

SECRETARY WINDOM.

He Suddenly Expires at a Banquet in New York.

HEART DISEASE THE CAUSE OF HIS DEATH.

Universal Sorrow at Washington Over the Announcement - Mrs. Windom Prostrated When the Sad Tidings Were Conveyed to Her - Brief History of the Secretary's Life - His Last Speech.

Special to the RECORD-UNION.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Hon. William Windom, Secretary of the Treasury of the United States, died to-night at 10:30 o'clock, in the banquet hall at Delmonico's, where he was a guest of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation.

He had been the first to rise at the evening. He had finished the response, seated himself, swooned at once and died almost immediately. Every effort to restore him was made, but in vain. He died of heart disease. The great assemblage at once dissolved.

Mr. Windom had been the only speaker, and the sentiment to which he responded was, "Our Country's Prosperity Dependent Upon Its Instruments of Commerce."

In the early evening the members of the Board of Trade and Transportation gathered in the reception parlors of Delmonico's and welcomed their guests and friends who had come from near and far. Perhaps the most prominent were Secretaries Windom and Tracy of the Treasury and Navy Departments, respectively.

Nova Scotia had a representative among those present in the person of her Attorney-General, Mr. Longley. Canada, too, was there in the person of Hon. Wilford Laurier.

Mr. Windom, dignified of mien, as usual, was apparently in the most perfect health. All formed a jolly procession to the banquet-hall, where the members and guests were seated, the members at the tables upon the floor and the guests at a long table upon a raised platform.

The aged Captain Amrose Snow, President of the board, was in the center place. At his right he seated Mr. Windom and at his left Mr. Bayard.

The dinner was completed shortly after 9 o'clock, and Windom, introduced by Judge Arnoux, responded to the toast, "Our Country's Prosperity Dependent Upon Its Instrument of Commerce."

He finished his speech at 9:55 o'clock. It had been remarked that he was reading it off hurriedly from a printed copy, going faster and faster as he neared the end, and, at last, he had requested the audience to applaud.

A quiver of fear shot through the assemblage like an electric shock as the speaker finished. Mr. Windom was standing erect under the glare of the gaslights, with the faces of all turned toward him. For a moment the Secretary stood silent, while the banqueters, equally silent, watched him. It was a moment that no one who was present will ever forget.

Then Mr. Windom sat down quietly, too quietly, many thought, in his seat, and the toast master, Arnoux, arose to introduce ex-Secretary of State Bayard, as the next speaker. He began a short speech, but had not proceeded far when Mr. Windom gave a short, sharp moan of anguish and fell back in his chair.

His face grew purple, his lower limbs stiffened and he lay under the table. His eyelids opened and shut spasmodically, but there was no gleam of intelligence in his eyes, which were rapidly losing the lustre of life. The cigar which he had been smoking was held between the grim clench of his teeth. For only a moment he appeared thus. A cry went up from those sitting near the guest table, "Look, look at Mr. Windom!"

Every eye was turned toward the man whose voice had just ceased. As they looked, he collapsed, in his chair, and was falling to the floor. His face was ghastly and a cry of horror arose from the late festive banqueters.

Judge Arnoux, on retiring with the unconscious man, had announced that Windom had only fainted, and it was not thought by those remaining that it was as serious as it proved to be.

When it was officially announced that the Secretary was dead, Secretary Tracy at once went to the nearest telegraph office and sent a message to President Harrison, informing him of the untimely death, and requesting him to communicate with Mrs. Windom, and have her start on the 11:10 p. m. train for New York. This will bring the widow to this city by 7 o'clock in the morning, and not until then can any arrangements be made for the removal of the body.

The scene that ensued when the death was officially announced, is beyond description in mere words. Gradually the guests departed, and a death certificate was issued by Dr. Robinson and Robinson, giving the cause of death as first, cerebral hemorrhage; and second, coma.

Undertaker Huyler, of Grace Church, was summoned, and put in charge of the remains. The body was taken to room 25 of the St. Ann Hotel, where Secretary Tracy and Attorney-General Miller resided.

President Harrison telegraphed to President Harrison that the body should be sent to Washington on a special train in the morning, in charge of a special committee.

William Windom, Secretary of the Treasury, was born in Belmont county, Ohio, May 10, 1827. His parents had migrated to that region in 1810. He was educated at a farm, was educated in the academy at Mount Vernon, Ohio, studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1850. He became a Republican party, but was elected as a Representative for ten years, serving on the Committee on Public Lands and Expeditions.

He was elected to the Senate in 1870 to fill an unexpired term, and was afterward elected for a new term, and re-elected in 1876. He was elected Secretary of the Treasury in 1877, and served in that position until he was recalled by President Harrison to his former post.—Eds.]

THE NEWS AT WASHINGTON.

Universal Sorrow Over the Secretary's Sudden Death. WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The announcement of the sudden death of Secretary Windom in New York was so terribly sudden and unexpected that all who heard the news were profoundly shocked and so overcome as to be unable to express the grief they felt.

As soon as the telegram bearing the sad intelligence was received by the Associated Press, it was immediately communicated to President Harrison at the White House. He was in the library at the time, talking with Mrs. Harrison. He received the message with a gasp, and immediately ordered his carriage and drove to the house of the Postmaster-General, but a few blocks away, where a cabinet dinner had been in progress, and from which he returned hurriedly to the White House.

He followed the dinner, so that he had not had dinner. Mrs. Windom and her two daughters and Mrs. Colgate, of New York, who is visiting them, were among those present.

As soon as the President arrived, he had a hurried conversation with Secretary Windom, and then he went to the Postmaster-General, and told them the grief that had befallen them. They then privately informed Mrs. Colgate, of Mr. Windom, who, when he was in Washington this morning he seemed in the best of health and spirits.

The President, who is a member of the Cabinet, while still at the Postmaster-General's house, he covered his eyes with his hands and moved away without uttering a word, so greatly was he moved. He subsequently said he regarded it as a great calamity, which afflicted him sorely.

Secretary Blaine, in speaking of Mr. Windom, said he was a very valuable member of the Cabinet, and had worked with intense zeal since he entered upon the duties of his office. His death was a great loss to the Administration. He was exceedingly popular with the members of the Cabinet, Mr. Blaine said, and he did not think of them ever had an unfriendly word with him since the Cabinet was formed.

Secretary Proctor said words could not express the feeling that all experienced in the Secretary's death. His personal relations had been most friendly.

IRON MOUNTAIN (Mich.), Jan. 29.—The Chagrin mine, the largest and most productive in Michigan, caught fire this evening and at a late hour the fire is still spreading. Eight miners under ground cannot be rescued. They have probably succumbed to the smoke. The tops of all the shafts have been closed in hopes of smothering the flames. Almost the entire populace are surrounding the mine, waiting for some news from the unfortunate victims.

THE MAMMOTH ACCIDENT.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 29.—A special from the Mammoth mines says: "This afternoon it was discovered by the rolls of the company that there are twenty-three more men missing in addition to the 107 found dead. This increases the total of the dead to 130. Twenty-seven more dead miners were buried to-day.

There is nothing to be done at the Mammoth mines now but to search for the remaining dead and care for the living. A legislative committee from Harrisburg is now in the city, and Fricker & Co., owning the Mammoth mine, have put aside $25,000 for the immediate relief of the hundred distressed miners, in addition to paying all the funeral expenses.

Lively Shooting Affray Between Chinese Highbinders.

FINAL TRIAL TRIP OF THE CRUISER SAN FRANCISCO.

The Southern Pacific Railroad's Round-House at Portland Destroyed by Fire - Gas and Oil Discovered in Humboldt County - Jones Re-elected Senator From Nevada - Petition for the Impachment of a Washington Judge.

Special to the RECORD-UNION.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—Twenty shots fired in rapid succession on Jackson street, near Stockton, about one o'clock to-day, threw Chinatown into a fever of excitement.

At that time Yee Sue You, Lim Ah Loy and Lo No, three murderous highbinders, were crossing Jackson street when Wong Ah Foo, a fish canner and a recent arrival from Alaska, stepped up and asked Yee Sue You for $4 which has been little damaged.

Wong turned to retreat just as Yee's companions pulled their weapons. Immediately the trio opened fire, and eight men were discharged as Wong flew down Jackson street toward Dupont.

He fell near the corner, but managed to get up and continued his flight up Dupont to Clay and from there to Church Alley, where he entered a lodging house. He was further charged by Judge Sachs, who heard them coming up the stairs, and flew out of a window and regained the street, and ran back to Washington street and found refuge in a house near the theater.

Shortly afterward the officers arrived and took him to the Receiving Hospital, where Police Surgeon Bunker made an examination and found that he had been struck in three places. One bullet took him in the right side, the other in the right side of the neck and one hit the thumb of the right hand.

None of the wounds, however, are of a dangerous nature, but the bullet which entered the body glanced around a rib and came out at the back.

The highbinders shot in the most reckless manner, and bullet took a flight down Jackson street and hit a man in the hand on the corner of Kearny. The bullet was about spent, and caused but little harm.

A visit to the scene of the shooting showed the careless manner in which the men handled their weapons.

The windows of the saloon at 721 Jackson street were badly splintered, and one bullet entered a barber shop and flew by the head of a Mongol that was having his toilet arranged.

As Chinese New Year approaches, the danger of Chinese shooting scrapes increases, for during the latter part of the year the Chinese are out to settle their accounts, and many misunderstandings occur.

Chung Woei Sam Hing, Ong Goen and Wah Yee are the most notorious of the Chinese underarrest in connection with the shooting. The wounded man positively identified Goen as one of his assailants. When he was taken to the hospital he had a wicked-looking, six-inch scar on his forehead. Though all the chambers were full, it was found that one of them had been recently emptied.

CRUISER SAN FRANCISCO.

She is Highly Praised for Her Seagoing Qualities. VALLEJO, Jan. 29.—The cruiser San Francisco returned to the navy-yard Wednesday evening from her trial trip. The members of the Board of Officers that went to report the result of her trip and the officers of the ship speak in the highest terms of the seagoing qualities of the vessel. The weather outside was rough, and served well to try her. She passed right along at a speed of eleven or twelve knots without shipping seas. Some spray flew up on the bridge, but not enough to wet the spar deck. The run was made as far down the coast as Point Sur, a few miles below Monterey.

The windows of the saloon at 721 Jackson street were badly splintered, and one bullet entered a barber shop and flew by the head of a Mongol that was having his toilet arranged.

The guns were tested singly and broadside, and the ship did not appear to feel any effect from the concussion, and no gun was manifested in her. In firing the broadside guns it is reported that four of the vertical shields were slightly cracked, and a couple of rigs on two of the gun carriages were broken off. This will necessitate their repair. The guns and shields that were placed on board from the Charleston worked well and suffered no accident. The shields that were cracked are the ones recently sent from the East for the San Francisco, and appeared not to have been made heavy enough to withstand the shock of the recoil.

One of the men rated as officer got his ankle between the machinery, stripping the flesh of the ankle bone clean off.

KOCH'S REMEDY.

Condition of the Patients at San Francisco. SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—Frederickson, one of the lymph-inoculated patients at the County Hospital, is feeling very pronounced results from the experiment. Last night he had a throbbing headache, and such a sense of oppression in his chest that he could hardly breathe. This morning he complained of the same oppression. The glands of his neck, attacked by tuberculosis were very soft and sore.

The report in the case of Edwards, afflicted with lupus, was that the seat of disease was slightly swollen and much warmer and redder than it has been. Quin last night complained of pains in his chest, with lumps, was that the seat of disease had become much enlarged and was causing the patient a great deal of pain. Frederickson was given one milligramme Monday and two milligrammes Tuesday.

Reports in the cases of James Holland, and George Donnelly, Charles Huffallen and George Donnelly, from records taken to-day, show no change of consequence.

Funeral Services Over the Remains of Prince Baudouin.

THE CITY OF BRUSSELS DRAPED IN MOURNING.

Enormous Damage Done by a Terrible Storm in Egypt—Over a Hundred Persons Lose Their Lives—A Body of Students Raid a Paris Newspaper Office—Sardou's "Thermidor."

Special to the RECORD-UNION.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 28.—Brussels was truly a city of mourning to-day, the day of Prince Baudouin's funeral, black bunting, draped flags and crepe being seen on all sides.

The funeral was attended with the usual scenes of pomp and ceremony. There was an air of genuine and universal mourning in every direction, and homes, banks and public buildings were closed.

The center of the attraction was around the Cathedral of St. Gudule. At 2 o'clock this morning St. Gudule was overflowing with an immense congregation which had assembled.

This assemblage was allowed to remain in the cathedral until 9:30 A. M., when several different doors and cleared it sufficiently to leave a path for the funeral service and for the distinguished personages invited to be present at the funeral ceremony. The whole interior of the cathedral was covered with immense sable hangings fringed and ornamented with silver bullion.

The catafalque to receive the coffin was erected in the center of the grand transept and in it, in the center, was a casket covered with a massive black canopy superbly ornamented with silver. The cathedral was ablaze with light. The gorgeous altar formed the culminating point of one of the most superb scenes ever witnessed within this ancient, historical cathedral.

The approaches to the palace of the Count of Flanders, father of the dead Prince, were thronged with carriages and lined with troops.

After the arrival at the palace the cortege began its solemn march to the cathedral. Mounted gendarmes, corps of guides and the civic guard headed the procession, with their rifles fixed to the stocks, then came a band of grenadiers of the guard with muffled drums playing the "Dead March in Saul."

Each regiment carried its colors heavily draped with crepe, and on the left arm the soldiers wore a piece of crepe.

Next came the clergy and members of the royal household, preceding the coffin, which was borne on the shoulders of ten non-commissioned officers.

The Presidents of the two chambers and the Ministers bore the pall. Next came King Leopold, who was overcome with emotion. The Count of Flanders, weeping bitterly, walked behind, leaving his son, Prince Albert on his right and Prince Henry of Brabant on his left.

The funeral car, covered with beautiful wreaths of flowers, drawn by six black horses harnessed with black trappings and led by footmen in mourning liveries, followed.

The Prince's body was conveyed upon this car to the royal crypt in the chapel of the castle of Stoken, a mile or so outside of the city, where the internment took place.

AT THE FRENCH CAPITAL.

A Body of Students Raid a Newspaper Office—Sardou's New Play. PARIS, Jan. 29.—A body of students numbering 300 persons stormed the offices of the Legiste to-day, demanding the name of the writer of the article accusing them of opportunism. Being refused, the students abused the officials and upset all the furniture in the place.

There was a heated debate in the Chamber to-day over the suppression of Sardou's drama, "The Bourgeois," following the Socialist riots in the Theatre Francaise, censuring the prohibition of the play by the Government.

Minister of Fine Arts Bourgeois said the Government interfered only when the piece led to disturbance.

Constans, Minister of the Interior, spoke in support of the Government. He did not desire to act as a dramatic censor, but when it was learned that the play was to be made the pretext for a series of riots, it was not interfered.

After an excited discussion, Premier Dreyfus demanded the order of the day and the Government was sustained—315 to 192.
