FURTHER PROGRESS IN MEDICAL DISCOVERY. The microbe theory, it would seem, is likely to be accepted as applicable in cure for all manner of diseases. We have now the announcement of Dr. Bordas, in La Medecine Moderne, of the results of some of his researches in acute articular rheumatism, which in his opinion tend to show that the cause of that disease is a pathogenic micro-organism specific in character.

He reports that he has been able to isolate and cultivate a microbe which, when injected into the carotid artery of a rabbit, engendered an inflammation of the endocardium with vegetations upon the valves. He believes that acute articular rheumatism with its complications will be proved to be a disease produced by microbes analogous in their production, for example, to the Micrococcus pyogenes, and he is convinced that the organism investigated by him will be found by others to be the specific germ of that disease.

The investigation was conducted under the supervision of M. Germain See, and will undoubtedly stimulate parallel researches in other laboratories. "These, if confirmatory," says the New York Medical Journal, "will be important as an advance, not only in etiological, but in therapeutical results." And that journal adds:

It is only a year or two since the opprobrium was felt by nearly every thoughtful practitioner when the question arose how it was that quinine cured malarial fever; and now this research no longer riddles in the mind since the laboratory work of Levan has shown that the micro-organism of malaria is destroyed by quinine in his test experiments; and thus the old answer of many "green rooms" that quinine is competent to check malarial fevers by reason of its profound impression it makes upon nerve centers, is done away with.

If the discovery of Bordas shall prove to be genuine, and to rest on a sound basis, there is no reason why the theory advanced by the Medical Journal as a mere speculation may not prove to be truth, that is, that the reason salicylic acid and the salicylates have been so efficacious in rheumatism, is because they antagonize the rheumatic enemy precisely as quinine has been discovered by Laveran to be the enemy of the micro-organism of malaria.

Who knows then, but that Bordas' other experiments may speedily bring about the cultivation of a lymph that will prove the perfect cure, the absolute specific for rheumatism? In this age of wonders is it too much to indulge in such speculation? If he progresses that far a blessing will be conferred upon mankind second to no other that medical and scientific research has yet evolved.

Upon the heels of this new discovery, or rather the entry upon the beginning of a discovery, comes a report that Bernheim's experiments in the treatment of tuberculosis by transfusion of blood from a goat, are meeting with a fair measure of success. The medical scientist has not thus far claimed that cures can be effected, but he is confident that by his treatment hemorrhage is cured, and such patients as he has treated who have diseased lungs, have shown improvement, gaining in strength, securing sleep, and losing the more distressing symptoms. He recently presented before the French faculty eight patients whose cases were of the most desperate order, but who, under the transfusion treatment, had gained in weight, strength and general vigor, and whose coughs had almost ceased, while insomnia had wholly disappeared.

NEWFOUNDLAND TROUBLES. Some of our Eastern contemporaries have indulged in the speculation that the difficulty between the French and English in Newfoundland would lead to the separation of that province from the British Empire and its union with the United States. We have seen nothing in the correspondence between English and French authorities, nor in the expressions of the Newfoundland people, to warrant such conclusions. In the first place, if Newfoundland separates from English connection it will be as an independency, and not then with the consent of England. Without it the accomplishment can only be attained through revolution, and the people of Newfoundland are not prepared and will not be in this generation for that. They are not a warlike people, and if they were their isolated situation renders them subject to England with very little cost of treasure or military exertion. The French element in Newfoundland, while not very strong, is not at all friendly to the United States, while the English element has natural affiliation with the Dominion provinces and close relations with the Canadian people. It is altogether more probable that France will consider favorably the proposition now broached to accept Gambia in lieu of her claims in Newfoundland, and abandon all pretension to rights upon the island, and that such a settlement will be agreeable to the people of Newfoundland. There is certainly nothing to warrant the statement that they are antagonistic to the mother country to the point of revolution. The French fishery claims alone have caused friction, and that does not justify belief that there will resort to other than peaceful methods.

REPORTED CONFESSION. The report comes from New Orleans with a great deal of circumstantiality, that the Louisiana Attorney-General has been in close conference with the remaining prisoners held for the Hennessy assassination, and that in New Orleans the story has acceptance, that these prisoners have confessed, or are prepared to do so, and will reveal the entire inner history of the Mafia organization, showing it to be what has been believed of it, that it is a band of vicious men consorting for purposes of blackmail only, and enforcing their schemes by intimidation, and covering their tracks by murder where there is resistance.

The confession, if it is made, will clear the atmosphere concerning the taking off of Chief Hennessy, and go far towards settling public opinion concerning the more recent New Orleans tragedy. There is much reason to believe the story of the breaking down of the prisoners' reticence. They experienced a terrible shock, from which they have not yet recovered, when their comrades were shot by the mob; they were themselves ranged against a wall to be executed, and only by the most earnest pleading of the leaders of the mob were their lives spared. There is every inducement for them to reveal the truth, for even if released, they know that they must leave the State of Louisiana, and that by confessing they can hope for more leniency if convicted. Moreover, in all bands of assassins, there are traitors, and the Mafia is not an exception to the rule. Men who engage in such awful work are so morally weak that some among them when cornered are certain to break down.

But no confession by the prisoners will be of any value unless it is in line with known facts, and with circumstances that tend to corroborate the revelations. It is a settled rule of law and is the dictate of wisdom, that the confession of a murderer confederate shall not be accepted, nor, indeed, that of a principal, unless there is corroborating testimony, direct or circumstantial.

We have our own vendettas—more the shame—but none end more satisfactorily than those of the American stamp. In Italy they continue through many generations, and some have kept their spirit for centuries. Here such feuds arise between factions of blood scarcely last out a generation. The telegraphic dispatches announce the close of the Kentucky vendetta between the Hatfield and McCoy families, by the engagement of a pair representing both sides to the bloody controversy, in which it is said two hundred lives have been sacrificed in the last thirty years. The marriage is to take place in May, and both clans have agreed to assemble and bury the hatchet beyond possibility of resurrection.

SENATOR BLAIR announces that he will accept the Chinese mission. It had been feared upon this coast that his appointment boded no good to the policy of Chinese labor exclusion, but the appointee announces that while he has no animosity toward China, and admires the history of the ancient civilization of the Chinese, he is not friendly to the immigration to this country of the class of Chinese we have with us, and which he declares to be of the lowest order. This declaration will set at rest the fears that California exclusionists have entertained.

AFTER six years of diligent effort California at last has the reform ballot system upon her statute books, the Governor having approved the Senate bill. It now remains only for the friends of the reform to see to it that the law is not "bungled"—if the word can be pardoned—in operation. The officers who are to interpret it and prepare the ballots must be instructed uniformly in a correct method. If that is done the new statute will demonstrate its virtue.

THE death of General Joseph E. Johnston leaves alive but one of the original full Generals of the Confederate service—General Beauregard. General Johnston was one of the most capable and distinguished soldiers of the nation, and those who recall the memories of the rebellion will remember with what widespread regret the announcement was received that he had entered the Confederate service.

THE movement of the Improvement Association to agitate, in a business-like way, the improvement of the levee system of the city, will be generally approved, and will, as a matter of course, be commended by the Trustees. Through such activity the board can ascertain precisely what the wishes of the people are in the matter.

SENATOR MAHONEY'S weights and measures bill has passed both houses and gone to the Governor. It is a measure that has all things in favor of it and nothing against it. Men cannot be made honest by law, but they can be compelled to use honest instruments of measure and weight, and this is all the law proposes.

THE Turkish Government is considering designs for a bridge across the Bosphorus, to connect Asia and Europe.

Piles Can Be Cured. Richard Bennett, Westfield, N. Y., writes: "For thirty-two years I suffered from piles, both internal and external, with all their attendant agonies, and like many others suffered from hemorrhoids. All those thirty-two years I had to cramp myself to pay doctors and druggists for stuff that was doing me little or no good. Finally I was urged by one who had had the same complaint, but had been cured by BRANDRETH'S PILLS, to try his cure. I did so, and began to improve, and for the past two years I have had no inconvenience from that terrible ailment."

SPECIAL NOTICES. DON'T GIVE UP. There is a cure for catarrh and cold in the head. Thousands testify that Ely's Cream Balm has entirely cured them. It is a safe and pleasant remedy. It is applied into the nostrils. It is not a liquid or ointment. It cures by cleansing and healing. Price, 50c.
