WEEKLY MARKET LETTER.

Eggs Dropping Fast Vegetables Scarce

Potatoes and Cabbage Should Be Sold Now.—Oranges Good But Cheap.—Hides May Go Lower.

HONOLULU, January 10, 1916.—The prices of all grades of eggs are falling and it is likely that they will go still lower. Producers should be sure to ship only strictly fresh eggs, and eggs which have not been wiped with a wet cloth, as eggs so cleaned spoil quickly. The pure food commissioner is inspecting island eggs more carefully than ever before, and will condemn island eggs that are stale just as quickly as California eggs. Be sure that your eggs are fresh when shipping.

There is a scarcity of poultry in the market at the present time. Chicken and ducks in good quantities meet a ready sale at good prices. Do not send this or sickly chickens to the market. The general run of green vegetables in the market is below standard and high in price due to the recent excessive rains. Island cabbage is selling well and is in good demand. Most of the coast cabbage is received in poor condition. Cabbage should be shipped in crates from other islands and not in bags. There is good demand for island potatoes but very few in the market. Producers should send them in while the prices are high.

Strawberries are commencing to come into the market and are selling well at 20 cents a pound. The sale for pohas is not steady. Some weeks several hundred pounds can be sold while other weeks 50 pounds cannot be sold and have to be dumped. Island oranges are very good this year, being free from the Mediterranean fruit fly. The price is low, however, due to heavy importations of mainland oranges which are selling at very low prices.

The condition of the hog market is about the same. The Division would be pleased to have the names of all hog raisers in the Territory as a matter of record.

Hides are bringing the same price as last week but according to advices from the coast there is likely to be another drop. Shippers having any quantity of hides would do well to unload at the present prices rather than take chances on prices going lower. The Division now has room for large quantities of produce and it is hoped that more consignments will be received from now on.

A. T. LONGLEY,
Supt. Ter. Marketing Division.
