

WHITWATER SHAKERS.

They Have Lots of Good Things—Beliefs and Expectations.

People get tired of life and rid themselves of it. The fall of a wreck is related every day. Some natures are not strong enough to overcome the griefs and succumb to them.

For such there is a retreat that would almost have answered the longing of the painist when he cried for a lodge in some vast wilderness where he might fly on the wings of a dove and be forever at rest. Some six or seven miles beyond the village of Harrison is a community that is as much apart from the world in all its purposes and desires as though it were on some distant star.

The Shakers have some 1,400 acres of the fine farming land as can be found in the State of Ohio. It is gently undulating, rich and easily cultivated. The village of Whitewater is as distant from the rest of the world as it can be. It is a little world of its own.

"We are just holding a place ready for the people when the Lord shall send them to us," said Elder Henry B. Bear, the head man of the center family. "We feel no discouragement because of our present condition. Those of us who want to go away and live in the world must do so, just as the things best, we do not endeavor to make converts."

"No," the woman could not listen to us if we did. Our religion is not attractive. It requires sacrifices which few are willing to make. The religions that are in vogue now do not require such sacrifices. Those of olden times did and the world has got used to easy and comfortable forms that do not call for the relinquishing of pleasures. Until the world gets into a different mood, it will be useless for us to attempt to do any proselyting."

Elder Bear is a remarkably well-preserved man. At about 70 years of age, in years, he is as vigorous as a young man, his eye is as bright, his voice as strong, his ideas as clear as a young man. For nearly forty-five years he has been a Shaker. He and his wife and two children united with the community. His wife, a handsome old lady, still lives. One of his children is dead and another, a son, has left the community and married.

"He often writes to me," said the elder, with a pardonable pride, "that he enjoys the benefits of his Shaker training, for it kept him in the straight and narrow path."

The elder was asked if it had not been hard for him to give up the family relations and separate himself from his wife and children.

"No, no," came the answer, with a slight show of feeling. "I became convinced that it was the right thing for me to do, and I would not lead a life that I was convinced was improper. Don't think, though," he added, "that my family relations were disagreeable, for they were not."

"Is it not possible that some day you Shakers will abandon the requirement of celibacy?" was asked.

"Never. That is the main article of our faith. Christ was a celibate, and we are commanded to be like him in all things. Marriage involves selfishness, and we aim at entire unselfishness. There can never be a community of married people, it would be impossible. Here we live as real brothers and sisters, cultivating the love of one another and the family ties. It is the ideal life."

"But if there were no family ties you wouldn't be here."

"Oh, well," answered the elder, naively, "the time will never come when all the people are celibates. But the world is gradually getting to that stage of religious advancement when it will turn to socialism. The great reform movements are all in that direction. Women's rights, temperance and all those things that find their form among the Shakers, and we look for the coming of the day when our numbers will greatly increase."

It is easy for one to become a Shaker. Any one who can live among the others without disturbing the peace of the community can be admitted, no matter what his beliefs. "He need not even believe in the existence of a God, or of a heaven, or of a hell," said Elder Bear. "We will trust that he will receive the light of truth after he has dwelt among us for a while, and that he will turn it over to the community, and a strict account is kept of it, and should they leave it will be handed to them again. A second covenant is made, and by which property is donated to the community, and should they afterward leave the community donate to them what is deemed proper, some are allowed to leave the community who, after having united with the Shakers, have returned to the peacefulness of the Shakers.
