Letter from New York.

(CORRESPONDENCE ARIZONA MINER.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 3, 1869.

Albert D. Richardson, the journalist who was shot on Thursday, Nov. 25th, by Daniel McFarland, died at the Astor House yesterday at 5 a. m. Two days prior to his death, he was united in marriage to the divorced wife of McFarland. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, assisted by Rev. O. B. Frothingham. This marriage has caused a vast amount of talk, and not a few are greatly surprised at Henry Ward Beecher's consenting to perform the ceremony.

Richardson's own actions were the cause of his death. He seduced McFarland's wife to desert her husband, take up her residence in Indiana for a time sufficient to obtain a divorce and then return to him.

Politically, New York is very busy just at present, preparing for the charter election, which takes place on Tuesday next.

The question occupying the minds of our citizens just at present, is that of annexing Brooklyn to New York.

Business here is very quiet and every prospect of remaining so for some time.

Walnuts and Locusts. The San Jose Mercury thus describes the proper mode of growing two valuable trees:

The black walnut has a longer tap root than the locust, and will grow on dryer soil, but there is no difficulty whatever in raising locust anywhere in Santa Clara valley.

The scouting expeditions in Arizona have given us much useful information, and a few fertile valleys heretofore unknown have been found.

AN EXTENSIVE COUNTRY—NUMBER OF TROOPS IN ARIZONA. In administering an extensive military department like this, containing over 450,000 square miles, or greater by 100,000 square miles than the original 13 States, occupied by a population of savages estimated at from 50,000 to 75,000, garrisoned by 3,000 men, or three to every 450 square miles, who are scattered in 30 posts, camps and cantonments, many of them only accessible at certain seasons of the year...

General Ord's Report. THE INDIAN WAR IN ARIZONA. My return of expedition and scouts will show the success of the troops in reducing hostile Apaches and kindred tribes.

Sketch of the Spanish Cortes. A Madrid correspondent of the Boston Journal thus sketches the Spanish Cortes: What a droll session this last of the Cortes has been!

Sketch of Rochefort, the French Revolutionist. The Paris correspondent of the London Herald gives the following pen-and-ink sketch of this irreconcilable agitator: Hurrah! hurrah! and one cheer more!
