The RECORD-UNION and WEEKLY UNION are the only papers on the Coast, outside of San Francisco, that receive the full Associated Press Dispatches from all parts of the world.

This paper is for sale at the following places: L. P. Fisher's, room 21, Merchant Exchange, California street; the principal News Stands and Booklets, and at the Market-street Ferry.

Weather Forecast. Forecast till 8 P. M. Friday: For Northern California--Fair weather; warmer in the interior and cooler at Keeler.

HOW DO WE REST?

Dr. William A. Hammond, retired Surgeon-General of the United States Army, has in the North American Review for August a thoughtful, practical and lucid paper on the art of resting, which is so full of vigorous truth that it ought to be read by all men.

Some of the positions assumed by the doctor in this journal has on several occasions set out, but others are new. That Americans in business require more rest than do people anywhere else in the world is true, as the doctor asserts, because with us there is so great expenditure of nervous energy, living as we do in the atmospheric altitude of push, rush and bustle, and because, aside from our dissipations, our occupations are very largely of an exciting character.

But, and here the apparent newness of Dr. Hammond's idea develops, mere change of air and scene and engagement in new exercises is not necessarily rest; the great majority of us have, however, been thinking that it is. Change of air--not to less salubrious--is a good thing, to be sure, but the healthiest people in the world, the Scotch Highlanders and the Swiss, never experience it, except such change as comes in the winds that blow over their mountains.

One whose occupation is mainly brain use experiences benefit by change to physical labor. Some of us make this change daily and attribute our maintained vigor to the practice. The body does not require absolute rest, it really never gets it. So if the brain-worker flees to the woods or the sea shore, lolling in inaction there will not rest him, and he will experience no such benefit as if he reads some, or rows and hunts more. But we wish that at this point the distinguished physician had dwelt upon the fact that there is not only no rest, but absolute injury to the soft muscled man of the town, who goes into a country retreat and exercises beyond his usual strength, crowds into a few weeks exertion that mountaineers and rural residents only are equal to after years of dwelling in the altitudes or the fields.

The authorities in San Francisco have resolved to issue no more commitments for the Industrial School. This means that within two years at the outside the doors of the manufactory of criminals will be nailed up. It is a consummation devoutly desired. If it could be accomplished at once the greater would be the beneficence of the undoing. The "school" has been a living lie and a constant folly for a quarter of a century, reflecting shame and dishonor upon the city of its location. In its abandonment there is evidence of a wholesome growth of good sense in San Francisco.

The news from Chile is that the insurgents have material of war that will enable them to almost wholly re-equip their army and make an immediate advance upon Balmaceda. Let us hope that this news is verity, and that the dictator, now in the last days of power, will be taught that the right to govern springs only from the consent of the governed.

Cost of the Weather Bureau.

The following shows what it costs to run the stations of the Weather Bureau now in operation throughout the United States. The total cost is $28,575 14. This amount is required for rent of offices and for heating, lights, water, ice, brooms, matches, writing material, etc. There are 163 stations, making an average of $237.78 per station.

since there is so little to which they can turn for amusement or employment outside of the frivolities of society. Few of them in this country can take paper and pencil and go into the woods and sketch from nature, but in England nearly every well-bred woman can do so. Here few of them take pleasure in substantial literature, fewer still are equal to much out-door physical exercise.

Dr. Hammond's idea is that our men and women need to be managed in this matter, as the farmer manages his field who knows the advantages of a succession of crops. There must be direct change from one thing to another if there is to be good production, and some land must lie fallow every now and then. And so American men and women require rest, but they do not get it, according to the average American method, and especially in their summer vacations.

WHAT has come upon the New Jersey people? We had, in common with all others, esteemed them especially conservative, slow to action, the very opposite of sensational, and the last people in the world to engage in violence and lawlessness.

Yet at Asbury Park on the 4th inst. a vigilance committee of Jerseyites ducked a man in a cold stream repeatedly, and then stripped him and compelled him to run a gantlet while they belabored him with ropes' ends until he fell down from sheer exhaustion. The reason for this phenomenal manifestation of lawless vigor upon the Jersey shore was the shock to the moral sensibilities of Jersey because a summer boarder was making love to another man's wife. Not that the practice is to be approved, but we confess to surprise that summer resort residents should have open eyes for this sort of thing. If everybody at seaside resorts is to be ducked and flogged who makes eyes at pretty married women and whispers tender things in their ears there will be lively times from this on and the White Cap business will boom.

Of course the Jersey people have vindicated the moral sentiment of the community; of course the fellow who was ducked and flogged deserved all he got, and the woman ought to have been made a witness to his drubbing, but we submit that if flirtation at the seaside is to be thus summarily broken up, the backbone of the seaside business may suffer also. Codes of morals for pleasure resorts are so often turned face to the wall by those who make hay in the sunshine of the summer exodus from towns and cities, that we must be pardoned for expression of surprise at this sudden resurrection of sensibility, and especially on the Jersey shore. Let us hope that the new resolve will remain above ground, and that the summer young man will be given to understand, along with his seniors, that moral standards at the seaside are to be as elevated as in the communities that are not summer resorts, and perhaps a notch or two more so.

At the unveiling of Stonewall Jackson's monument last month, the orator, General Jubal Early, said: "If I should ever apologize for any part or action taken by me in the war, may the lightning of a righteous heaven blast me from the earth, and may I be considered as spawn of the earth by all honest men." Which proves that General Early is more than the manager of a lottery--he is a fool. For only the fool or the braggart would make such an expression in a public discourse. But then no one ever expects General Early to apologize for error--it takes a manly man to do that.

The authorities in San Francisco have resolved to issue no more commitments for the Industrial School. This means that within two years at the outside the doors of the manufactory of criminals will be nailed up. It is a consummation devoutly desired. If it could be accomplished at once the greater would be the beneficence of the undoing. OUT ON A STRIKE.

Another Upheaval in the Baseball Ranks.

Manager Ginsberg Has Called McCloskey Out, and the Others Refuse to Play Without Him.

It cannot be said with any degree of certainty whether or not there will be a ball game in this city to-day. There is one scheduled to take place between the Sacramento and Oakland, but dissension in the ranks of the local team may cause the contest to be claimed by the Colonels by default.

Yesterday morning when Captain McCloskey read in the RECORD-UNION what Manager Ginsberg thought of him, and learned the latter's reasons for deposing him, he was a trifle angry, and meeting Ginsberg out at the ball park he handed him his resignation as a player in the Sacramento Club.

The genial Samuel was somewhat surprised, but advised McCloskey to think the matter over twice before deciding to leave the team. He reminded him of the fact that he had a family to support, and also of the large salary he was receiving, and endeavored to induce the ball-player to change his mind.

But McCloskey was determined. He said he did not propose to pose as a figure-head in the club, and if he couldn't manage the team he did not want to play at all.

"All right," was Ginsberg's reply, "your resignation is accepted, and you are no longer a member of the Sacramento team."

When the rest of the players got wind of the tilt they were at a loss what to do. But by 3 o'clock in the afternoon three of them mustered up courage enough to call on Ginsberg and make some demands similar to those made a couple of months ago when Works was let out. The trio were McCloskey and O'Day. They wanted to know the reason of Ginsberg's action, and were promptly enlightened. But they did not agree with the proprietor as to the justice of his action.

"I won't play under any other manager," said O'Day. "I won't take the position of Captain and manager of the team," chimed Beattie McGuirk. "Old Mac's good enough for us. He stood by us and we're going to stand by him. They just want to take the management away from him first, and the next thing, as a matter of course, would be his release. I don't play unless Mac does."

Spies voiced similar sentiments. He said McCloskey gave him his job, and he did not intend to go back on him. He thought if the club just wanted to "screw" they would all stand up and declare that they would not play unless McCloskey was reinstated.

Stapleton said he intended to hold out with the rest of the players. After the interview between the players and Mr. Ginsberg, the latter said to a RECORD-UNION reporter that he did not propose to be bullied by any set of ball players.

"If they don't play without McCloskey to-morrow," said he, "they won't play at all. I'll forfeit all three of the games to the Oakland, and by next week I'll have an entirely new team! I won't stand any nonsense. For sale by drugists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. Twenty-five cents a bottle. M.W.F.

"A GOD-SEND is Ely's Cream Balm. I had cutn for three years. Two or three times a week my nose would bleed. I thought the sores would never heal. Your Balm has cured me."--Mrs. M. A. Jackson, Portsmouth, N. H.

I HAVE had nasal catarrh for ten years so bad that there were great sores in my nose, and one place was eaten through. I got Ely's Cream Balm. Two bottles did the work. My nose and head were cured. See the other man.--C. S. McMillen, Sibley, Jackson Co., Mo.
