A COMMENDABLE BILL.

Senator Ragsdale's bill in aid of the California Home for the Care and Training of Feeble-Minded Children should pass.

In practicing economy the Legislature is not expected to cut off State institutions from State obligation to support them.

What the people ask and no more, is that there should be no extravagance, no tapping of the treasury for the mere purpose of erecting or enlarging State institutions to gratify local ambition, to have public money expended in the erection of public works not absolutely needed.

Such a reckless policy was that of the last Legislature. It founded institutions at enormous cost that were not imperatively needed. Sectional demands for State asylums and other institutions prevailed over protest in favor of wise economy.

Such action was distinctly disapproved by the people at the last election. But it is not the desire of the public sentiment that any institution established and having obligations for the care of unfortunate wards of the State should be starved, or deprived of any necessary means for its proper conduct.

In the whole range of public charity we know of no more beneficent output of public money than that spent to conserve the Home for the Care and Training of Feeble-Minded Children. The Home was at first ill located and thus crippled in its work. It was a wise action to remove the institution to a locality where the most essential phase of its work could be better carried on—that is, the training of these unfortunates to some usefulness in society, instead of remaining all their lives helpless beings.

The new location is at Glen Ellen, Sonoma county, and as it is less than two years since legislative sanction was secured for its removal and the construction of proper buildings in lieu of the old and ill-situated ones, it can be readily understood that the institution must have been hindered somewhat in its beneficent work.

It is absolutely necessary to accommodate the demands upon this great philanthropy, that all buildings needed should be supplied, and all its unfinished structures brought to speedy completion.

The main, or administrative, building must be finished, and a building known as the "boys' wing" must be supplied to meet the necessities of the work of the institution; some interior needs must be responded to and an engine-house erected for the protection of the machinery of the motive power.

That the Legislature will respond to the appeal of the directorate of the institution we have not the slightest doubt. Behind the institution and its work is the noblest philanthropy and the rarest benevolence. The hearts and hands of unselfish men and women are conserving the work and giving to it the best energies of useful lives. No other State institution enlists so much of private assistance, the time, labor and purses of so many men and women. The progress of the institution, from its inception, has been most gratifying, and there is full promise that we will accomplish more in California in the training of the feeble-minded to usefulness, than has been achieved in any other State.

In this connection it should be noted that a separate bill is before the Senate, providing for the sale of the old property of the institution, with the approval of the Governor, and that the proceeds shall be paid into the general fund of the State Treasury. What is now asked for the Home, therefore, will not, in the aggregate, be really drawn from the treasury, since it will in part be supplied by the sum derived from the sale of the Santa Clara property.

DEATH OF KALAKAUA.

The death of the King of Hawaii in San Francisco yesterday is peculiarly a sad event. That the head of the Hawaiian Government should die so far from his island kingdom, and in a land of strangers, is especially sad. The King was not a remarkable man, yet with all things taken into consideration, he made perhaps as good a ruler as would any untitled native of his land, and we of all people can cover his errors with the mantle of charity.

Hawaii is related to us with peculiar closeness. For that Government Americans have the kindest feelings. Our trade is large with the islands, and continually increasing, and the promise of our closer relationship with them is strong.

Moreover, the spirit of friendliness and respect between Hawaii and the United States has been sincere and broad, outside of the interests of commerce and reciprocal exchange of products. We therefore condole with the Hawaiians in the death of their constitutional ruler with feeling and in all sincerity.

Kalakauna began his reign with high purpose, and inaugurated his rule by many wise and beneficent acts. His aim was to elevate the people by education, strengthen their relations with foreign nations, build up local industries, and induce desirable immigration. To a great extent he succeeded. He was fettered and hindered by numerous petty revolutions and the contentions of foreigners, and was shorn of much of his kingly powers by constitutional enlargement. By travels in many lands he expanded his views of government, and showed a sincere desire to introduce reforms. Unfortunately, he was led into extravagant expenditures, ran the Government into debt, corruption became rank in Government offices. Elections were controlled by vicious means, dissatisfaction grew among the people, notably the whites, who pay the most of the taxes, and revolution followed, to which the King submitted, and a new constitution was promulgated in 1877.

Through all his troubles Kalakauna manifested constant friendship for the United States and a sincere desire to maintain with America the closest possible relations, and we cannot forget that to his administration we owe the Reciprocity Treaty, which has been of such great value to the United States.

THE RIVER COMMISSION.

The Federal Commission of Engineers to report to Congress what is needed to restore and preserve the navigability of the Sacramento River is now passing up that stream. The commission meets the people at different points and gives them brief interviews. What the people should do is to prepare their data and make their statements in writing, and file them now or later with the commission. The engineers have at their command all the facts gathered by the State Engineer during eleven years, and all the data of the State River Examining Commission of last year. They will, therefore, be fully informed upon the history of the stream, causes of its decadence and theories for its restoration.

We have reason to expect from the commission a practical, straight-forward statement of the facts, with recommendations as to what work should be provided for by the Federal Government. Congress, by the legislation already had, and by the ordering of this commission, has fully committed itself to the responsibility of the Government to conserve the reclamation of the stream. All that is now needed is official information as to the needs of the river, and this it is expected the present examining commission will fully supply.

THE SENATE BILL OF MR. G. J. CAMPBELL to make train wrecking punishable as a crime may well be considered. We cannot see why there should be any distinction between the punishment for the crime of murder and that for the wanton throwing of railway trains from the track. The crime is one of the worst forms of plotting against human life and assault to kill. If a train is wrecked by the act of one who purposely derails it, it should not inure to his advantage if it happens that no one is killed. He wrecks the train with full knowledge and expectation that the result will be the loss of human life. The cowardly act of the train-wrecker is infinitely more heinous than that of the man who in passion, for revenge, or to rob, shoots down a victim.

SENATOR HEACOCK proposes a constitutional amendment for the election of a Board of Pardons. It is an idea of merit. The trouble is that this patching up of the Constitution is dangerous—there are now twenty or more constitutional amendments proposed. If half of these pass and are submitted, some of the most vital parts of the Constitution will be revolutionized, in case of adoption. Yet it is very unlikely that one-half of the voters will consider them as they should be in order to secure intelligent action. Nevertheless, Mr. Heacock's proposition is in line with right action and wise policy.

We trust that there will be left unturned no stone by the Sacramento delegation in the Legislature to rid Sacramento of the intolerable burden of paying the salaries of two Justices of the Peace, for whom we have not the slightest use. It ought to be possible to relieve the people of this burden. If it cannot be done, it will be a grievous hardship. But we believe that the incubus can be cast off, and that the folly of paying $4,000 a year for officers who are no carthly use to the people can be abandoned.

THE SENATE BILL OF MR. W. H. WILLIAMS, providing that policemen shall have ten or fifteen days leave of absence each year without any deduction from salary, is unfair to other municipal and State employes. If the rule proposed for the benefit of policemen is defensible, then why not include in its benefits all paid employes of municipalities and the State?

BURNS AND SCALDS are quickly relieved by applying Russia Salve. Its cooling nature allays the pain, and gives a soothing sensation to the parts affected. As a Dressing for all wounds and sores, it is superior to every other preparation. Ask your Druggist for it. Price 25c, 50c, and $1.00 a box.

"FAIR AND FEARLESS"

"Models of Versatile and Vigorous Journalism."

[Pleasant Mountain Democrat, Jan. 17.]

The Sacramento Record-Union has achieved the crowning glory of a great newspaper. It has perfected its valuable plant by adding to it a lightning press—the demonstrative proof of modern miracles in mechanics. With such a consummation of beginnings cœval with the history of the commonwealth, it has survived more than eighty of its local contemporaries, and is now a vivid embodiment of force and favor, upon which the shadow of death shall never pass.

It is in all respects worthy of the civilization it has championed, of the prosperity it has promoted, and of the supremacy it has achieved. Of all its contemporaries it has had the most unbroken succession of able managers and right royal editors.

We rejoice in the assured prosperity and influence for good of the UNION. It is a fair and fearless advocate of Republican policies, but seldom gives to party what belongs to mankind. Its daily, weekly and Sunday editions are all and always models of versatile and vigorous journalism.

REGULATOR

"I have used many remedies for dyspepsia, liver affection and debility, but never have found anything to benefit to the extent that Simmons' Liver Regulator has. I sent from Minnesota to Georgia for the remedy, and would have sent further for such a medicine. I would advise all who are similarly affected to give it a trial, as it seems the only thing that never fails to relieve."—P. M. JANNEY, Minneapolis, Minn.
