HAWAII STUDENTS SCORE SUCCESS IN COMEDY BILL

"They are interesting," Miss Kane said, when she first made the acquaintance of the querulous old woman who lived at the Alice Adele Home. With her, all those agreed who witnessed the first presentation of "The Glory of Their Years," the College of Hawaii student play, at Lanikaia last night.

The story of this comedy is not strikingly original, although it made sufficient impression to earn the Macdowell prize of 1916 for its author. Six sizzling, idle old ladies, sit about the home which is provided for them by a wealthy businessman in memory of his mother. They have nothing to do but think of their afflictions, their stomachaches, their fears and the slights that are imposed upon them. When Helen Kane, a successful novelist in search of material for a novel, comes among them in the guise of a madam, she starts things that change the whole aspect of their lives.

It is not a play that calls for impassioned acting and the comedy is subtle but mirth provoking. Eileen Putnam as Amelia Miller, an aggressive, fiery old maid and Helen McLeas as Helen Kane, the novelist, seem to stand out from the rest of the cast, although the entire number has their parts with intelligence and understanding.

Honolulu has been fortunate in the ability of its amateur actors. Witness the different groups who have made the annual plays so successful. The students of the College of Hawaii who take part in "The Glory of Their Years" do not suffer through comparison.

"The Glory of Their Years," it seems, has been once rewritten and it might be revised once more, since it is inchasingly long in places. Aside from dragging, it is a good comedy, well acted and makes a splendid evening's entertainment. It will be given the last time this evening for on that occasion the entire seating capacity of the house has been sold.

Those in the cast are Lillian E. I. Sp., Grace H. Morgan, '19; Katharine Blake, Sp.; Ruth Farrington, '20; Eileen Putnam, Sp.; Rhoda R. Ballen, '21; Charles F. Poole, '20; William King, '21; Helen G. McLeas.

RUSS MUSICIANS CARRY TROUBLES TO THE POLICE

Political troubles in the Russian republic were apparently transferred to Honolulu last night, when a member of the Russian orchestra, playing on the Young Hotel roof, was assaulted by the hotel manager, Harry Stinson, according to allegations made to the police this morning. M. Filder, one of the Russian musicians, has sworn out a complaint against Stinson, and a penal summons will be served on the hotel manager, ordering him to appear in police court Tuesday morning. Filder, the complainant, alleges assault and battery. Manager Stinson this morning was inclined to treat the incident as more or less of a joke.

The trouble occurred last night. The Russian orchestra was furnishing the music while Ivan Bankhoff, Russian ballet dancer, and his partner were thrilling the roof patrons with the latest terpsichorean twirls. Filder alleges that late in the evening, during an intermission between dances, Stinson ordered the musicians to keep on playing. Filder complained, stating that they needed a rest. It was then that Stinson is accused of using threatening language. When the dancing was over at 1 o'clock the musicians packed up their instruments and departed via the elevator. Filder remained behind on the roof to look after several of his instruments. He alleges that Stinson, angered because the musicians refused to play longer than 1 o'clock, the regular closing time, that he threatened violence. The other members of the orchestra had already gone downstairs, when Stinson arrived at the roof and met Filder as the latter was entering an elevator, according to the complainant. It was then that the hotel manager grabbed the musician by the throat and assaulted him, the latter alleges.

Filder, accompanied by the orchestra, appeared at police headquarters this morning to swear out the complaint.

Manager Stinson said today that the Russians had, in their natural excitability, exaggerated a very small incident. "Last night they refused to play and to obey orders by my assistant, Mr. Davis," he said. "Afterward they all tried to talk to me at once, and in the confusion I took Filder by the coat-tail, so I could make myself heard by some one. There was absolutely no violence at all. As a matter of fact, I have an idea that they would like to force us to discharge them because they want to go to the Orient, and had already asked me to cancel their engagement and pay their fare out there. As for the 'violence' last night, it's a joke. They were excited, that is all."

RUSS DANCERS ON ROOF TONIGHT

Ivan Bankhoff and Miss Almes Maynard, who have appeared here in a series of Russian dances, will give their farewell performance on the roof garden tonight. They have been appearing on the roof since Wednesday evening.

Prior to coming to Honolulu Bankhoff and Miss Maynard appeared at many of the foremost theaters on the mainland, chief among which was a three months' engagement at the Winter Garden, New York.

CHINESE CABINET IS REORGANIZED

(Special Cable to Singapore JIB)
 TOKIO, Japan, Dec. 1.—The organization of the new Chinese cabinet was perfected today when Wang Chou-chen, the new premier, announced the following members: Wang Chou-chen, premier and minister of war; Lu Cheng-hang, minister of foreign affairs; Sun Bo Che, minister of the interior; Wang Ks-mih, minister of the treasury; Liu Tsung-yu, minister of agriculture and forestry; Chang Yung-min, minister of justice; Yuan Ke-fung, minister of education; Chou Gu Shai, minister of communications; Lu Chang-min, minister of the navy.

The new premier was formerly premier under the late Yuan Shih-kai, and at the time Yuan was making an effort to establish a monarchy, was one of the strongest supporters of the Manchus. Yuan Chi-ju, former premier, resigned on account of friction with President Feng Quock Cho, who took a mild attitude in the relations with Sun Yat Sen and other southern leaders.

SHOE BUSINESS BRINGS $9500

L. Ayan Shoe Company, including its business, goodwill and books of account, was sold at auction under dissolution of co-partnership by James F. Morgan Co., E. L. Schwarzberg officiating, at noon today, to Noa Aluli, attorney, for $9500.

Starting at $5000 the bidding quickly progressed by the thousand until an advance of $500 to the sticking point landed the property. The late partnership consisted of Leong Yau, H. Doo Jos, K. O. Kam and K. Yet Ching, and it is believed that Aluli bid in the concern for the senior partner, Leong Yau. After the sale the selling of shoes was resumed at the place of business.

Spanking or Reform School? Mamas Chose Former; Leal Does It

"Well, it's a case of either giving these boys a good licking or sending them to the reform school. Which would you rather have done?" asked Judge Heen in juvenile court today.

The mothers of two Portuguese boys, charged with robbing the Wai-lua store, thus called upon to act as the judges of their sons' fate, chose the easier method.

"Oh, judge, you please excuse them this one time," smiled one. "I think it's better you lick them good."

So Probation Officer Joseph Leal took the husky youngsters into the court room and, with the aid of a heavy strap which became part of the juvenile court paraphernalia when Judge Ashford held sway, warmed the mauls side of two pairs of khaki trousers. And the mothers promised that the boys would get another licking when the fathers got home from work.

Six other boys, also implicated in the burglary, were placed on probation.

CITY HOSPITAL MAY BE DOUBLED

If plans now under construction by the board of supervisors are favorably acted upon, Honolulu's emergency hospital will be enlarged to more than twice its present size. While the supervisors have not yet decided upon what action shall be taken in the matter, the suggestions have already been submitted to them.

If the plans materialize, the present hospital, located at police headquarters, will be extended back over the present jail yard for 30 feet and widened by 30 feet. Over the courtyard, a two story addition will be constructed. This will give space for a major operating room, an anesthetic room and bath on the upper floor. There will also be a lavatory, X-ray room and a private consulting and receiving room.

On the lower floor a men's ward and a woman's ward will be located. An elevator will be built to carry patients from the ambulance to the receiving and operating rooms.

WISSER RECEIVES REPORTS ON CAMP

Confidential reports concerning the national guard encampment at Kawaiahoa, which closed yesterday and which has been criticized severely during the last week, have been filed with Brigadier General John P. Wisser by the army instructors who attended the camp. It is understood that the reports will not be made public.

Concerning the "food riot" staged on the Inter-Island wharf last Tuesday afternoon when members of the Kaula battalion left the steamer and went up town for food, it is reported in guard circles that these men were supplied with food in their haversacks. It is charged that some of them made premature meals off of it, while others are said to have deliberately thrown the food away. These matters will be sifted by the board of officers that has been named by Adjutant General Samuel L. Johnson. The first meeting of this board was set for this afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Johnstone 15 Years in Revenue Service

Acting Collector of Internal Revenue Ralph S. Johnstone is today celebrating an anniversary. Fifteen years ago today he entered the revenue service as the "cub" deputy in the local office. Roy Chamberlain was collector of revenue at the time. Johnstone has seen four collectors come and go and is now holding down the job himself under the title of acting collector. His friends are hoping that 15 years of steady and faithful service may win for him a full collectorship.
