

Ban On White Flour Results In Surplus

But 15 Percent As Much Used Now As Year Ago—Food Board Calls On Merchants To Buy From Kahului's Surplus

The best evidence of the fact that the campaign to save wheat flour has been successful on Maui is perhaps the fact that there is now a surplus of white flour in some parts of the territory at least. The food administration office in Honolulu sent out notices last week to merchants calling attention to the fact that the Kahului Store and the McBryde and Makaweli Stores on Maui have surplus on hand and asking that they supply themselves through these sources for the time being. Honolulu wholesalers were also notified not to ship any flour to either Kahului or Maui until the stocks on these islands have been exhausted.

J. J. Walsh, manager of the Kahului Store, in speaking of the matter, stated that the demand had dropped so fast that they had been caught with so much white flour on hand that unless they could dispose of it through other merchants it would be necessary to ship some of it back to the coast to prevent its spoiling. He said that the sale of white flour for last April only 15 or 16 percent of the amount sold during the same month last year. Except for the fact that there is so much flour on hand, Mr. Walsh expressed the opinion that the food administration would before this have cut the proportion of white flour that may be bought with other cereals from 50 percent to 25 percent. There is no less need to save wheat than heretofore, but an error in calculation has resulted in a greater supply of flour in the islands than was needed.

Chamber Of Commerce To Study Kula Roads

What the attitude of the chamber of commerce should be towards helping secure roads and other public improvements throughout Maui, formed the basis of a general debate at the chamber meeting held yesterday afternoon. A resolution pledging the chamber to stand ready to investigate all matters of public welfare, particularly in connection with the public roads, and to assist in presenting such matters as are deemed important to the board of supervisors for its consideration, was finally laid on the table to be taken up at next month's meeting.

There was some difference of opinion as to whether the chamber should investigate any matters until they had been brought before the board by an individual or individuals and had been refused relief by the board. Several members held that the chamber would be "butting in" if it listened to complaints before the supervisors had had a chance to hear them. Others took the viewpoint that the chamber should act as a clearing house between individuals and the board; to help those who might have reasonable claims to attention, and to help the supervisors by bringing before them only matters that were worthy of taking their time to consider.

The matter was finally laid over to give more opportunity for consideration.

Kula Roads To Be Investigated

A number of kicks about the condition of Kula roads resulted in the appointment of a committee consisting of R. A. Wadsworth, R. B. Dodge, J. B. Thomson, R. A. Drummond, and George Copp, to look into the matter and report at the next meeting.

Letters To Germany Through Red Cross

J. J. Walsh, of Kahului, has been appointed as the Maui agent of the Red Cross to receive and transmit letters for delivery in Germany. Arrangement has recently been made by which the Red Cross is permitted to transmit purely personal messages between the United States and Germany.

Such letters should be brief and will be accepted only from persons believed to be trustworthy, and who can bring a letter from an American citizen vouching for their good faith and truthfulness.

Letters for Germany will be transferred to proper blanks in duplicate, and will then be subject to the scrutiny of Red Cross officials and of the government censors.

GERMANS MAKE SLIGHT IMPRESSION ON ALLIES

New York, June 11—Germans gained center in Noyon-Montdidier drive, but wings are holding strongly. In no place were lines pierced. On French front enemy was unusually reckless with lives. French army reports that every foot advance brings Germans further into territory prepared for defense and which is thoroughly familiar to the Allies. Every moment becomes more difficult for enemy. Allied staff is fully prepared and thoroughly confident. Germans are attempting to reach Oise to threaten Allies' salient extending to vicinity of Noyon.

Paris (Official), June 11—After 24 hours of new battle the impression grows that German hope will be unrealized. Allied line is bent in center but insignificantly and French opposition appears to be efficacious. Extreme violence of attack is the dominant note of the battle. Desperate attacks are made in huge masses. This seems likely to continue for some days. The real French line receded only at one point. At Reissons Sur Matz, Germans occupied several small villages including Mery, Belloi, and St. Maurice by repeated assaults and at great sacrifices. South of Reissons Sur Matz Germans gained foothold at Marqueglise. Reuter report says battle has raged with unabated fury since early morning but enemy is held on practically the same lines on wings despite reckless efforts.

To Look After Welfare

The fair association, in taking up both the boys' and the girls' work movements, has more than simply the idea of getting the young people into useful occupations. It aims as well to follow up their work and to provide for their welfare in various ways, particularly in seeing that their recreation time is profitably spent.
