"A Society Exile"

One of the most striking scenes in "A Society Exile," the latest Arcraft photoplay starring Elsie Ferguson, portrays a portion of the Grand Canal in Venice and is a faithful and beautiful reproduction.

"A Society Exile" is one of the best vehicles the talented stage and screen star has yet had. It tells the story of an American heiress who has written a successful novel and is taken by an aspiring aunt to England, where she is unjustly accused by a jealous wife of alienating the affections of her husband.

Driven from England by the scorn of society, Nora Shand, played by Miss Ferguson, takes up residence under an assumed name in Venice, where matters finally adjust themselves happily. The picture is from the celebrated stage play, "We Can't Be As Bad As All That," written by Henry Arthur Jones, the famous British playwright.

"Married in Haste"

William Fox has added to his force two more clever motion picture artists. They are Albert Ray—whom he is starring—and Elinor Fair.

"Married in Haste" is said to be a fast, snappy comedy drama. It deals with a young spendthrift who is forced to make good in business because of the scheming of his young wife to keep his own money away from him until he has done so. He does make good finally; but the road that he and his bride travel meanwhile is beset by many obstacles—most of them laughable. In their poverty they are mistaken for crooks; but his wife, always with her eye on the main chance, helps hubby into a position in which he does something beside spending money.

"The Misleading Widow"

A colonel and a captain figure prominently in Billie Burke's new Paramount-Arcraft photoplay, "The Misleading Widow." But the story hasn't a thing to do with the war. On the contrary, it is as delightful a screen romance as has ever captivated an audience. Miss Burke is the charming Mrs. Betty Taradine, who is popular with all the folks in the little New England village where she lies, except an old maid, who wonders what has been keeping Mr. Taradine away all these years, and several butchers and grocers and tradesmen of other kinds, to whom Betty owes money.

To hush up the insistent demands of these latter, Betty announces that her husband, who left her many years previously, is dead, hoping thus to collect his insurance. But Friend Husband isn't disposed to pass away so easily and shows up in the person of Captain Rymill, U. S. A. Whereupon Mrs. Betty is much put out, and complications ensue thick and fast. How they are finally straightened out is too good to give away. One must see the picture.

"The Market of Souls"

In "The Market of Souls," a new Paramount-Arcraft picture, Dorothy Dalton, the popular star, has a dramatic vehicle of the first rank. The story relates the adventures of Helen Armes, a country nurse, who comes to New York to follow her profession. There in the fast set in which her friends, the Howells, are leading lights, she meets men of both the vicious and manly type.

Two brothers, Lyle and Temple Bane, fall in love with her. Lyle is a rounder and attempts to take liberties with Helen. He is foiled by Temple, who is blinded in a tussle with his brother. Helen helps to nurse back his sight again, and a romance is budding, when Lyle revenges himself by telling his brother lies about the girl. Only after the evil brother has died a soldier's death in France does the truth come out and Helen and Temple are made happy.—Adv.

Italy Preparing For Big Victory Celebration Soon

ROME, Jan. 14.—Italy has not yet had its victory celebration. The ceremonies which were to have taken place early this month had to be postponed because of the d'Annunzio incident and the unsettled political conditions. But preparations continue and when the palms of victory are handed to the heroes of the great war early next spring it will be a celebration not excelled since the most glorious days of the Roman Empire.

Workmen are now engaged in making highways by which the troops may pass along exactly the route followed by the forces of Titus and Constantine when they returned to Rome along the Appian Way and made their way through the Roman Forum to the capitol. The victorious army will march under the famous arch of Constantine, through the arch of Titus, past the ruins of the Coliseum, which Titus built after his conquest of Jerusalem, through the historic ruins of the Roman Forum, past what remains of the Temple of the Vestal Virgins, up the Capitoline Hill to the Altar of the Father and, the monument erected to the illustrious Victor Emanuel II.

Since the days of the Empire the center of Rome has undergone many changes and it will require much temporary reconstruction to make it possible for troops to follow the ancient course of victors. Steps have replaced the ancient highway leading from the Roman Forum to the capitol. Consequently it will be necessary to build wooden roads over these to accommodate the cavalry and artillery. Part of this road has already been constructed and rises generally from the ruins of the tribune where Marc Antony delivered the funeral oration over Julius Caesar to the level of the approaches leading to the capitol steps.

Cannon and ammunition carts and motor lorries will replace the chariots and mortars dragged up the famous Capitoline Hill centuries ago. There will be no elephants and camels, no prisoners in chains. But aircraft will hover over the ceremony and attest modern man's conquest of the air, even though he has never been able to equal the art achievements of pagan Rome when it was capitol of the entire known world and all discovered portions of Europe, Asia and Africa, were ruled from the very spot where Italian soldiers will receive their palms.

BERLIN, January 14.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg bids fair to become a millionaire from his writings, according to the new Berlin Gazette. It is reported that he has sold some of his works in America for £12,000 which, at present exchange, would amount to about 2,000,000 marks.

The newspaper adds this comment: "The German army leaders understand the pound and dollar reckoning better than they did the U-boat charges, the strength of the American army and the American tanks."

What Modern Education Aims At Honolulu, January 27, 1920.

Dear Sir: I wish to thank you most heartily for the two splendid editorials in the Maui News of January 23rd.

With reference to Dr. Curtis' program, he represents the whole field of physical education and sound bodily development. In other words, we are thinking of the playgrounds not in the sense of mere sports or pastimes but in the sense of a thoroughly organized program for the development of strong, stalwart bodies. The recent war attracted universal attention to America's crying need of physical education. Heretofore public attention has been fixed upon a few star athletes and a few winning football teams. The great rank and file of school children have been woefully neglected. Your editorial hit the nail on the head.

The idea promulgated in the Portuguese paper "A Setta" that the public schools were to become subservient to the plantations is grotesque and absurd. The dominant spirit in modern education is that every boy, rich or poor, should be trained to earn a decent livelihood. What we are striving to do is not to develop one scheme of education for "peasants" and another scheme for the "aristocracy" but to develop a program that will make every boy who leaves the school a useful citizen, capable of paying his own way and capable of participating intelligently in all of his community responsibilities. The outstanding criticism against many private and so-called "finishing schools" is that they have lacked the spirit of American democracy and the spirit of civic usefulness. Genuine education is connected every intimately and vitally with the life interests of the local community.

Thanking you again for your article,

Very truly yours,

VAUGHAN MACCAUGHEY,

Superintendent.

As long as the Territory of Hawaii is a portion of the United States it is foolishness to talk of the introduction of Chinese labor. As long as the territory makes any claim to Americanism it is impossible to consider abrogating the immigration laws, or any part of them, for the pleasure or profit of this group. The suggestion to do so is nothing more or less than a scheme to seek personal profit at the expense of the country as a whole, and it is well for the proponent of such an idea that he has not publicly fathered it.

Be it clearly understood, to the Chinese the Post-Herald has no objections. Experience in Hawaii has proved them to be altogether the most desirable of the aliens to come here in large numbers. They have been here long enough to have been assimilated, and in the process have lent to the Hawaiians certain elements of shrewdness and thrift which was not inherent. The Chinese have proved good citizens in the past. If others came there is no reason to believe they would not prove equally acceptable.

But for reasons which it deemed ample and sufficient, the United States has placed a ban on Oriental immigration. If the reasons behind that action were good, it were better that the Hawaiian sugar industry should perish from the face of the earth than that those laws which affect us in common with, and thereby unite us to the rest of the nation should be abrogated for our benefit. If the reasons are not sound, let Hawaii welcome Chinese coolie labor only when the same men may gain admission to the continental United States.

One just cause of complaint on the part of this territory in the past has been that Hawaii has not been treated on a parity with the state in Federal benefits, although we have borne our share of the burdens. Throughout, our stand has been one of high and commendable patriotism. We cannot now seriously urge abrogation of a law which congress has believed to be the chief bulwark of the Caucasian, in order to increase somewhat the dollars we shall earn yearly.

In the mind of the department of the interior, the only final solution of the Americanization of this country is the breaking up of the large holdings into small homesteads owned and operated by citizens. There is no one thing in the world more directly inimical to such a scheme as the importation of large bodies of coolie laborers, whether from China or elsewhere.

To have any bona fide citizen of Hawaii seriously urge such a doctrine as abrogation of the immigration laws, insofar as they affect this country is a matter of deep regret. To have such an one receive real support, would be an indelible stigma. But that Hawaii should in fact ask such action of congress or that congress would accede should she do so, is quite incredible.

ELEVEN ARE ON TRIAL FOR CENTRALIA MURDERS

In the preliminary investigation many eye-witnesses said the first
