TRACK NUMBERS USED TO TRAIN GREEN GUNNERS

Numerals Pinned on Backs of Old Men Enable Rookies to Watch Work

Capt. Harold De F. Burdick, Fort Kamehameha, has an interesting article in a recent coast artillery publication regarding the training of new gun sections. The local officer found it of advantage to place numbers on the backs of the old timers, letting the new men watch them drill.
 "When the open season started, this year," says the article "twenty new men were assigned to B Pit, Battery Hasbrouck, Fort Kamehameha, H. T. They had never seen a gun before—they understood nothing of the drill. We can instruct men by talking to them, then take them to the pit and have them make a thousand and one mistakes which shows, "They didn't get you." Having had a number of men in different subjects in the gunners' classes, we thought the method herein described might save us time and breath—it worked.
 "We took a picked team, men who knew the drill as well as the man who wrote the book. The pit officer gave them their assignments at the posts he thought them best fitted to fill. We had numbers made of pieces of cloth picked up around the Quartermaster's and had one of the men print in ink the numbers of the detachment, azimuth setter, elevation setter, and gun commander. The numbers were then pinned on the backs of the team—track-team style. The new men were then told off and directed to watch the man who wore their number, through every move, under every condition, whether loading or unloading—to keep their eyes on their man and follow him through all the plays.
 "The recruits were up on the bridge where they could see everything that was going on, and got a much better idea of what the men were trying to do than they could by standing on the same level in the pit. They watched the drill for two days, and then took the numbers and their places at the guns. The old men took the recruits' places on the bridge and as each mistake was noticed the man was quickly corrected by first giving the order "Stand Fast," and the error explained or corrected. On the fifth morning the entire pit was drilled as a unit; the new men were assigned to one piece—they were told that it was a competition between themselves and the old timers. The pit loaded and unloaded for fifteen pit salvos without a single interruption. The men have had very little instruction since that time, and work with accuracy and speed."

THEATER LOST, CROWD SCARED BY MAUI FIRE

WAILUKU, Maui, Nov. 19.—Five hundred patrons of the Kahului Lyceum barely escaped with their lives Saturday night when the moving picture theater was totally destroyed by fire. The flames spread quickly and there was little time in which to clear the crowded house.

The fire started from the ignition of a film, the blaze jumping to the other films. A rush was made for the exit but order enough was preserved so that no one was seriously injured.
 Three other buildings adjoining the theater, occupied by Oriental fruit and soft drink merchants, were also totally destroyed.
 A church, the new Kahului Community House, a Japanese hotel and the laborers' camp were saved by the quick arrival and effective work of the Wailuku fire department, which made the three mile run in less than five minutes.
 Lack of a high wind kept the fire from spreading quickly, excepting to adjacent buildings.
 In June of this year the Kahului Lyceum was completely rebuilt and refurnished at an outlay of several thousand dollars. It was one of a chain of moving picture theaters operated on Maui by H. H. Waller of Honolulu, John Vasconcelos of Kahului, and P. H. Ross of Wailuku.
 Less than six months ago burning film caused a panic in the Kahului Lyceum, but the fire was extinguished by theater employees before the arrival of the fire department.

LOBSTER JUDGED LUXURY; BARRED TRANSPORTATION

Mr. Broiled and Mrs. Canned-Salad Lobster are "seeing America first" this summer. The reason is that they have been judged to be luxuries and are forbidden by the allies to take up cargo space.
 Canada practically holds a monopoly on lobsters, with 90 per cent of the world's supply to her credit. Ninety per cent of this amount has heretofore been exported, almost every country on earth helping to eat up the nine million pounds which constitute the world's supply of the canned article.
 It has been estimated by Canadian authorities that while it takes 50 people in the United States to eat a one-pound tin of lobster in a year, 20 people in Great Britain or France will get away with the same amount. But this isn't because the Americans don't like lobsters. No, sir! It's because they like him raw. This year America will have to increase her consumption of the lobster of her choice in order to restore the balance.
 The best lobster in the world is said to be found along the Labrador Coast. If so, we have about as much chance of tracking him to his home and cracking his ideal claws as we have of digging up the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. Hotels in Labrador will doubtless be built in time for our grandchildren's honeymoon, but no sooner.
 At present the best specimens of lobster available on the spot are the Nova Scotians, of which nearly three million dollars' worth are taken every year, a little more than half of these destined for the can.
 The Dominion is proud of its lobster industry and spends an amount equal to one-half cent for every man, woman and child in Canada, on keeping up the hatcheries, of which there are fifteen in Nova Scotia. These day-nurseries of the sea are said to have taken care of over seven million pink-clawed youngsters, each of whom doubtless dreamed of a glorious death on Fifth avenue.

SANTA CRUZ TAKES NO FREIGHT OR PASSENGERS

No passengers or freight were taken from San Francisco to Santa Cruz, a Pacific Mail steamer, which was in port today. The steamer had a full cargo of 6400 tons of through freight from India and the Philippines and only 8 tons of hemp rope were discharged here.
 Of the 27 passengers aboard the steamer many of them were English and American missionary families returning from Far East stations. One of the English religious workers aboard was Miss Adeline Owen. Two of the American missionary families were William P. Knapp, Myrtle Knapp and Alta I. Knapp and George Rhoad, Nellie Rhoad, Gordon Rhoad, Owen Rhoad and George Rhoad, Jr.
 A Filipino stowaway aboard the steamer was allowed to land here.
 The Santa Cruz is in command of Captain R. Lobez. Timothy Carroll is the purser and James Black the chief steward.
 This steamer was recently chartered by the Pacific Mail from the Walter Grace Co. and is to be continued in the India trade. Only on return voyages will she call at Honolulu. On this voyage she left San Francisco August 8.

When residents of Cleveland move from one location to another they are required by law to leave their change of address with the police.
 A brush to be suspended on the outside of an automobile wheel to prevent it splashing mud has been patented by two London chauffeurs.
 The air raid upon Brindisi, on September 27, was renewed three times, "probably by three different squadrons." In a huge Austrian aeroplane, brought down by gunfire, were found besides bottles of brandy and wine, "a loaf made of some vile substance the nature of which could not be determined."
 Russian, German and Austrian delegates will meet at Copenhagen to discuss measures for improving the lot of prisoners of war. Prince Valdemar, uncle of the king of Denmark, will preside.

M. Louis Liard, the eminent French scholar, who was appointed vice-director of the Academie de Paris in 1902, has died, aged 71. He was a member of the Institute and a Knight Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor.
 The Abbe Parot, chief of the social organization of the diocese of Tournai, who entered a protest against the deportation of French citizens, and was sentenced to five years' imprisonment, has been transferred with 20 Belgian priests to the prison at Cologne.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

The president of the United States having appointed Thursday, the twenty-ninth day of this month of November as a day of national thanksgiving and prayer, I recommend that the people of this territory join in the observance of that day in a profoundly sincere manner.
 The greatest gift of the people of Hawaii has not been the extraordinary financial prosperity of the year of their wonderful liberality to Red Cross work and the financial support of the national government, but that the conviction is gradually permeating the body politic that true manhood and true womanhood are the foundations on which human society in this territory rests and that wealth or the pride of wealth cannot buy the virtues that go to make up a nation.
 We cannot forecast the future with a world so frightfully involved, but we can thank Almighty God that we have in Hawaii such numbers of all nationalities eager to sacrifice, that the nation may live true to the principles on which it is founded.
 Let us with deep appreciation thank the National Guard of Hawaii, that they of all voluntary organizations in the Union led in time and relative numbers and urge their desire for service may be granted.
 Pray not only for the spirit but the strong arm of righteousness.
 IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the Territory of Hawaii to be affixed.
 Done at the Capitol in Honolulu, this 10th day of November, A. D. 1917.
 (Seal)
 LUCIUS E. PINKHAM, Governor of Hawaii.
 By the Governor:
 (Signed)
 Curtis P. Pauka, Secretary of Hawaii.

TWO SEAPLANES ON WAY TO OAHU

Honolulu may expect soon to have the sight of seaplanes in flight and the sound of their buzzing motors an every day occurrence, for two machines are now on their way to Oahu.
 According to word that has been received from army headquarters two R-3 seaplanes have been shipped from Essington, Pennsylvania. They left the Pennsylvania city on November 3, approximately two weeks ago, and were directed to the 6th Aero Squadron, United States Army, Ford Island.
 Major Harold M. Clark, who arrived last week to take command of the local squadron, will have charge of the machines upon their arrival. Both of them have been used this summer for training the men that are being sent to France.
