HONEY

1. Facts About Honey
One tbl. of honey furnishes 100 calories.
Honey consists of four parts sugar to one of water.
Honey is generally speaking just as digestible as cane sugar.
Honey keeps cakes and sweet crackers moist much longer than sugar. Island honey is delicious.

2. Honey Cakes
Beat 1 egg until light. Add 1 ts. butter, 1/4 cup strained honey. Mix in 1 cup flour, 2 ts. baking powder, 1/4 ts. salt and a pinch of cinnamon. Drop in spoonfuls on a buttered tin, and bake in a quick oven.

3. Honey Sponge Cake
Boil 1/2 cup sugar, 1/4 ts. cinnamon, 1/4 ts. ginger, 1/2 ts. soda, 2 cups bran, 1 cup flour, 1/2 cup honey, 1/2 cup milk, and 2 tbl. melted shortening. Bake in a hot oven in spoonfuls, on a buttered pan for 20 minutes.

5. Honey Fudge
Boil 2 cups sugar, 1/3 cup water until the syrup spins a thread. Pour over 2 well beaten whites, until creamy, adding 1 ts. vanilla. Pour into buttered pan.

6. Honey Custard
Beat 4 eggs until well mixed. Add 3 cups milk, 1/2 cup honey and flavor with cinnamon and salt to taste. Pour into cups set in water and bake in a moderate oven.

7. Honey Rolls
Take a piece of light bread dough when ready to work up, and work into it a tbl. of lard. Let it rise again then roll out thin in an oblong sheet. Spread liberally with butter, honey and a little sugar. Roll up as closely as possible. Cut in pieces about 2 inches long and arrange in a buttered pan on end and closely together. Let rise once more and bake in a quick oven.

8. Honey Cake
Heat 1 cup honey and 1/2 cup butter or shortening together. When almost cold, add 2 cups flour, 1 ts. soda and a pinch of salt sifted together. If not stiff enough to roll out, add more. Bake in a moderate oven for half an hour.

9. Honey Cookies
Make honey cake as above, add any desired flavoring, and roll out thin enough to cut with a cookie cutter.

10. Honey Fruit Cake
To above recipe for honey cake, add 1/2 cup raisins, 1 tbl. chopped citron and spices to taste. Mix and bake same as honey cake.

11. Honey Johnny Cake
Melt 1/2 cup honey with 1/4 cup shortening. Add 1/2 cup sour milk 2/3 cup cornmeal, 1 1/2 cups flour, 1 rounded ts. soda and a pinch of salt. Bake in a moderate oven.

12. Honey Pie Crust
Heat together 1/4 cup honey and 2 tbl. butter or crisco. When cold add flour enough to make a stiff dough. Sift in with the flour 1/8 ts. each of soda and salt. Roll out about twice as thick as a regular pie crust. Bake in an oven not too hot. These measurements are sufficient for one crust and cover.
Bulletin 653, of the United States Department of Agriculture, on Honey and Its Uses In The Home, is recommended to the housewife, for its many helpful facts and practical suggestions.

Dedication Of New Maui Church Soon

Henry Perrine Baldwin Memorial To Be Formally Dedicated September Second — Gift Of The Baldwin Family

September 2nd and 9th, will be of much interest and importance to all of central Maui. September 2nd will see the dedication of the splendid new building of the Makawao Union Church. This edifice is known as the "Henry Perrine Baldwin Memorial" and is the gift of his family to the church. At the same time the new pulpit bible which is the gift of the twenty-four grandchildren will be recognized. The first public use of the very complete Austin pipe organ will be made on this occasion. This organ is "In Memory of Leslie and Jared Baldwin." On September 9th the service will be grouped 'around the baptismal font which is the gift of many of the old-time Hawaiian and Japanese friends of Mr. Baldwin, who expressed the wish to have a permanent share in the recognition of one who was ever their friend and advisor.

Nearly a year and a half ago the family of the late Henry Perrine Baldwin decide to erect a lasting memorial to him which would also be of permanent value to all the people of central Maui, where he spent his life and where were located most of his commercial, social and religious interests. In place of the old church which rendered good service for a quarter of a century has arisen a stone one, much like the old church in general form. The site is the location of the old sugar mill where Mr. Baldwin began business for himself and where he met the accident which cost him his arm. This building in beauty and construction is a fitting memorial to one who was foremost in promoting and sustaining every forward movement in the commercial, civic and religious life of Maui.

One approaches this gothic structure with its massive Norman tower by broad steps which lead through the double doors into the vestibule. One is at once impressed with the appropriateness of all the appointments. On the north wall is a fine bronze memorial tablet. From the tower one passes to the lobby which is separated from the large Sunday school room at the right, by folding doors, and from the main auditorium which seats two hundred and fifty people, by a finely carved oak screen. At the far end of the lobby is a small class room. Looking toward the pulpit one sees the commodious choir loft with the organ pipes above and beyond. At the left of the choir loft is the choir room, at the right is the pastor's study. Below the organ and behind the choir is a flower room with cement floor.

The corner-stone was laid August 20th, 1916. The building is now completed. The exterior walls are of concrete faced up with lichen covered volcanic flow rock. The concrete is reinforced with steel and has a varying thickness of eight to twelve inches, and even two feet in the tower. The whole is bound together with steel ties. All the door and window openings, copings, bandcorners, buttress caps and window tracery are of glazed, dark biscuit colored terra cotta which harmonizes with the lichen covered stone. The roof is covered with tudor slate from Vermont. This slate is wide and thick in the lower courses, diminishing to a quarter of the size and thickness at the top. The roof framing is of heavy wood and steel trusses to sustain the seventeen tons of slate and plaster. Between the roof and the ceiling there is a large air space for ventilation. Ventilation has been carefully provided for.

All the exposed ceiling rafters, trusses, panelling to the walls, carved screen, carved tracery work, pews, doors and furniture are of American quartered white oak, polished to a dull finish. The floor where not carpeted is of oak rubbed to match the panelling. The vestibule is boored with Tennessee Verde Antique marble tiles with a moulded marble base.

The six memorial windows are from the old building and have been grouped in threes. In the east transept, in the center, is "The Sower," in memory of Mr. Baldwin. On the right is one to his father and mother, and on the left to the father and mother of Mrs. Baldwin. In the west transept, in the center, is a window to Dr. E. G. Beckwith who was for ten years the pastor of the church. On the right is one to Rev. T. S. Green who was the first pastor. On the left is one to Jennie Colville.

Throughout the church is lighted by electricity. For those who do not hear distinctly an accousticon has been installed in several pews. There will not be large demand for these since the accoustics of the auditorium are especially good.

The public offering on these two dedication Sundays are thank offerings of the people that this house of worship has been provided without cost to themselves for construction or equipment. Otherwise everyone would have been called upon to help. On the 2nd, the offering is for the Armenian Relief. On the 9th it is for the Hawaiian Board. This is a practical opportunity to express appreciation for benefits received and to assist two very worthy causes.
