

TURF TOPICS.

Jockeys Hereafter to be Prohibited From Betting. SHEPHERD BAY, June 25.—After deliberating three days the Board of Control has come to the conclusion that in the future jockeys who bet shall have their licenses revoked. It has also been decided that the accident to St. Florian on the opening day was the fault of no one, Jockey Edward Garrison's license has been suspended indefinitely, but for what reason the board refuses to state.

RACING EVENTS. The track was fast. One mile, Eon won, Stockton second, Stridway third. Time, 1:50 3/4. Six furlongs, Victory won, Air Plant second, Charade third. Time, 1:15 1/2. Mile and an eighth, Tula Hlackburn won, Olette second, Lizzie third. Time, 1:55 4/5. Mile and a half, Riley won, Reelard second, Potomac third. Time, 2:35 3/4. Mile and an eighth, Louisa won, Bermuda second, Kenwood third. Time, 1:55 4/5. Mile and a half, Riley won, Reelard second, Potomac third. Time, 2:35 3/4. Mile and three-eighths, Masterlode won, Tea Tray second, Lowlander third. Time, 2:25 3/4.

AT WASHINGTON PARK. WASHINGTON PARK, June 25.—The track was fast. One mile, Racine won, China second, Brazos third. Time, 1:51 1/2. Mile and an eighth, Longshot won, Guido second, Eli third. Time, 1:55. Five furlongs, Cup Gunn won, Banford second, Old Puffer third. Time, 1:01 1/2. One mile, Labold won, Ed Bell second, Foremer third. Time, 1:42 1/2. Mile and a quarter, Allen Bane won, Spasieo second, Fajero third. Time, 0:24 1/2.

AT KANSAS CITY. KANSAS CITY, June 25.—The track was fast. Five furlongs, Manie B. won, Van S. second, B. Eaton third. Time, 1:03 1/2. Fifteen-sixteenths of a mile, Castilian won, Dowberry second, Pastime third. Time, 1:38. Mile and a sixteenth, Dan Mack won, Redjig second, May Hardy third. Time, 1:54. Nine-sixteenths of a mile, Althe won, First Day second, Wescot third. Time, 0:59 1/2. Heats, half-mile, Captain won the first heat, Schoolgirl second, Maranbourn third. Time, 0:51. Second heat—Maranbourn won, Coldeck second, Schoolgirl third. Time, 0:51. Third heat—Maranbourn won, Captain second. Time, 0:51. Half-mile, American Boy won, Lucifer second, Johnson third. Time, 0:52 1/2.

AT HARTFORD. HARTFORD, Conn., June 25.—Free-for-all, Rosalind Williams won, Mamorino Maid second, Jean Val Jean third. Best time, 2:18. Pacing, 2:16 class, Maranbourn won, Mamorino Banner second, Monkey Hollis third. Best time, 2:17. Three class, Fannie Pickox won, Martha Wilkes second, Walker third. Best time, 2:24.

ON THE DIAMOND. Results of Yesterday's National League Games. CLEVELAND, June 25.—Pittsburg had to-day's game well in hand, then lost it on account of disastrous errors and Baldwin's poor pitching. Score: Cleveland, 9; Pittsburg, 4. Batteries—Vian and Zimmer; Baldwin and Fields.

CHICAGO, June 25.—The game to-day was dull and uninteresting, Chicago winning it easily by a timely batting. Score: Chicago, 3; Cincinnati, 2. Batteries—Luby and Bowman; Mullane and Clark.

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—The Boston won all to pieces to-day, their errors proving very costly. Score: Philadelphia, 7; Boston, 7. Batteries—Nichols and Bennett; Thornton, Esper and Clements.

NEW YORK, June 25.—The Giants were in playing humor to-day. Score: New York, 9; Brooklyn, 2. Batteries—Kusie and Buckley; Lovett and Daley.

TRICHINE. Microscopists Find Infected Hogs at Chicago. CHICAGO, June 25.—For several days past expert microscopists have been engaged in the inspection of hogs slaughtered by Chicago packers, under the direction of Secretary Bask. Trichine was found yesterday, and the findings made during the day proved that many hogs were infected. "In one way," said Professor Michaels, "the announcement that we have found trichine may be unpleasant to packers and prove a source of alarm to people who eat pork. But it should also be a warning to the public, and every proof of the necessity of microscopic inspection of pork. Three days of inspection of pork under the microscope has revealed many trichine hogs, which are expected to find. I do not care to inform the press of the number of hogs we have found to be infected. It might cause alarm. We have found trichine in Chicago pork, and wherever it has been discovered the meat of the hog has been destroyed."

TRIPS ON TIMBER LANDS. MADISON (Wis.), June 25.—The State Land Commissioners have during the last three months been investigating the subject of trespass on timber lands and have unearthed great frauds. Millions upon millions of pine timber have been cut by various individuals of the public lands, and the loss to the State treasury in the past two years, the robbery has been going on for a dozen years, and the loss to the State treasury is enormous. Many of the trespassers cannot, of course, be traced, but much of it is chargeable to responsible loggers, who sell their timber to men where marks are found on it.

COINAGE OF SILVER DOLLARS. NEW YORK, June 25.—A Philadelphia special agent has been sent here among employees of the United States Mint. They fear it may be determined at the Cabinet meeting at Washington tomorrow to stop the coinage of silver dollars. The Superintendent of the Mint has already come to the conclusion that silver notes in circulation, but there is enough to meet all the public demands. Still he does not think the coinage of silver dollars will be stopped. There is a large amount of subsidiary silver and about $30,000,000 in gold to be coined as soon as time can be found.

WEST POINT CADETS. WASHINGTON, June 25.—As a result of the recent examinations at West Point, 99 out of a total of 146 applicants have been admitted to the United States Military Academy, to form the new class. The list of names has been turned back from last year's class, who are to join the new class in September, will probably swell the total to 111. Among those admitted are Daniel Delaney and C. R. Willoughby of California.

CRUISER PHILADELPHIA. WASHINGTON, June 25.—Orders have gone forward to the New York Navy-yard for the preparation of two new wooden masts for the cruiser Philadelphia. Still he does not think the coinage of silver dollars will be stopped. There is a large amount of subsidiary silver and about $30,000,000 in gold to be coined as soon as time can be found.

ANTI-GILT SOCIETY. WASHINGTON (Pa.), June 25.—An anti-gilt society has been formed among the leading students of Washington and Jefferson College. The object of the society is to devise some plan by which more attention will be given to the college by the students, and not so much to the seminary young ladies. The members, upon initiation, take a vow that they will not call upon any young woman more than once a week. If this obligation should be broken the member must present a satisfactory excuse or be expelled from the society. It is hoped by the professors of the college that the society may be a success.

A bride was arrayed in her wedding finery and 200 guests had assembled at Keyport, N. J., when she received word from the groom stating that he couldn't be present, as his wedding clothes didn't fit him.

CAPITAL NOTES.

Surveying Well Advanced on the Intercontinental Railway. WASHINGTON, June 25.—Advices received at the Intercontinental Railroad Commission show that two civilian surveying parties are now well advanced in the work of surveying the country in the vicinity of Quito, Ecuador, for the proposed railroad between North and South America. The members of the survey are afforded every possible facility in the way of promoting their work by the Government officials made.

Acting Secretary Grant has just approved the recommendation of the Fortification Board expending a survey in connection with the selection sites for mortar batteries for the defense of San Francisco. The most important recommendation which was approved was that the Chief of Ordnance be authorized to construct some new twelve-inch rifles, of forty feet length.

Chief Postoffice Inspector Rathbone today handed the Postmaster-General his resignation, to take effect June 28th. July 1st Rathbone is to be appointed Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General.

As a result of the report of the board which conducted the recent tests of the dynamite guns of the Vesuvius, the Navy Department has decided to make further tests.

IMMIGRATION.

Comparative Statement of Arrivals at the Principal Cities. WASHINGTON, June 25.—The Treasury circular of statistics, issued to-day, shows that during last May only 310 immigrants arrived at the port of San Francisco, as against 430 during May, 1890, but for the eleven months ending May 31, 1891, there were 4,529, as against 3,145 for the eleven months ending May 31, 1890. The following table shows the arrivals at the other ports as compared with 1890:

Table with 2 columns: Ports, 1891, 1890. Rows include Baltimore, Boston & Charles, New Orleans, New York, and Totals.

Immigrants from British North America, possessors and Mexico are not included in the statistics of immigration, owing to the absence of a law providing for the collection of accurate data in regard thereto.

MYSTERIOUS CASE.

An Unknown Man Who Says He Was Beaten and Robbed. [Lincoln News-Messenger, June 23rd.] A strange case of supposed robbery and beating was reported to the officers, and causing no little excitement among the populace of Lincoln, Sunday night, the hour of 12 o'clock, a man came to the residence of H. N. Nadeau, a farmer, about five miles from Lincoln, awakened the inmates and applied for shelter, stating that he had been robbed of his blankets and other articles by a man over the head of the ranch had by this time gotten up, and the man was taken to a straw stack near by, and told that he could stay there for the night.

In the morning he was found to be severely injured, and in an unconscious condition. Word was immediately sent to the residence of Nadeau, and the man brought to town. Dr. Finney was summoned and made an examination of his wounds, finding that the skull was fractured, and that the man had received eleven distinct wounds on his head. They appear to have been inflicted by the hammer of a pistol or some sort of a sharp iron instrument. The man was taken to the hospital, and then beaten almost to death while in a helpless state.

Nothing was found on his person except a purse containing $13.00, which fact makes the matter more of a mystery. It is thought that the man was taken to the hospital, and then beaten almost to death while in a helpless state.

Several parties identified the man, and stated that he was in Lincoln Sunday, in company with a short, heavy-set Swede, with a sandy mustache, and that they were in the vicinity of the hospital, and that they were engaged in the work they were engaged in and fled without taking his money. He was taken to the County Hospital.

TRESPASS ON TIMBER LANDS. MADISON (Wis.), June 25.—The State Land Commissioners have during the last three months been investigating the subject of trespass on timber lands and have unearthed great frauds. Millions upon millions of pine timber have been cut by various individuals of the public lands, and the loss to the State treasury in the past two years, the robbery has been going on for a dozen years, and the loss to the State treasury is enormous. Many of the trespassers cannot, of course, be traced, but much of it is chargeable to responsible loggers, who sell their timber to men where marks are found on it.

COINAGE OF SILVER DOLLARS. NEW YORK, June 25.—A Philadelphia special agent has been sent here among employees of the United States Mint. They fear it may be determined at the Cabinet meeting at Washington tomorrow to stop the coinage of silver dollars. The Superintendent of the Mint has already come to the conclusion that silver notes in circulation, but there is enough to meet all the public demands. Still he does not think the coinage of silver dollars will be stopped. There is a large amount of subsidiary silver and about $30,000,000 in gold to be coined as soon as time can be found.

WEST POINT CADETS. WASHINGTON, June 25.—As a result of the recent examinations at West Point, 99 out of a total of 146 applicants have been admitted to the United States Military Academy, to form the new class. The list of names has been turned back from last year's class, who are to join the new class in September, will probably swell the total to 111. Among those admitted are Daniel Delaney and C. R. Willoughby of California.

CRUISER PHILADELPHIA. WASHINGTON, June 25.—Orders have gone forward to the New York Navy-yard for the preparation of two new wooden masts for the cruiser Philadelphia. Still he does not think the coinage of silver dollars will be stopped. There is a large amount of subsidiary silver and about $30,000,000 in gold to be coined as soon as time can be found.

ANTI-GILT SOCIETY. WASHINGTON (Pa.), June 25.—An anti-gilt society has been formed among the leading students of Washington and Jefferson College. The object of the society is to devise some plan by which more attention will be given to the college by the students, and not so much to the seminary young ladies. The members, upon initiation, take a vow that they will not call upon any young woman more than once a week. If this obligation should be broken the member must present a satisfactory excuse or be expelled from the society. It is hoped by the professors of the college that the society may be a success.

A bride was arrayed in her wedding finery and 200 guests had assembled at Keyport, N. J., when she received word from the groom stating that he couldn't be present, as his wedding clothes didn't fit him.

INGERSOLL ON ALCOHOL.

Forensic Language Used by the Great Orator. Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll was once employed in a case which involved the manufacture of ardent spirits, and in his speech to the jury he used the following language: "I am aware there is a prejudice against any man engaged in the manufacture of alcohol. I believe from the time it issues from the coil and poisonous worm in the distillery until it empties into the glass, it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the jails, of the prisons, of the scaffolds on either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Ingersoll, in his speech, said that the manufacture of alcohol is a crime, and that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it, from the source to where it ends. I believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All we have to do is to think of the wrecks on either side of the stream of death, of the suicides, of the deaths of the children, of the destruction of the little children tugging at the breast of weak and despairing wives, asking for bread, of the men of genius, of the insanity of the poor, of the struggle with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing, and when you think of the jails, of