A Department Of Domestic Economy Intended To Serve A Patriotic Purpose In Conserving Food Needed By The Allied Armies In Europe

HAVE A PATRIOTIC THANKSGIVING DINNER

The following remarks are authorized by the U. S. Food Administration for Thanksgiving dinner, as given in the Modern House. Three courses only for dinner have been accepted officially in America as sufficient number for war times. The Thanksgiving course is therefore simple. The soup and salads are simple and when ever it is possible, it is urged to have island fruits and vegetables substituted.

Turkey Thanksgiving Dinner
Approved by the U. S. Food Administration.

- Chilton turkey with a garnish of corn meal, sausage and sweet pickles
- Scalloped sweet potatoes and apples.
- Baked squash. Cranberry Sauce.

Recipes for above menu:
Chilton Turkey

Brush breast with oil or chicken fat and roast for half an hour, breast down on rack in dripping pan, with a half cup of water and one teaspoon salt, basting frequently. Turn turkey and cover breast with strips of celery. Fifteen minutes before it is done remove celery and dredge with flour and roast until brown. Garnish with strips of corn meal, tiny baked sausages and mixed sweet pickles.

Two cups hot mashed potato, two cups cracker crumbs, half cup sausage fat, salt, pepper, one and a half tablespoon poultry seasoning, cooked giblets, stock.
Mix potato, cracker crumbs and fat. Add half cup of giblets chopped fine moisten with hot stock that the giblets were cooked in and add sausage to taste.

French Fried Corn Meal Mush

Southern Cooked Chicken.
Cut chicken into pieces. Season and roll in flour. Into hot fat put the chicken letting it remain only long enough to brown and put into your baking pan. Pour over it any fat that is remaining in the frying pan, and into the frying pan pour water and pour this over the chicken. Cover at once and put in a slow oven for at least three hours, taking the lid off about half an hour before serving. The chicken can be left longer in the oven without damage.

Vegetable salad. Island mince pie.

Baked Rabbit
Split rabbit down the breast and lay in pan back down. Across the rabbit lay strips of bacon or fresh pork. Around the edges of the pan put whole onions and proceed as you would to any meat, basting often being careful not to break the onions. To serve put rabbit on platter leaving the bacon and placing the baked onions around the edge.

Caramelized Sweet Potatoes
Into a frying pan, put half cup of brown sugar and let it melt, stirring constantly to avoid burning. Add a little water and let it boil until smooth. Put into this boiled sweet potatoes and let them cook slowly turning often, until potatoes are brown and sugar is gone.

which will advance our agriculture manifold. Furthermore, it should open a profitable field for the small farmer who is dependent upon the labor of himself and family.
Cultural data in detail will be published from time to time by the Extension Division. It is also probable that the Sub-Station at Haiku will distribute seed of the most desirable varieties of beans for canning purposes when these are finally determined.
Maui women have been very successful in canning a large number of varieties of vegetables, fruits, chickens, etc. during the past year due to the efficient propoganda of the U. S. Department of Agriculture at Washington.

There is available for distribution at the Haiku Sub-Station, copies of an excellent bulletin entitled "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables". Free upon request.—F. G. K.

CARD OF THANKS
Mrs. C. R. Lindsey and children, Laha'na take this means of thanking the police department, Lahaina school and all friends for floral offerings and evidences of sympathy in their recent bereavement.

Foreshadowing A New Agricultural Enterprise.

November 21, 1917.
The Ha'ku Sub-Station made the first deliveries of string beans to the Haiku Fruit and Packing Company for experimental canning today. Some two hundred pounds in five varieties are included in this initial venture. One or two deliveries will be made weekly while the growing season lasts.

As previously reported, this is a co-operative experiment between the Agricultural Extension Division and the Haiku Fruit and Packing Company. It shows a commendable enterprise on the part of the cannery management. While doubtless many have thought of the feasibility of canning vegetables by the pineapple canneries during the off-season, it was not possible to interest canning concerns previous to the present project. Should the present experiment prove successful it will open the way to a type of intensive truck farming
