

To such a task we can dedicate our lives and our fortunes, everything that we are and everything that we have, with the pride of those who know that the day has come when America is privileged to spend her blood and her might for the principles that gave her birth and happiness and the peace which she has treasured. God helping her, she can do no other.

—From President Wilson's address to Congress, April 2.

President Wilson thanks LILIUOKALANI

The gracious queen has set her example to all who are here in Hawaii, whether of Hawaiian blood or not, to give, and keep on giving to that fine cause, the Red Cross.

Facsimile of a letter sent by President Wilson to Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior. The original letter, bearing the President's own signature, was forwarded by Mr. Lane to Governor Pinkham, arriving in yesterday's mail.

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

U.S.S. MAYFLOWER,
12 September, 1917

My dear Mr. Secretary:

Thank you for your letter of September sixth enclosing the letter from Governor Pinkham and the letter from Queen Liliuokalani.

Will you not take early occasion to request Governor Pinkham to express to Queen Liliuokalani my personal appreciation of her generous contributions to the Red Cross?

Cordially and sincerely yours,

Hon. Franklin K. Lane,
Secretary of the Interior.
