CORRUPTION--HOPEFUL SIGNS. Whoever has taken note of the expressions of the California press, both metropolitan and rural, and especially the former, in the last few weeks, must have been impressed by the unison of the tone of the papers regarding official corruption, the trickery of political rings and the shameless effrontery of the traffickers in patronage.

That expression has been--and its emphasis is daily augmenting--in the direction of promoting reforms which mean the uncovering of venality and the suppression of vicious practices that have long served to bring California politics into disrepute.

institutions. Honest purpose will supplant chicanery; men will aspire to positions of trust without loss of self-respect; the ambitions of worthy and capable men to serve communities will be gratified without consultation with the boss or purchase of the consent of the vicious element. Legislation will, in the hands of self-respect, neither assail interests to make them bleed nor suffer rings, combines and trusts to prey upon the people. Usurpation of power will cease and restoration of authority to the people will be accomplished.

But without the agency of the press these wholesome results will not be attained. It is, in this reading age, when the people make it the one and chief avenue for the ascertainment of truth, the one agency that can hasten republican institutions to their downfall, or maintain free government upon a basis of honesty.

THE CASE OF ASSEMBLYMAN BRUNER. Elsewhere will be found, in his own language, the statement of the defense that Assemblyman Bruner will make to the charges of the San Francisco Examiner.

The RECORD-UNION has said that the presumption of innocence must obtain until guilt is established by proofs. That is a common rule which no one will suggest should be suspended.

The Legislature, at the request of the Assemblyman charged, has ordered an investigation. Mr. Bruner has voluntarily, perhaps unnecessarily, made a statement of his case--that is, he has publicly laid down the lines of his defense, and the statement he has made is, therefore, legitimate public property for criticism with judicial scrutiny and perfect fairness, but without any timidity. For this case concerns the whole public, and involves the whole State.

Examining the statement, therefore, which the Assemblyman makes the scheme of his defense, it appears that it lacks breadth and needs betterment to be maintained before the tribunal of public opinion. It is by no means uncommon, where charges of venality are preferred, for counter-charges to be made--it is the usual tactics in boodle trials, but it never has influenced, and never will turn clearing men from honest purpose in a searching investigation.

The judicial examiner of Mr. Bruner's deliberate statement cannot close his eyes to the fact that he did not, as common prudence would have suggested in a case where an attempt to corrupt or defame was on foot, take into his confidence the Speaker of the House or some officer of justice.

Mr. Bruner's statement is open to the serious objection also, as a defense, that he did not instantly notify the Police Commission of San Francisco that he had recommended the appointment of "Stoley," and why he did it, and that it was not to be considered by the commission. To fail in so vital an essential in the process of unearthing rascality is next to suicidal.

When a clear-headed man plays with one who is attempting a gigantic crime, and plans to throw him, his first movement should be to inform the third party who is to be operated upon and bled of official position. Failure to do so by Mr. Bruner will emphasize the charges laid at his door by the Examiner.

There is lamentable weakness in the admission that he parted with the one chief witness of innocence, the fatal certificate of deposit. Careful preparation for the exposure of attempted crime would have made the possession of that bit of paper the fuse to the bomb to blow the boodlers to pieces.

Not less surprising is the statement in the declared line of defense, that there was failure to tell those in the Librarian's room the whole story--Democrats and Republicans alike--the instant he secured possession of the certificate; nor was there any obligation to use it to raise money to pay the boodlers the price of infamy. Possession of the certificate absolved the holder from any and every promise made in a scheme of exposure. It is unthinkable that other men imperiled as was Mr. Bruner would have acted in this regard as his pleading confesses, and let pass from possession the proof and the opportunity that would have armored the truth beyond all possible assault.

Calmly viewed, then, Mr. Bruner's statement, which must be accepted as covering his whole defense, lacks cohesive strength and needs betterment in the proof if it is to clear character of black reproach. The proofs are now to be put in; they may not be held to strict conformity to pleading, but the investigation must be thorough. There must be nothing less than an inquiry that will reach to the most secret nerve of this whole transaction.

The era of whitewashing in investigations is at an end. The Legislature owes it to itself and to the people to dredge the lowest depths of this affair, and bring to light every fact in it. The House has the supreme power of the State at its command; its authority can search out the furthest corners and the uttermost reaches of fact. There must be full, fair and impartial, public and unfeared investigation. The people must know the whole truth; the press will not permit it to be covered or glossed over. The innocent must not be punished or a single right invaded; the guilty must not escape.
