

Rules To Govern Business Exhibits

Big Structures For Territorial Fair Will Be Arranged To Aid Exhibitors In Securing Effective Display

Honolulu, May 8—Work of erecting four huge structures which will contain the main portion of the commercial exhibits at the Territorial Fair will begin Monday.

Herewith is given the complete set of rules fixed by the Fair Commission to govern all mercantile displays:

"For the housing of commercial exhibits, the Fair Commission will provide buildings 40 feet wide and of lengths varying from 160 to 320 feet. These buildings will be 20 feet high in the center and 10 feet at the sides, roofed with canvas tarpaulin and floored with rough 1 by 12-inch North-west pine.

"Aisles 5 feet wide will run the length of the buildings on both sides. Lateral aisles 6 feet wide will be placed every 32 feet, cutting the buildings into blocks 26 by 30 feet. These blocks will be divided into four parts, each of which will be 13 by 15 feet, containing 195 square feet.

"The price of the space within the blocks will be 30 cents per square foot. Exhibitors may close the lateral aisles between their booths by gaining the consent of other exhibitors bordering on the aisle and upon payment of 20 cents per square foot for the space gained.

"The Fair Commission will install in the center of each 13 by 15 feet booth one 200-watt electric light, with shade, free of cost to the exhibitor. The cost of installing extra lights shall be borne by the exhibitor. Lights may be kept burning between 7 p. m. and 11 p. m.

"No commission will be charged on sales made or orders booked in the commercial section. Pennants and like novelties, cigars, soda, ice cream, candies and other confections are not to be sold in any of the commercial buildings. These shall be sold only by concessionaires.

"It is expected that the buildings for the commercial exhibit will be ready by May 25, but the Fair Commission will not be responsible for any unforeseen delays which may extend this date. Immediately after the close of the Fair, exhibitors must prepare to remove their exhibits from the buildings, as these will not be kept standing longer than June 22.

"The Fair Commission will maintain guards on the fair grounds at all times but will not be responsible for loss or damage to any exhibit. Exhibitors are requested to maintain their own watchmen, and carry their own insurance, all of which shall be at their expense.

"Before engaging space, prospective exhibitors are requested to examine map of fair grounds and plan of buildings. Information may be secured at the Fair Commission office, 304 Kaula-keolani building, or from any member of the commercial committee."

BE OF GOOD CHEER
(By Rev. Jack Charles Villiers.)
On three different occasions our Lord is reported in the Gospels to have used the words: "Be of good cheer." He probably used them many other times, for "man of sorrow, though he was, his soul never yielded to discouragement.

To the helpless, paralytic, lying on a mattress, and carried into the presence of Christ by four friendly bearers, in infinite compassion and tenderness, he said, as the starting point in the healing which the paralytic sought: "Son, be of good cheer, thy sins be forgiven thee."

We are not told, in so many words, in the Gospels the story of the cause of the man's paralysis. But we are not left in doubt as to the fact that his own, personal sin had relation to it, and we may well believe, from our Lord's first words to him, that his craving for healing of the soul was not less than his craving for healing of the body.

On two occasions Christ is said to have used the words "Be of good cheer" in speaking to his disciples. First, to calm their fears when they were storm-tossed, and greatly afraid, on the sea of Galilee, he said to them, at the very moment when the supposed themselves deprived of his presence, "Be of good cheer, it is I; be not afraid."

But trust Him for His grace.
Blind unbelief is sure to err,
And scan His work in vain.
Again our Lord on the night before His crucifixion, in closing his address to his disciples in the upper room said: "In the world ye shall have tribulation: but he of good cheer; I have overcome the world."

iciency. Men everywhere, now they are coming to their sob-senses, are admitting that before the war the civilized world had so come to incarnate the idea of salvation by secular and material progress as to make the teachings of Christ, and especially his spiritual teachings, of no movement whatsoever. Slowly we are learning that we were going astray, and putting our trust in a broken reed. Before the war ends, or after it is ended, we shall, I hope learn, more vitally than we have, as yet, that the only power that can save the world from decay and destruction, is not secular, and material, but the truth as it is in Jesus. The hope of the world is in Jesus Christ, and in Him alone.

New Ballball Star Opening Sensation

If the opening game is any indication of the class of ball that will be shown throughout the season, then Maui is to have some sport. Even the opening game of the Junior League, when the Orientals met Paia Jrs., was a surprise in the class of ball played. A little more encouragement on the part of the fans of Maui should result in a most successful season.

At the next game the Wailuku heavy hitters will have an opportunity to inspect at close range the goods that Puunene is offering through Mr. Maher as agent for delivery. It is expected that the battery for this game will be Maher and Cockett, Bal and W. Cockett.

The first game will be between the Orientals and Cubs. In regard to the Junior League which is announced for this season, they are Junior in name more than in spirit, for they are putting up as high a class of ball as the seniors. The only object is to keep the teams more evenly matched, and prevent one-sided games as occurred last season. It also assists in the uncovering and development of youngsters to take the place of the stars of today as they begin to drop. With the proper encouragement this league will also furnish high class sport.

Haiku Farmers Have Had Wettest And Driest Years

A record of the rainfall at Haiku for a period of 20 years, has just been compiled by F. G. Kraus, director of the federal experiment station at Haiku, and is of considerable local interest. In commenting on the figures, Mr. Kraus says:

"It is interesting to note that during the short period of settlement by the homestead colony, both the wettest year, 192.87 inches in 1914; and the driest year, 48.69 inches in 1917, were experienced. These extremes of climatic conditions may well account for a large part of the difficulties experienced by these pioneers in diversified agriculture. The average annual rainfall, based on the twenty year period is 72.24 inches. If this average were fairly uniform, it would be considered a very favorable condition for a wide range of crops under non-irrigation."

The table, which covers the period from 1898 to 1917, inclusive, was compiled from records of the late D. D. Baldwin, Mrs. L. B. Atwater, and the Haiku experiment station, is as follows:

Table with columns: Year, Rainfall (inches). Rows include 1898-65.15, 1899-49.37, 1900-63.36, 1901-59.86, 1902-97.79, 1903-85.40, 1904-74.73, 1905-80.49, 1906-75.39, 1907-76.88, 1908-58.20, 1909-75.37, 1910-91.23, 1911-77.73, 1912-55.49, 1913-41.87, 1914-192.87, 1915-70.26, 1916-91.82, 1917-48.69.

Annual Aver. — 72.24 inches. *Record at Haiku Sub-Station.

Horace Goldin Coming To Maui

The wizardry of Horace Goldin, magician, conjurer and illusionist, despite its baffling nature, is among the most interesting and entertaining theatrical events which has ever been offered to the Maui public. Goldin's merit lies principally in the speed and "pop" he puts into this work. Whether it be catching live fish from out in the house to shooting nails through the body of his assistant or causing such things as a real woman and pianos and even a tiger to vanish into the air right under your very eyes, Goldin works with rapid fire thoroughness and bewilders by the speed with which he converts something out of nothing or vice versa.

Goldin has a bon vivant assistant in Miss Barbara Babington, a delightfully chic and entertaining comedienne, whose dainty songs are a decided asset to the performance.
