Maui Man Kills Wife And Self In Honolulu

Manuel Gomes, an employe of the Pioneer Mill Company, at Lahaina, and well known also around Puunene, stabbed his wife to death in Honolulu on Tuesday morning, and immediately after thrust the same knife into his own throat, dying almost instantly. The killing took place at the home of Mrs. Margaret S. Andrade, in Huxtable Lane, a sister of the murdered woman. Gomes had been drinking heavily. He had followed his wife to Honolulu and complained to the police that she was unfaithful to him. Gomes, while a laborer on the Puunene plantation some years ago, in a fit of jealous rage, shot and injured his wife, for which offense he was sent to prison for a year and a half. The dead woman was a native of Maui. She was Hawaiian, her maiden name being Josephine Kallikane. She was 26 years of age, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kallikane, Jr., now residing in Honolulu. The deceased couple are survived by two small children.

By the Matsonia, arriving last week E. F. Delbert, the well-known pump engineer of the Puunene plantation, arrived home bringing with him, his bride, who he married in San Francisco just before the sailing of the vessel. They arrived on Maui last Saturday and have gone to housekeeping at Puunene. Mrs. Delbert was Miss Margaret Wagner of San Francisco.

Narciso Tolacion, the Filipino of Wailuku, who pleaded guilty of murdering a fellow-countryman several months ago, was sentenced by Judge Edging to 20 years imprisonment.

Jury Places Blame On Dead Engineer

Says Hana Disaster Was Due To Negligence—6 Dead 40 Hurt—But 2 Escaped By Jumping

Ukichi Nishiyama, the Japanese engineer who was in charge of the locomotive which with three cars filled with laborers plunged off a bridge into a gulch at Hana, on Thursday of last week, was responsible for the accident, according to the coroner's jury which sat in the inquest held over the six dead victims of the disaster. In each instance the verdict declares that the death was caused from "injuries received from the derailing of a locomotive and 3 cars with men over the Hanao bridge, Hana, County of Maui, through the negligence of the engineer."

The engineer thus blamed, was himself the sixth victim of his alleged negligence, dying 36 hours after the accident. He was badly crushed. He had been running an engine on the plantation for 13 years. A wife and 3 children survive him.

The coroner's jury consisted of Charles Bailey, Manuel Faustino, John Wilcox, S. Pupuhi, K. P. Ahao, and George Koholani. The coroner was County Sheriff Clem Crowell.

Was Not Watching Track.
Of the 46 men who were returning from work on the ill-fated train, but two escaped going into the gulch. They were Charles Kama and Seichi Nakayama. Both were sitting on the rail of the car with feet outside, and happened to be looking forward at the time. They saw the engine leave the rails and by promptly jumping probably saved their lives. They were unhurt and were the two principal witnesses before the coroner's jury.

The railroad track just before the bridge is reached, makes a slight curve, and it was on this curve that the locomotive wheels left the rails. It was 30 feet from point of derailment to the place where the plunge occurred, and the theory of the coroner's jury was that at the speed the train was running it could have been stopped had the engineer had his attention on his work. Instead of this, the evidence seemed to show that the driver was engaged in an animated conversation with Sumitaro Mura, a cane cutter, who had been picked up by the train a few minutes before and who was riding on the tender. He was one of the killed.

There was no evidence to show that the track was not in its ordinary condition when the engine left the rails, although the rail on the upper side was found broken over after the accident. The track had been in use all day long, and no trouble had before been experienced at the point in question.

Injured Are Recovering.
It is believed that all of the injured that are still alive will recover though some will probably be permanently crippled. Five of the most seriously hurt were brought to Wailuku this week and placed in the Malulani hospital where they will be able to receive better attention than in their homes.

BASEBALL DEADLOCK IS ENDED
At a meeting of the Maui Athletic Association held last night, a new schedule was worked out for the belated baseball series, which is to begin July 9, between Puunene and Wailuku. The second game will be between Puunene and Paia, on the 16. The deadlock in the league has been solved by Alvin Robinson's agreeing to play on the Puunene team, while Foster Robinson stays with the Palas.

WAILUKU SUGAR CO. TAX COMPROMISED
Attorney-General Stainback announced on Monday that the only appeal case on Maui, that of the Wailuku Sugar Company, has been settled. The assessment has been reduced from $4,500,000 to $4,100,000. In the Wailuku case the return was $2,750,000, so that the agreed assessment is a raise of $1,350,000.

Amateur Bank Robber Soon Comes To Grief
For climbing through an open window in the First National Bank of Wailuku, about 2 o'clock last Saturday morning, and getting away with $1.90 in cash and a counterfeit 50 cent piece, Manchu Baker, a young Porto Rican, was sentenced in the Wailuku district court to serve 1 year in jail. The would-be bank robber was discovered by Police Officer Joe Coelho, who called Cashier C. D. Lufkin, but the prowler made his escape before an entrance through the front of the bank could be effected. Later Coelho picked the man up on Market Street, having recognized him while he was in the bank. The cash in the burglar proof vaults of the bank was probably in no danger whatever from the amateur cracksmen.

Juan Josaldo, the Porto Rican, who chopped up a Mexican at Makawao during a drunken row was found guilty and sent to prison for a year.
