

WE'RE NOT SILENT.

The Sewerage Agitation Will Surely Result in Good.

Work Commenced Immediately—Dr. Nichols Details His Plan—The Trustees Taking a Hand.

What has become of the sewerage question? It is a question that has been heard frequently on the streets within the past two or three days. During the time that the several agitation meetings were being held every body was talking about the sewerage, and many had expected that much good would result.

True there has been little or no agitation of late, but this is not saying that the whole thing has been dropped. Quite the contrary. Sacramento is to have a new sewerage system—eventually a superb one—and the plans are now well under way.

LOOKED DOUBTFUL. The city authorities are now working hand in hand with that energetic, anti-silurian official, Health Officer C. B. Nichols, and he is giving nearly all of his time to the subject.

It will be remembered that the last of the citizens' meetings adopted a resolution calling the attention of the City Trustees to dangers that menaced the city in account of its ancient and foul sewers, the inability to dispose of the sewage, the probability of costly law suits from people living in the "Pocket," who were being inundated in the slime and filth from the city. And the Trustees were exhorted to do something—anything, in fact—to remedy the evil.

A great many thought that the whole matter would end here, and it did look so for a time. The situation got to the ears of the Trustees, told them how he and his family had lived here in Sacramento, in the "Pocket," and how he never had been sick a day. He expostulated about the expense that the agitation would soon subside; that Dr. Nichols was but a "new broom," and that the rising generation ought to be able to get along with the old sewerage system, as they found it—that they were no better than the "old boys."

YIELDED TEMPORARILY. Trustee Conklin is said to have succumbed to this argument, and announced his intention of "not voting to throw away a cent on the sewers." Mayor Constock, too, thought that there was not so much danger after all, and that the people living in the "Pocket" could be quieted all would be well. Trustee McLaughlin, however, held out for a change. Since then, however, the Mayor and Mr. Conklin have been over the ground and studied the matter closely, and are satisfied that something will have to be done, and that very soon.

Dr. Nichols began to lose heart, but one day Judge H. O. Beatty dropped into his office, and announced that he had studied the doctor's plan all over and was satisfied that it could not be improved upon. He and the doctor discussed the whole problem over for several days, and finally came to the conclusion that they had it solved. The doctor had settled the sewage part of it, and Judge Beatty the financial part. Those to whom they unveiled their scheme commended it in the highest terms, and the doctor was practical, too. Neither of the gentlemen could be induced at the time to make the matter public in detail, but it is now known that Judge Beatty had an understanding with a number of the principal city bondholders, that the latter would advance the $40,000 on personal notes, of the twenty responsible citizens, not to be collected for eight or ten years.

ABOUT THE SEWERAGE. Dr. Nichols was interviewed at length in the sewerage question by a RECORD-UNION reporter.

"Yes, I am happy to say that the prospects are very bright again," said the doctor, cheerfully. "First, the plan is well, sit down and I will tell you. It is rather lengthy, but we will not go into details. But, first let me say that the city Trustees and the Board of Health are now working as one body, and working as harmoniously as could be desired. I had a long consultation with the Trustees and some eminent engineers yesterday at Mayor Constock's office, and we have agreed on just what is to be done. My plans struck them as being about right, and I think the city will be benefited in only a matter of time when the sewerage system will have as good, if not a better sewerage system, than the average city, situated as this is. We have gone right to work, too."

"On the new system?" "Not exactly on the new system. But we work that the present one is not satisfactory—it is to be permanent. You see, the very first thing to be done is to keep the sewage off the people living in the 'Pocket,' and this is done by a law suit. This is what we have gone to work on. The pump at Eighth and Y streets was examined and found that with larger pipes and a few other improvements, will be of sufficient capacity to handle the sewage. The repairs will be completed in a few days, and then we will proceed to pump straight into the river. This will relieve the 'Pocket' people, and then we can go to work on the new system."

"THE PRECIPITATION PLAN. The Trustees," continued the doctor, "have given me power to have the necessary surveys made to determine where the permanent pumping station shall be located. First, at Eighth and Y streets, or where it is now. Then I have in detail a plan for the sewerage system and disposal of the sewage. This plan I have been working on for about three weeks, or a month, and it will embody the precipitation plan, as originally suggested by the RECORD-UNION, which is now in operation in Worcester, Mass. There will be four precipitation tanks. I think that will be enough to start in with. If we need more afterward they can be easily added. Now, you have evidently heard some people arguing that with the precipitation plan we would have as much if not more trouble and expense in burying chemicals and getting rid of the sludge or solid matter which settles to the bottom of the tanks, than we have now with the whole business. I have that objection disposed of already. A representative of a phosphate manufacturing establishment has already been to me and stated that the houses would furnish the city all the chemicals necessary in the precipitation and would remove the sludge, free of charge. They will do this simply for the privilege of taking the sludge away. Phosphates are manufactured from it, you know. That is quite an item of economy for the city, is it not? That ought to quiet the most demonstrative silurian."

"But, doctor," asked the reporter, "how about the general renovation of the sewers in the city?" "Oh, that will not be forgotten. I have my plans already formulated on that branch of the business. The present system, of course, needs much overhauling and re-arranging, but we want the pumping and precipitating works first. By some changes in the present city drainage system we can get along for a while, but I anticipate that in the course of a couple of years all of the old sewers will be replaced with new ones. What I proposed now is to run the Seventh street sewer down to U street, and then run an intercepting pipe down to 10th and 11th streets, and from there to the pumping station. Next we will repair the Sixth street sewer and extend the Sixth street sewer to the pumping station. Extend a sewer from Ninth and 11th streets across to the proposed U street, and so it will be the station, and then by a system of cross-sewers into this U street one, effectually drain the section on the other side of the U street levee. This, with the precipitating works, will be a splendid start—and, once started, it will be no trouble to gradually improve all over the city. I will repeat what I said before, and that is, that in a comparatively short time Sacramento will have a sewerage system that will equal that of any other city situated as this is—if not a better one."

NATIONAL ENCAMPMENT.

The Old Soldiers Will Cross the Continent in Great Style.

The Grand Army of the Republic delegates from California to the National Encampment will leave for Detroit July 27th, and will be gone three weeks or thereabouts. The train will consist of ten handsome Pullman cars, while the fine car known as "California on Wheels" will again go East as the hotel car of the G. A. R. excursion.

Courtesy John T. Sullivan, of the Sea Beach Hotel of Santa Cruz, has been given the management of the train. He paid a visit to San Francisco and Oakland last week, and was accompanied by General T. H. Goodman. Together they went to inspect the train now being fitted up in the Oakland yards. The dining car will be a masterpiece of solidly built together and elegantly fitted up. Forty-eight can be seated at once and each table is opposite a wide plate glass window. The kitchen, where the train will be the finest that ever crossed the continent, and as Mr. Sullivan says, "If Smedberg is made National Commander, as we hope, we will certainly have the gayest crowd that you ever came across."

Many Grand Army men will take their wives and daughters with them, and this will add much to the gaiety of the excursion.

That veteran chef and member of the Veteran Guard, Charles William Smith, Sacramento and chef at the Sea Beach Hotel, says the Santa Cruz 2007, has entire supervision of the hotel department, the provisioning, catering and general management of the train. The California Grand Army. This will be no small task, as there will be nearly or quite 200 in the train, and the old army boys are not contented with "beans, coffee and hardtack," but Mr. Smith will be more than equal to the occasion, as he has an enviable reputation throughout the Union.

THE SURGEON'S KNIFE.

It Had to Be Freely Used on Suffering Johnnie Green.

Johnnie Green, the boy who was so badly injured by falling from a freight train on the Haggin ranch a few nights ago, had his great toe and the one adjoining, on the left foot, amputated yesterday by City Physician Nichols, assisted by Dr. G. C. Simmons. The operation could not have been safely performed when the boy was first brought to the hospital, on account of his weak condition, but yesterday the doctor concluded that he was about strong enough to undergo the ordeal, which necessitated his taking there. The bandages and splints (such as they were) were taken off the right and left feet, and new ones substituted—this time pieces of a cigar-box having to do service. The leg is fractured near the ankle, in two places and it is swollen. The doctor had concluded it is better to amputate the limb, and he is satisfied that the limb may have to be amputated. The doctor hopes for the best, however, and everything possible will be done to save it.

The Oaklanders could not hit Harper, and up to the fifth inning only two hits had been made against the San Jose pitcher. Both teams played a good fielding game.

SEEMED TO BE RATTLED.

The Senators Put Up One of Their Poor Games.

San Francisco Did Not Do Much Better, and Won by Only a Single Run.

The Sacramento desired the defeat they suffered yesterday at the hands of the San Francisco. They put up a slovenly fielding game, and France appeared to have temporarily lost his effectiveness. When the visitors needed a hit he could not prevent it, and it was mainly through his lack of control and inability to deceive the batters that San Francisco made four runs in the seventh inning.

The bases were filled—two of the runners reaching the bags on "four balls." There were two outs, and Midget Sweeney came to the bat. He picked out a nice one and drove it at McCloskey in center field. The latter got in front of the ball, but allowed it to go by, and the result was that four men crossed the plate.

But this misplay was nothing compared to the remarkable piece of bungling fielding the third inning. Sharr knocked the ball into the air to the right of and behind second base. It dropped in the middle of a circle formed by McCloskey, Sunday Armstrong, and Sharr. Sunday Armstrong, second base, and McCloskey in his haste threw high to the baseman. Nobody was backing him, and the ball rolled over to the San Francisco's bench. Hutchinson and Spies chased it up, and the former threw hard to Peoples at third, in an endeavor to head off Sharr at the bag. But Peoples made a bad nut, and the runner walked in over the home plate.

The audience could hardly stand this, but they did not have more than time to shout over the error, when the ball was in the air again. Sweeney knocked a liner over Hutchinson's head. Works was waiting for it on the roll, but to the horror of the spectators, he failed to roll to roll between his feet and back to the fence. Sweeney made the circuit of the bases.

When the Sacramento did finally retire the side they looked as though they were ashamed of themselves, and two or three of the team doubtless wished they were off the ground. The game ended in a yellow ball-playing, however, the home team came near winning the contest. They hit the ball hard at times, and were only one run behind when the game ended. The score stood 8 to 7. Peoples and McCloskey made home runs.

Cobb was not as effective as usual, and France did not seem to be the hit ball puzzling to the visitors. Both catchers gave good support.

Armstrong played a strong game at second base, excepting seven out of eight chances. He also batted hard.

Nick Smith was at third for San Francisco, and played just as he used to five years ago. He handled five chances neatly and without erring.

Works made some exceedingly hard plays while at the bat. Two of them drove the ball straight at Sweeney, in center field, and he could not miff them. Sheridan unpired squarely, and there was no dispute over his decisions. Following is the score:

RAISED THE BID.

Judge Van Fleet in the Capacity of an Auctioneer. A piece of real estate in the block bounded by N and O, Sixth and Seventh streets, belonging to the estate of Delia Bloom, deceased, was sold by order of court recently for $1,575. When the matter came up for confirmation before Judge Van Fleet yesterday morning there were a number of persons present who desired to raise the bid.

When the Judge asked the usual question if anyone desired to bid more than the price reached, $900. Then there was a bid, and commenced bidding at a lively rate. They kept at it, some raising it by $10 jumps, and others by $100, until the price reached $1,575. Then there was a bid. The bidders looked at each other and then James Riley offered $1,900. Nobody cared to raise this bid, and the property was sold to Riley.
