

JUMPED THE TOWN.

Ball-Tossers Ward and Hustin Skip to Oregon.

They Leave Manager Ginsberg in the Lurch—Items of Interest to Baseball Admirers.

The solemn silence that had for some time pervaded baseball circles in Sacramento was suddenly disturbed yesterday by the report that Ward and Hustin had proven unfaithful to their pledges to Manager McLoskey, and left for the north.

And it was not a hoax, but an actual fact. All day Wednesday the two players were missed by their associates, but although several suspected what they had done none were willing to admit that they believed Ward and Hustin had done such a dishonorable trick, since they were receiving the best of treatment at the hands of the management.

Manager Ginsberg learned definitely yesterday, however, that the men had bought tickets for Portland, and had left on Tuesday, at midnight. They sent a backman down to the depot for two second-class tickets, but he was informed by the train started, and bought tickets, and signed their names to the slips.

Ward and his partner in the flight then went down themselves, just before the train started, and bought tickets. The other members of the team disclaim all knowledge of the intentions of the two contract-jumpers, and Manager Ginsberg says he will not make much of an effort to get the latter to return. He doubtless recognizes the fact that he will accomplish little if he does, beyond contracting a large telegram bill.

Ward was, in one sense, a valuable man in the team. He was only ordinary as a fielder, or sacker-bag guard, but he executed his best in the batting. He is a good batter, and his success in base-running lies in the fact that he always knows when to take advantage of a chance. But, on the other hand, he is a disorganizer, and caused many a rupture in the Sacramento team since he became a member.

Hustin was undoubtedly the best batting and fielding pitcher in the League, but as a pitcher his work here has been only ordinary. He has never made the average, he has given no evidence of the fact since his arrival in California.

It is understood that there were strong indications of a plot to forsake Sacramento. Ward, it is said, has an offer of $70 per month to play with the St. Paul club, and Hustin, besides being offered $100 per month by Spokane Falls, is to get $20 extra for every game he wins.

Last Tuesday was pay-day with the players of the team, and, contrary to custom, Manager Ginsberg did not give them their salaries as they came around. He waited until the entire team had arrived, and then, after distributing the checks, invited them into his private office and talked some very plain English to them. He told them they were not playing the sample of baseball that their salaries called for, and wished them to understand that to be in the lead should be as much of an object to them as their salaries.

"You may be getting hard deals," said he, "from the umpire, but in the face of it you ought to play for all you are worth, and show what might have been the result had you been fairly treated by the umpire. All I ask of you is to play to win, and if umpires show a disposition to stand in your way, again, the management will take a hand in the fight and see whether or not a referee can be removed for cause."

The players all appeared to take the lecture with good grace, and they announced their intention of hereafter considering the umpire the tenth man of the opposing team, and playing to win, even against the odds. It was not twelve hours after this, however, before Ward and Hustin were speeding along on the train destined for Portland, and both in Mr. Ginsberg's debt, Ward in the sum of $141, and Hustin $121, besides a $15 suit of clothes.

It took the manager several hours yesterday to decide what to do in the way of recovering his money, but he finally determined that he would cause the ball-players a little misery for the mean trick they had played him.

At 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon he wired to the police authorities at Portland to detain Ward and Hustin upon their arrival there. About two hours afterward he received the following "collect" dispatch:

PORTLAND, Or., May 28th. S. Ginsberg, Sacramento: What have you stopped us for? Answer quick. G. WARD.

And here is what Mr. Ginsberg wired back: Frank G. Ward, Portland Jail: Your case is in my attorney's hands, Messrs. Calkins & Clark of Portland. Am sorry for you and poor Jack.

Mr. Ginsberg stated last evening that he intended to get what money was due him from Ward and Hustin, but would not go to the expense of bringing them back to Sacramento.

Sacramento now needs another catcher and a second-base man, and how nicely Bowman and Reitz would fit in the positions, were they here, is both obvious and doing magnificent work for the Rochester, New York, team, and are drawing very comfortable salaries. A letter was received yesterday from Reitz, by a young man in this city, and Sacramento manager will be pleased to know that "Henmy" is leaving for the franchise, with an average of 400—quite different stick-work to that he exhibited in this city last year. It stands to reason that he is improving with age, and as regards his fielding, there is no room for improvement. He states that he has just recovered the use of his thumb, which was broken about three weeks ago, and Captain Powers will place him in his old-time position at the second base.

Reitz is accompanied by his wife, and after the season closes he intends coming to Sacramento. He remarks that Bowman, Tom Powers, Roberts and Pete Sweeney are playing ball "out of sight." Bowman comes second in the batting list, and Sweeney third. Reitz requests that himself and wife be remembered to their friends in Sacramento.

Hulin, formerly of the Stockton club, has been signed temporarily to play second base for the Sacramento. Colonel Robinson has given up the management of the Oakland team, and "Tip" O'Neill will hereafter control that aggregation of ball-players. The Colonel became disheartened at the succession of defeats his club had sustained, and concluded to sell out. It is reported that O'Neill paid him $20 for the franchise, but this is not a likely story. The directors of the Haight-street grounds are said to control both the Oakland and San Francisco teams, and it may be that difference who is in charge. The transfer to O'Neill was probably made gratis.

O'Neill will commence immediately to reorganize his team, and it may be that he jumped his contract with the Oakland about a month ago, will return from the north and play third base. Britton, formerly of the Fresno club, will do the shortstop work, and Cantillon and Youngman will guard second and first bases, respectively. Harde will do the greater portion of the catching, and O'Neill will play left field and act as change catcher. Long and Hines will play as outfielders, and Mars, Stephens and Garfield will do the twirling.

FOUND IN THE RIVER. The Body of Alfred Parsons Recovered at Isleton.

George Bronner's Statement Was the Truth—He Fell From the Governor Dana.

The body of unfortunate young Al Parsons was found floating in the river at Isleton yesterday.

The mystery surrounding the young man's whereabouts is thus cleared up.

Last week young Parsons accompanied the river excursion of the Young Men's Institute. On board the steamer he was one of the merriest of the party.

On the return trip, it appears, he wearied of dancing and merry-making, and the evening being balmy and pleasant—laid down at the bow of the boat outside of the railing and fell asleep.

A number of his friends saw him there, but not thinking that he was in any danger of falling overboard paid no attention to him.

FORGOT ABOUT HIM. When the boat arrived, everybody was in a hurry to get home, and in the rush young Parsons' friends forgot to arouse him. In fact, they forgot all about him, and probably supposed that he had taken care of himself.

When the young man did not put in an appearance at his home that night his parents were not particularly alarmed as they supposed that he had probably stopped along with a party, and would come home all of the next day or the following night they began to get anxious and make inquiries for him.

None could help, and what added to the relatives' anxiety, nobody even knew what had become of him.

BRONNER SAW HIM. Three days after the excursion a young man named George Bronner, who was one of the barkeepers on the excursion steamer, called on Mr. Parsons, the missing man's father, and told him that he had seen a young man, who was dressed the same as young Parsons, fall from the steamer into the river that night. It was about half an hour after the excursion steamer had left the boat when Bronner happened out on the deck and saw the young man groping about in the dark as if trying to get over the railing and on to the deck proper. Bronner called out to him, but he either did not hear him or else paid no attention. The next instant Bronner saw him stumble and fall headlong off the boat into the river. He fell through the open space between the large (which had been lashed to the steamer for dancing) and the steamer.

He was not hurt, but the deck-hand thought he was joking and would not heed his calls. He then ran to the side of the steamer in the hope that he might assist the young man, but could see no signs of him.

TOO TRUE. By some Mr. Bronner's story was not credited; but the finding of Parsons' remains yesterday proved that he was not the imaginative and dreamy individual they would have people believe. He is said to have been a very good swimmer and talked with him were satisfied that he did.

When the report of the finding of the body reached the city, the coroner, the young man's father, accompanied by Deputy Coroner Fenton and another young man, left immediately for Isleton, to give the body to the coroner. The father readily recognized the remains of his son, decomposed as they were.

Alfred Parsons was a native of this city, 24 years of age, and was a son of James Parsons, the tailor. He was very well known here, and leaves a wide circle of friends.

An inquest was held in the case by Justice of the Peace Hart at Isleton yesterday afternoon, and a verdict of accidental drowning was rendered.

The remains of the unfortunate young man will be brought to this city to-day by steamer.

Wants to Be Guardian. P. R. Beckley has petitioned the Superior Court for letters of guardianship of the estate of Elmer E. and Myrtle G. Hall, minors. The matter will be heard by Judge Van Fleet on June 5th.

WILL PLEAD GUILTY.

Garroter Gordon Weakens and Tells the Whole Story.

Dive-Keeper Smith and Barkeeper Furlong are in a Tight Place—Allen's Condition.

The examination of the thugs who were implicated in the murderous assault upon Robert Allen will begin to-day in the Police Court.

Dive-keeper Smith, who, it is believed by the police, planned the robbery, and Gordon and Haley to do the "job," will be the first to face Judge Cravens.

The police have a strong case against Smith, and anticipate little trouble in having him held to answer before the Superior Court. The main evidence against Smith will be that of Gordon, who made a full and complete confession of the whole diabolical plot.

Gordon's testimony will be corroborated by McCalig, alias Casey, and by other witnesses whose names the police would not divulge last night.

GORDON'S CONFESSION. The confession of Gordon will prove of great assistance to the authorities in bringing the gang of thugs to justice. He was an accessory before the fact, but will not be prosecuted.

Then Gordon learned that McCalig had "peached" he was so angry that he would Monday night inform Chief of Police Drew and Captain Lee that he wanted to make a statement. The officers sent for him, and he was taken to the Police Court. His statement proved of such importance that it was decided to have it taken down verbatim, so arrangements were made to have a stenographer present the following day, when Gordon repeated the story of how he covered up the robbery, and how Allen was planned in Smith's den, and subsequently carried out by himself and Haley, the unrepentant garroter.

WILL PLEAD GUILTY. Gordon gave as his reason for confessing that he did not know how to "give the worse of it," and realizing that a long term in the State Prison confronted him, he hoped that his confession would be lightened if he pleaded guilty and told all he knew about it.

He will plead guilty to the charge of robbery with a knife, and to the charge of Superior Court—having no hope of escaping on the preliminary examination in the Police Court.

Gordon attributes his present predicament to his association with bad characters. He admits everything except striking the blow which came so near ending Allen's life. He says he believed in the hammer. He does not know of the probable condition Allen is still in, and probably never would have made a statement if he did.

ALLEN'S BARKEEPER. Gordon's testimony will also go hard with Furlong, who was Robert Allen's barkeeper. The police consider that they have a sure case against him, and the evidence shows—the most contemptible thing of the outfit. According to Gordon, Furlong kept Smith posted right along as to Allen's whereabouts, and the amount of money he would have with him on different nights.

Taken altogether the outlook is very bright for the police, going to State Prison, and for long terms, too—and if Allen should die there will be work for the hangman.

Only one thing is lacking now to complete the splendid work done by the police, and that is the capture of Haley, who is still believed to be in the city.

AMUSEMENTS. At the Clunie Opera House this evening George Thatcher's Minstrels, with Thatch, Moore, Jose, Lewis Burt Shepard and a dozen others in character acts and variety—a combination rare and very superior. All the San Francisco press, as with one voice, agree that it is the best minstrel company they have seen upon the coast since the days of Birch, Backus, Coes and Wells. The best of it is that Thatcher introduces some of the old-time original minstrel acts, such as "The Jump, Jim Crow" and "Carolina Jane" order—a style that was very near to the cabin minstrelsy of the "crucial slavery days" and that modern minstrel acts about run off the stage. Let Thatcher give us all he can to-night of the old style. It will delight old-timers and be a revelation to the new generation. Must give us an understanding from the singers' names that Thatcher's troupe must have some excellent performers, but if there were only Thatcher, Lew Dockstader and Burt Shepard the trio could give a minstrel entertainment well worth attention. Thatcher has had the pick of the best talent of the line, and unless all reports are false he has a troupe that is very nearly perfect.

At the Metropolitan Theater Monday and Tuesday nights next Hamlet's Farce Comedy Company will appear in "The Fakir." In the troupe are William F. Mack, Alf Hampton, Max Arnold, John Gilroy, Jan Barrett, Alice Carr, Rosa France, Eva Randolph, Lillian Markham, Helen Reimer, Madge Abbott, Stella Ellis and others. The San Francisco Musician says that the troupe is one of the largest, "numerically and artistically, that has ever crossed the continent." Seats will be on sale on Saturday.

Announcement is made this morning of additional features of the Gertie Carlyle and her Department for next Monday evening. Tickets are now to be had at all music, book and drug stores.

There will be a fair house to witness the farce-comedy, "Starlight," by Miss Jarbeau's company last night. Truth is, "Starlight" has been given here once too often.

Reserved seats for the Amold concert are to be on sale at Houghton's to-morrow morning.

This evening the ladies of the Sixth-street M. E. Church will give a strawberry social and musical and literary entertainment.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL. Mrs. W. W. Grissom, of San Francisco, is on a visit here.

Miss Duldred Muldowney, of Stockton, is the guest of Major J. Egan and family. Governor and Mrs. Markham contemplate leaving early next week for a tour of the Yosemite Valley.

T. F. Hunt, traveling agent of the General Ticket Department of the Southern Pacific Company, is in Sacramento.

Rev. John F. von Herlich has returned from a two weeks' trip to Oakland, San Francisco and other places. He will be at the Lull House for the next two weeks.

The Willows Revue says: "A farewell party was given to Miss Lulu E. Keath by the young people of this neighborhood last Tuesday evening, at the residence of S. K. Evans. Dancing and other amusements were indulged in until daylight.

George F. McLaughlin, a Sacramento resident, began as a messenger-boy for the Western Union Telegraph Company in 1885, since which time he has steadily advanced until he became a first-class operator, which position he has held for two years past in the telegraph office in this city. Mr. McLaughlin will leave to-morrow to fill a similar position in the same office at San Francisco, where he has been for the past two years past in the telegraph office in this city.

Misses Alice Curtis and Eugena Greenlaw gave a most enjoyable party at the residence of the former, on Wednesday evening at the ranch of William Curtis, on the lower Stockton road, near the city. The evening was spent in dancing, the loft of the large barn being cleared for the occasion. The guests returned to the city in one of Mr. Curtis' large hay wagons after having had a merry time. Those present were Misses A. Curtis, Gertrude, Greenlaw, Cutter, Pritchard, Fulkner, C. Root, R. R. Spillman, G. Spillman, Hubert, C. Curtis, A. Curtis, Messrs. McMullen, Curtis, Miller, Curtis, Kellory, Hull, Calderwood, G. and E. Cutter, Garrett, Spillman, Fleming, Jost, Greenlaw, Root and L. Walker.

The exercises at the Sacramento Grammar School will commence at 9:30 A. M. to-day.
