning about the first of next month.

QUESTION OF SUBSTITUTION OF PARTS DECIDED

Ah Leong against the late Henry Williams today on a motion to make the administratrix of the estate and the heirs at law parties in the place of the deceased. WOMEN GIVE AD CLUBMEN POINTERS IN FOOD CONSERVATION CAMPAIGN

"Come Into the Kitchen Maud" has been the new phrase adopted since 2,000,000 women of the country have joined the ranks of the culinary army. Members of the Ad Club at a luncheon at the Alexander Young hotel today at noon listened to what the women were doing to assist in food conservation.

Mrs. A. C. Alexander, the first speaker, told of the work the women of Honolulu were doing to assist in the food control, and said that 2,000,000 women had been mobilized since the declaration of war to fight the battles of the country in the kitchens.

She pointed out five points necessary in food conservation. The preservation of wheat, meat, the use of fats, the transportation problem, which means the use of home-grown products, and the clean plate.

Mrs. A. L. Andrews said that the women of the nation could serve by saving. She pointed out that the elimination of white bread would mean much to the nation.

The elimination of pastry, and the use of fresh fruits for dessert were urged, and Mrs. Andrews said that in Hawaii it was certain that meatless days could be established with success, inasmuch as ham and bacon can be easily transported to the soldiers at the front. Mrs. Andrews should abstain from using these meats.

Mrs. W. F. Frear urged that the children be taught to realize the necessity of food conservation.

H. E. Vernon suggested that the bakeries of the cities be asked to make bread with the principles laid down by Mr. Hoover.

G. S. McKenzie was called upon to give his version of the wheat conservation. He said that before the war the armies were using a percent of 35 wheat properties while now they were using 60 per cent. He said that nothing had been found as yet which was acceptable to take the place of wheat.

Mr. McKenzie said that graham flour contained 100 per cent wheat, and was therefore valuable. He did not believe, however, that oats, barley and corn could be used as wheat substitutes. He brought out the fact that waste was the most important thing to consider in food conservation. He said that in a city of 26,000 people he had found that 1600 pounds of bread was wasted in one day.

John Soper reported that Miss Mabel T. Boardman of the Red Cross had written to the Ad Club thanking them for the offer to send guava jelly

HONOLULU TO SEATTLE LINE IN PROSPECT

If First Voyage Proves Satisfactory to Pacific Steamship Company, Steamer Will Be Kept on Regular Run to the Islands, Information Chamber of Commerce Receives

FOR the possible establishment of a permanent steamship service between Honolulu and Seattle, the steamship Senator of the Pacific Steamship Company will leave Seattle August 11 for Honolulu, according to a letter received by the chamber of commerce from the chamber of commerce of Seattle. This is the first trip of the Senator to the islands and it is the intention of the company to keep her on regularly if the initial voyage proves satisfactory. The Senator is well known along the Pacific coast where she has been in the coastwise service for a number of years.

In all probability the Senator will arrive at this port on or about August 15. The date of the return sailing has not been announced. An article taken from the Seattle Post Intelligencer says that the Senator will carry box shooks for the pineapple factories and general merchandise and that on the return voyage a cargo of canned pineapples is promised.

The article follows: "A direct passenger and freight service may be established between Seattle and Honolulu as the result of the experimental trip of the steamship Senator, which is to be sent to the Hawaiian port with passengers and freight by the Pacific Steamship Company on August 11.

"The officials of the company, while reticent about announcing the starting of a regular line of vessels between Puget Sound and Hawaii, admitted last night that the Senator, which is now being refitted at this port, would make the August 11 sailing for the Pacific isles, and that passengers would be booked for the voyage out of this port. On the return the Senator has a cargo of pineapple products on board, and more of the island products are promised for future voyages, which is one of the reasons giving rise to the probability of the establishment of a regular service. Will Carry Box Shooks

"On the outward voyage the Senator will take a full cargo of box shooks and general merchandise already contracted for, and the demand for freight space to the islands adds to the likelihood of the Senator's forthcoming voyage proving the first of a regularly established line. The Pacific Steamship Company has had the matter of an offshore line under consideration for several months, but no definite announcement of the actual inauguration of the service was expected until the return of President H. F. Alexander, who is now in Washington. It had been the intention of the company to keep the Senator on the San Francisco run opposite the steamship Queen, but local freights for the Hawaiian isles offered a more lucrative run.

Ever since the Matson steamers Hyades and Hilonian were taken off the Seattle-Honolulu run, the people of Seattle have been very desirous of having a direct service. Several attempts have been made to have the Matson steamers put back on the run, but the Matson officials stated that it was impossible at this time.
