

POLITICAL REST.

Congressmen Who Will Hereafter Appear in the Lobby.

Defeat of Needed Legislation by In-terminable Debate—The Only Ef-fectual Remedy—The Government a Heartless and Dishonest Creditor.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 5, 1891. The Lobby has called to a large number of his "apprentices" and laid them off for a long and extended political rest.

They have had full four months' notice that a lock-out was ordered for March 4, 1892, and they haven't laid up enough during that time to pay a month's board—in advance—it is clearly their own fault.

Since Bill McKinley, Jr., played such sad havoc with commercial values it is believed that rural landlords cannot keep hotel on politics and tone to any great extent.

There are those whose mental prostration fails to discover reciprocal uniformity in those exceedingly valuable exceptions.

There is a noticeable vein of selfish in-discrimination in that hypothetical method of reasoning, which may appear awkward to overcome at first glance.

It should be remembered that this great ex-citation idea relates to a remote period in our political history. A time when reason-able equity, well-sustained by gall, was equal if not superior to a right com-mercial legality.

There is a noticeable vein of selfish in-discrimination in that hypothetical method of reasoning, which may appear awkward to overcome at first glance.

It also furnishes a splendid outlet for those who have been led at home, to fully realize the proud satisfaction they enjoy so long as they are not directly threatened in the corner grocery, of getting even with somebody at some in-define future period.

Some of those unhappy apprentices may find a soft place among the political spynoses of the government statutory; others may be found in the corridors of a genteel railroad company.

Those good Christian workers in the vineyard—of New England—where the flame-breeding silver bill disturbs no more, I ask them to pause ere they forward another commitment to the Gauges, and reflect that, near the historic "Oldby" of the Potomac, which has enjoyed an un-interrupted reputation for quiet during a period of a century, there are those of our own flesh and blood who are dire distress and dignity demands prompt and earnest attention.

The leading business of the country say no business or professional man can afford to neglect his affairs for such a meager salary.

It is a matter of fact that the "Oldby" of the Potomac, which has enjoyed an un-interrupted reputation for quiet during a period of a century, there are those of our own flesh and blood who are dire distress and dignity demands prompt and earnest attention.

This constantly recurring biennial calamity can not be met outside of Russia and Ireland. That 200 able-bodied citizens, free born, of good address, excellent health, and willing to draw remunerative salaries without any considerable mental or physical exertion, should be confronted with scarcely twenty desirable vacancies, is a problem in political algebra which awaits definite solution.

It is a matter of fact that the "Oldby" of the Potomac, which has enjoyed an un-interrupted reputation for quiet during a period of a century, there are those of our own flesh and blood who are dire distress and dignity demands prompt and earnest attention.

Modesty restrains me from occupying the extremely indelicate position of sug-gesting the name of a candidate for Governor for that institution.

That end of the Capitol where Speaker Reed vigorously sought to revive the smouldering embers of dying patrio-tism, now presents the somber tint of doubt as to whether the war, the tariff or the people themselves are jointly and severally responsible for the failure of our Colonel John P. Irish, of the 11th, happily arriving in time to lead in the doxology.

THE CASE SUBMITTED.

Conclusion of the Testimony in the Bruner Investigation.

Senator Sprague's Interview With Belau—What Reporter Sheehan Heard—Bruner's Testimony.

The Bruner investigation was resumed last evening by the special committee of the Assembly. It was understood that the defense would conclude its testimony, and the usual large number of persons were present, including members and attaches of the Legislature and private witnesses.

Senator Sprague, one of the witnesses, not being present, the sergeant-at-arms was instructed to find him and bring him before the committee, although several members said Mr. Sprague was complaining of feeling ill.

The first witness called was E. S. Hadley, bookkeeper in the State Printer's office. He testified that on Wednesday of last week Mr. Bruner entered the office, called Mr. Johnston and told him he would like to have him take him to the printer's office.

Robert Alexander, also an attaché of the State Printer's office, testified that he knew Dick Belau, and believed he saw Belau on Thursday of last week at the office of the printer.

Senator Sprague then appeared and was sworn. He testified that he knew Dick Belau, and believed he saw Belau on Thursday of last week at the office of the printer.

Belau asked witness if he was likely to go into any difficulty of a serious nature, and witness said he must first know all the facts of the case.

Belau then testified that he was in the office of the printer on Thursday of last week, and that he saw Mr. Bruner there.

Witness asked Belau if it was true, and Belau replied that it was true, and that he saw Mr. Bruner there.

Witness asked Belau if it was true, and Belau replied that it was true, and that he saw Mr. Bruner there.

Royal Baking Powder.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—U. S. Gov't Report, Aug. 17, 1889.

Bruner had six places to sell on the police force, but had asked him to tell the truth. Stillwell was allowed to contradict a statement made by Mr. Bruner regarding a portion of the deposit.

Mr. Bruner replied that what he said was that it was shown in the trial of the First Bay of the Reconstruction that he had been in the conspiracy to blackmail Arnold.

At 11 p. m. the committee adjourned, and will hold an executive session on Monday evening.
