

STATE FAIR RACES.

A Running Programme That Should Bring Out the Cracks.

Five Days of Running and Six of Trotting This Year—Big Money Offered.

The State Agricultural Society has completed the programme for the running races which are to take place at this year's State Fair. The trotting programme was finished some weeks ago and was published in full in these columns at the time.

This year there will be eleven days of racing instead of nine as heretofore. There will be six trotting days and five running days.

Another this year's programme contains better inducements to owners of running and trotting horses than were ever offered before, and the effect no doubt will be the bringing together of a magnificent meeting.

MR. MILLER'S OFFER.

He Makes a Music Award and Finds a Local Music Fund.

Some two or three years ago Frank Miller conceived the idea of creating a fund to encourage development of singing voices among the young people of Sacramento, especially school youths.

His idea was to have the fund produce a revenue, which should be given as an annual prize to the young man or woman of Sacramento, either a Sacramento by local residence or by birth, who made greatest progress in singing.

Mr. Miller held that there is ever a demand for good singers, that too much attention is given to instrumental and too little to vocal culture. That the conditions here are all superior for the development of good singing voices. As the community is not large enough to maintain a conservatory of music, he conceived the idea of the prize fund as a means of local stimulation for school youths.

He accordingly bought a lot, and deeded it to Messrs. Babcock, Anderson and Johnson, teachers, for the purpose indicated by these gentlemen. He has since the city, and nothing has been done with the property. Mr. Miller has now requested them to re-deed the property to him, which they will do, if he proposes to sell the land, and can do so at once. One hundred dollars of the proceeds he will award to Miss Gertrude Carly, who is the winner of the prize fund.

The remainder of the money he proposes to ask the California Music Association to take and invest as a music fund, to be augmented as may be, the increase to be awarded as may be hereafter determined by him in encouragement of singing talent among the youth of Sacramento.

Miss Carly will receive the $100 on the condition that on her return from Europe she will give a first concert in California in this city for the benefit of the music fund referred to. That she will accept of such an offer is not for a moment doubted.

The Music Association will also undoubtedly accept the offer referred to. It is two or three years the fund could be made $2,000, and local musical people should not to make it reach that figure in a few years. Eventually it may be made a very large fund and a possible basis for a school of music in this city. At least it will always be the source of modest and encouraging rewards and stimuli for singing excellence among the school youth of Sacramento.

BROKER MURPHY.

Judge Craven Finds Him Guilty of Swindling William McDermott.

James A. Murphy, the barkeeper at Jack Smith's dive on K street, near Third, was yesterday tried and convicted of embezzlement in the Police Court.

The complaining witness, William McDermott, swore that he came to Sacramento last week from Maxwell, and had in his possession a time-check on the contracting firm of Turton & Knox, for whom he had been working. It called for $13 35, payable on June 15th. After endeavoring but failing to get the check cashed at the several banks, or at the office of the lumber company managed by Fred Knox, he and a friend went into Smith's saloon and asked Murphy to cash the check. The latter spoke to the proprietor, but he said he had no money. McDermott then made the remark that he would sell the check at five, ten or 15 cents per cent, and Murphy took it and went out after getting McDermott to endorse it.

In a couple of hours he came back with the check, but he said it was not cashed. McDermott protested, and demanded the check, but Murphy said he did not have it, but finally promised to try and "dig it up" for him.

A couple of days later Murphy met McDermott and informed him that he did not have the check, but he had more trouble about the check. He again offered McDermott the $5, and said if he did not accept that amount he could do what he pleased.

According to the story told by the defendant (Murphy), McDermott offered to take $5 for the check, and when Murphy refused, he offered to take $10. The defendant did not give up the check, but went to Maxwell, got it cashed at 5 per cent discount, and returned it to the proprietor, but he said he had no money. McDermott then made the remark that he would sell the check at five, ten or 15 cents per cent, and Murphy took it and went out after getting McDermott to endorse it.

In a couple of hours he came back with the check, but he said it was not cashed. McDermott protested, and demanded the check, but Murphy said he did not have it, but finally promised to try and "dig it up" for him.

BRIEF BUT LIVELY.

A Doctor's Buggy Crushed by a Runaway Horse.

Yesterday afternoon a team of horses attached to a truck, belonging to S. W. Butler, became frightened at an electric car on Second and J streets, and started to run. The driver jumped them in short order, but although the horses had run only a few feet, they succeeded in colliding with Dr. Fay's buggy and turning it upside down.

The doctor's horse attempted to get away, but was so securely fastened to an awning-post. Luckily the post happened to be one of the few solid ones in town. Several spokes were knocked out of one of the wheels of the buggy. Nobody was hurt.

SENATOR STANFORD.

He and His Wife Spend a Day at Their Old Sacramento Home.

Senator Stanford visited the railroad workshops yesterday. Later in the day he drove all over the city, going up and down streets he had not seen for ten years.

In the evening a large number of ladies and gentlemen informally called upon the Senator and his wife. There was no expectation of calls and no preparation for them, but as visitors came during the evening they were cordially received. The last group that called, about 9 o'clock, consisted of several citizens, headed by Adjutant-General Allen, who extended the compliments of Governor Markham.

For an hour the party sat and chatted with the Senator. He referred, in the course of conversation, to some national matters and his ideas of how parties in response to inquiries for his opinion, but he preferred to speak of the Leland Stanford Jr. University and the approach of the Legislature in connection with the fact that he must hasten back to San Francisco to arrange with contractors to construct a new and commodious ninety female pupils at the outset.

Governor Stanford expressed himself greatly pleased with his drive about the city, and had grown far more than he thought, and the improved style of buildings and the excellence of the new graded streets he referred to as especially gratifying to an old Sacramento man. He said he could see that Sacramento was steadily and healthily growing, and he believed its prosperity was assured.

He expressed a desire to visit the works at Folsom and the proposed local development there in the water-power matter, and its utilization, and thought it would be an excellent influence upon Sacramento to encourage manufacturing. One of the party told him that the belief was entertained that the power of the river would be transmitted. WET, BUT HAPPY.

How Yesterday's Excursionists Made the Best of Circumstances.

The annual picnic of the Catholic Church took place yesterday, under rather adverse circumstances.

The steamer Governor Dana and San Joaquin No. 3, having in tow the large barge Missouri, left the Pioneer Mills landing about 8 a. m. for Mahon's Grove. The weather at the time of starting promised to be fair, but the excursionists were hardly an hour on the water before rain began to fall heavily.

There was a large attendance, fully two thousand people being present. The barge was canvased overhead, but nevertheless, the rain soaked through and made dancing almost impossible.

The excursionists started on the return trip about 4 o'clock, but had proceeded but a short distance when they landed on a sandbar, which delayed them for an hour. On striking the bank, the steamer San Joaquin No. 3, which was towing in advance of the barge, had the planks of her paddle-wheel considerably damaged.
