

...who have since been sent away by the French police, should find a refuge within the Belgian territory. The whole of the French population seems to have consensually been invited to "move on." Piedmont and Switzerland have also received hints on the subject, and it is said that, if they should not accede to the wishes of the French government, some more active measures will be adopted next spring, with the consent of Austria, to force them to do so.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

IN SENATE.
TUESDAY, January 6, 1852.
The Chair laid before the Senate a communication from the Navy Department, covering a petition from certain officers of the Navy serving on the Pacific coast, praying for an increase of their compensation.

THE TREASURY REPORT.
The Chair laid before the Senate the annual report of the Secretary of the Treasury. Ordered to be printed.

Mr. HUNTER moved that 10,000 extra copies of the report be also printed for the use of the Senate.

Mr. BRADBURY suggested, for the consideration of the Senate, the expediency of getting up a compendium of all the annual executive documents, striking out all the matter which is not generally useful, and retaining only that matter which is really valuable and interesting to the public at large.

The ten thousand copies of the Treasury report were ordered to be printed.

Petitions were presented by Messrs. SEWARD, WALKER, ARDENSON, BROWN, FLETCHER, WATSON, FISKE, PLUMMER, A. C. DODGE, and other Senators, comprehending a variety of subjects, but generally in reference to claims against the government.

Reports from committees were made, and among them—
Mr. HUNTER, from the Committee on Finance, reported back the bill appropriating $5,000 for the late burning of the library of Congress, and with an amendment appropriating $10,000 for the purchase of books for the said library.

Mr. HUNTER offered a resolution, instructing the Secretary of the Treasury to make a report on the expediency of making certain temporary arrangements for the accommodation of the library of Congress.

THE CENSUS PRINTING.
On motion of Mr. BACON, the Senate took up the special order of the day, the joint resolution providing that the joint committee of the two Houses on Printing, be authorized to contract with Messrs. BARNES and Armstrong for the execution of the printing of the work of the census of 1850, upon such terms as may be deemed reasonable.

Mr. BORLAND moved to amend, so that instead of the joint committee on Printing, the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House be authorized to make the specified contract. Mr. B. said that this amendment was not intended to amend the contract, but to give the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House the right to be in a proper form. [Message from the President of the United States.] This thing of going out of the Senate to contract or make bargains, or charter for the public printing, was a part of the proper duties of the committee on Printing to undertake this extraordinary task. The committee could not properly be charged with it—they were not so well qualified to make the contract as the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House. For himself, he asserted that he was not competent to perform the duty.

Mr. CASS argued that the committee were very properly the authority to be appointed to make the contract, and that they would find little difficulty or serious labor in the discharge of the task.

Mr. BRIGHT said that the effect of transferring the work from the committee to the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House, would be to put this job of the census printing to the lowest bidder, and we had had sufficient experience in this contract printing to know that if the work given out to the lowest bidder, it would be done in a proper manner, and it will not be done in time. The work, to be useful, should be exact and delivered to Congress when required for the purpose of legislation. The system of giving the work to the lowest bidder has completely failed of meeting this object. Besides this, the committee could make a contract which would assure the faithful execution of the printing, and would be able to control the work, though the clerks of the two Houses would not dare to make.

Mr. BORLAND repeated his objection to the extraordinary draught, which, by this contract, it was proposed should be thrown upon the committee. Nor did he know why the ministerial officers which he suggested could not dare to make the contract which the committee might make.

Mr. GWIN contended that the committee on Printing was the most appropriate committee to which this duty could be assigned. With regard to the labor, they would be relieved by the gentlemen to whom it was proposed to give the work, who would not only furnish the committee with all the necessary facts and figures for a correct understanding of the subject, as far as they might require to be informed.

Mr. CASS asserted the views of the Senator from California, maintaining that the duty of contracting for this public printing should be assigned to the joint committee on the subject. He also contended that the committee could make a regular and definite contract for the printing, and that the Secretary of the Senate, and the clerk of the House, would feel authorized to make.

Mr. BORLAND in reply, said he could not understand the force of the argument, that the committee could go further in this contract than the Secretary and clerk. It was an enigma to him which required explanation. He thought from the reports he had seen, that the gentlemen who were the best qualified persons for the duty.

Mr. BRIGHT said, he could explain this enigma. The effect of the amendment would be to give the work into the hands of the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House, and to make them responsible for giving out the work at more reasonable prices, and essential to its faithful execution. He then adverted to the pension law, which he had mentioned in his report to bad paper and bad printing, and always behind the time, the contracts were openly violated, in paper of quality much inferior than that agreed upon, or, for example, where it had been agreed to furnish one hundred dollars worth of paper, a fifty article had been furnished worth only four dollars, and even as low as two dollars and a half to the cent.

Mr. WOOD thought, that these were personal confessions, yet he did not know why the public printing could not be executed by contract even with the lowest bidder, when all our bridges, public buildings and public works, were executed by contract, and the same was done by Mr. PRATT suggested, that there would be less difficulty upon this subject if it were not for the consideration of giving out the public printing as a reward to public presses.

Mr. CASS contended by Messrs. BACON, GWIN, CLARKSON, BORLAND, BRIGHT, and A. C. DODGE, when.

Mr. BORLAND withdrew his amendment, but gave notice that this business was to come up with them in the matter. He knew his incompetency on this important duty, and could not undertake it.

Mr. ARCHISON was about making a suggestion in behalf of the Senator from Connecticut, when.

Mr. SMITH said that he had some views and suggestions to offer, which, he would like to mention, relating to the pension law, which he had postponed till to-morrow at one o'clock, which was agreed to, 22 to 18.

A message from the President was read, endorsing a resolution of the Secretary of State, in reference to the Cuban prisoners lately released by the Queen of Spain, and asking an appropriation to meet certain expenses in relation to the same, all of which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

And, after the consideration of several private bills, the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.
TUESDAY, January 6, 1852.
Prayer was offered by the chaplain, Rev. Mr. Morgan. The journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

COMMITTEE TO WAIT ON KOSUTH.
The SPEAKER appointed the following committee, under the resolution passed yesterday, to wait on LOUIS KOSUTH and introduce him to the House of Representatives: Messrs. STANTON, of New York; CLARKSON, of Kentucky; GWIN, of Tennessee; STANTON, of Kentucky; and PLUMMER, of New Hampshire.

THE GREAT INVENTION OF THE AGE!—Steam Supplanted! Gas Triumphant!
THE first half of the nineteenth century will be recorded as the age of Steam. It has passed, and with it will pass the steam engine with the things that were.

THE second half of the century will be known as commencing the age of Gas—an agent destined not only to light but to enlighten the world. This age has now commenced, and with it is now introduced the Gas Engine.

Prof. John C. Salomon, after twenty-six years of close observation upon the experiments of his own and of others in attempts to make the principle of the condensation of carbonic acid gas available as a motive power, has perfected the same, and, having just received letters patent for "Improved Carbonic Acid," now offers to dispose of rights for the use thereof to the U. S. States government, and to individuals or to companies, the rights of States, counties, cities, &c.

The immense saving of money and labor, and of human lives and suffering, secured by the use of this new motor, will inevitably insure its speedy adoption in all places where steam power is now used, and in the great cities, where the great expense, bulk, and weight of the steam engine has precluded its use.

This new motor may be applied to all purposes as a propelling agent, from the single-horse power for the cotton-gin to the two thousand-horse power ocean steamers, with the expense less than that required by the steam engine, of boilers and furnaces, fuel and firemen, and of bulk and weight—100 tons weight sufficing for the same power of 1,900 tons of the steam engine.

These facts are established by the experimental engine of twenty-five (25) horse power, now "working well" at Cincinnati, as noticed in the following from the Cincinnati Nonpareil of the 18th instant:

"We are pleased to state that J. C. Salomon, late of this city, has received a patent for his motor of carbonic acid gas, in application to an engine. The successful experiments of this invention were not long since given in the Nonpareil. The same gentleman has received another patent for the steering and propelling power."

LIFE OF JOHN RANDOLPH OF ROANOKE
By Hugh A. Garland. Two volumes 12mo. Portrait $2.50.

Mr. Garland has given us a degenerate "eye of a character more eccentric and variable than Uranus itself, and withal, two volumes of exceedingly good historical reading."—Charleston Mercury.

"A good life of this remarkable man has been desired. Mr. Garland has furnished an excellent readable book, the two volumes not only contain the history of his life, and analysis of his character, but an interesting account of the politics and the public men of the day."—Wrentham.

Since Kennedy's life of William Wirt, we have had no biography, so interesting and accurate as this work. It must be read by multitudes with intense interest."—Newark Daily Advertiser.

Mr. Garland has made good use of his materials, and has given a striking and accurate portrait of the erratic and brilliant subject of his pen."—New Orleans Delta.

This book fills a blank in the biographical notices of distinguished Americans. The two volumes give us a faithful account of his whole career, an analysis of his celebrated speeches, &c."—Philadelphia Enquirer.

"As a biography, it is marked by directness and unity of purpose, and by comprehensiveness and variety of manner."—Boston Post.

"It is one of the most interesting American biographies which we are acquainted with."—See my Post.

"The work is written in an easy and beautiful style, and is replete with striking passages. The author is intimately acquainted with American literature, and the great men who, at different times, have played a distinguished part in the drama of the Republic. It forms a valuable addition to our national history."—Valuable Review March 17—d—t—w.

PROSPECTUS
OF THE GLOBE—THE CONGRESSIONAL NEWS-PAPER.

This prospectus of Congress calls for the renewal of my proposals and preparations to spread its pages of the public. The success of my plan has hitherto attended this undertaking it is hoped will continue, and enable me to perpetuate the full history of the proceedings and discussions of the Senate on which the destiny of the Republic depends.

The adoption of Congress has given the GLOBE an official character as the reporter of all that is said and done in the body. This sanction has been granted at every successive session for many years, and by members of all parties. The press, of all parties has borne testimony to the fidelity with which the duty thus confided has been performed. The accuracy of the reports, taken at random from the general expression in favor of the work, are submitted in proof of its fullness, fairness, and usefulness. I am compelled to omit, for want of room, a page of notices which are in type.

The great celebrity with which the letter-writers for the distant press circulate through the telegraph their hurried accounts and views of the progress of Congress, renders more important than ever the full and exact official reports of the CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE. The haste, and in many instances ex parte, relations by telegraph of what occurs in Congress supercede, for the most part, the exact reports taken down by reporters, and which formerly, in a shape more or less abbreviated, went the rounds of the press. Now the telegraph accounts, with all their imperfections and variety of coloring, take the run of the country, and no one but the official Congress reporter publishes the full debate with the proceedings of both Houses unamplified. Indeed, no newspaper can give them, and have room for advertisements of the same magnitude, and at the same time, and instance. While, therefore, the telegraph ministers to the eager appetite of the public for Congress news, and meets the necessities of the political press, by furnishing a rapidly-written epitome of the proceedings of Congress, perfect information of what passes in Congress is greatly diminished. The circulation of the official reports has, to some extent, cut off by the crude and uncorrected reports, flying along the electric wires, statistics curiosity, and is also in vain that truth puts on his boots to follow. Still there are a great many men of leisure and thought who like to see what is actually said and done in Congress, and who are desirous to see the full and correct impressions altogether from galvanic batteries. There are others, too, who, for the sake of the future, willingly patronize a work which preserves a record of the doings of the great assembly of controlling power in the Republic.

The undersigned has made preparations commensurate with the increased importance of the duty he has undertaken as the only reporter and corrector of the proceedings and proceedings of both Houses of Congress. The coming session will probably be extended nine months, and the reports will not be comprised in less than 3500 royal quarto pages of briefer and nonpareil type, and will contain not less than 800 pages of the reports for the last long session made 3896 royal quarto pages, and were bound in four volumes, averaging 974 royal quarto pages each.

It will publish in the Appendix for the next session, all laws that may be passed during the session, which has not been done heretofore. Although this will increase in no small degree the expense of the publication, the subscription price will be the same that it has been for several years past.

THE DAILY GLOBE will be published during the session on a superfine double royal sheet. It will contain the laws as taken down by the reporters, and will be altered by the printer, and the printing, be advertised in the Appendix, and in Lists, which will be forwarded to every Shareholder.
