REED'S ROASTER.

Editor Campbell Asserts It Was Correctly Reported.

Among the visitors in the city yesterday was J. S. Campbell, editor of the Galt Gazette, which published the report of the sensational speech made by W. M. Reed of Florin at the Farmers' Alliance meeting last Thursday.

In an interview with a Record reporter yesterday Mr. Campbell said: "The report of Mr. Reed's remarks concerning the Galt Gazette, as published in the Record, was absolutely correct. In fact, on the next morning after the speech had been delivered, I went to Mr. Reed, accompanied by Seymour Carr and L. M. Landsborough, and said: 'Mr. Reed, these are very damaging statements you have made about the Supervisors, and I would like to read you my notes, taken during your speech, to insure that they are correct.' Then read him my notes, and he said they were all right."

"I then said to Mr. Reed: 'But suppose that Mr. Nevis should deny that he had ever told you that the Supervisors had been paid $15,000, and that he had collected the money?'"

"He cannot deny it," was Mr. Reed's response, "as four others were present."

"Who were they?" I asked.

"I don't know," said Mr. Reed.

"Were they farmers?"

"I don't know."

"Were they employees of the winery?"

"I don't know."

"Did they have on kid gloves, or did they look like working men?"

"I did not look at their hands," replied Mr. Reed, and I ceased my questioning.

HOME AGAIN.

The Veteran Odd Fellows Give Samuel Smith a Reception.

Past Grand Patriarch Sam. Smith of the City of Veteran Odd Fellows returned Tuesday evening from St. Louis, where the session of the Sovereign Grand Lodge was held.

Upon his arrival here he was met by a delegation of the local Veterans and escorted to Odd Fellows' Hall, where a magnificent banquet was awaiting him.

After the feast had been disposed of, the speaker made a most interesting and timely address, in which he was warmly received by the officers and prominent members of the organization. The principal speech of the evening, of course, was that of the speaker, who all about the trip, and the session of the Sovereign Grand Lodge.

HAGGERTY'S TRIAL.

The Case Will Be Given to the Jury Some Time To-Day.

Testimony Calculated to Prove That the Old Man's Mind is Unbalanced—Medical Evidence.

Testimony for the defense was taken yesterday in the trial of John Haggerty, who murdered his son in April last.

Nearly everything brought out was calculated to show that Haggerty was not, and has not been for some time past, of sound mind.

The deposition of Dr. D. C. Malone of South Bethlehem, Pa., was read by Attorney Brunner.

HE WAS HURT. Upon being examined by a commission from the Superior Court of this county, Dr. Malone testified that seventeen years ago John Haggerty lived at South Bethlehem, and that witness was his family and attending physician. About that time Haggerty was injured on a railroad, his skull being fractured, and concussion of the brain followed. It affected his mind and he was violent at times, and it was found necessary to restrain him. At one time he escaped from his home and had to be taken back by an officer. Witnesses never considered him the same man after the injury, being at times wild, excited and irrational. He considered defendant's injury of a permanent character, and that he would never be able to do his ordinary work. The physician lived opposite Haggerty after the injury and had often seen him laboring under great excitement, and had seen him on several occasions during the hours of the night, clad only in a shirt and with a bull-dog and game-cock under his arm. He believed that the injury had made defendant easily excited and irresponsible for his acts. Any interference with or attempted harm to any of his dogs and fowls would excite defendant to such a degree that he would cause before he was injured.

ACED STRANGELY. Julia Haggerty, the 24-year-old daughter of the aged defendant, testified that she had just a few years ago and frequently observed her father acting in an unusual manner, being wild and incoherent in his talk, and very abusive at times. He would accuse his wife and daughters of all sorts of crimes, which the witness knew to be untrue. He was short and angry, and made those absurd accusations at all times when under the influence of liquor and when not. She believed that her father was insane and that she had never since she could remember for his conduct had been so during all that period.

On cross-examination Miss Haggerty testified that her mother had often intended to have the defendant examined as to his sanity, but no such action had been taken.

HE WAS BOSTEROUS. Mrs. Ida Frawley testified to having seen Haggerty acting in a strange and irrational manner on the morning of April 19th, the date of the killing. He was shouting and swinging on a wire clothes line.

Dr. T. W. Huntington, in reply to a hypothetical question, covering the facts stated in the deposition and by the previous witnesses, stated that assuming the circumstances as stated to be true, there would be a strong presumption that the person's mind was unbalanced.

Drs. G. G. Tyrell, H. L. Nichols and M. Gardner made similar replies.

There was some rebuttal testimony, after which both the prosecution and the defense announced that they had no more evidence to offer. It was rather late in the afternoon, and Judge Van Fleet being convinced that the attorneys would not finish their arguments ordered an adjournment until this morning. The case will go to the jury to-day.

Found in a Barn. About 11 o'clock last night City Physician Nichols telephoned from his residence, at Sixteenth and L streets, to the Police Station for an officer. He said he had found a man in his barn, but the fellow jumped through a window into the alley and escaped.

There was no officer to send, and if there had been the barn-stormer would have had a pretty good start of him.

A BURNING QUESTION.

How Shall the People Dispose of Their Rubbish?

The Smoke Nuisance—Should Fires Be Permitted in the Public Streets at Any Hour?

Sanitary Inspector Starr is credited by a contemporary with having expressed the opinion that people should be allowed to use the public streets in which to burn rubbish between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 5 p. m., he holding that the ordinance now permits the pollution of the atmosphere only prior to 10 o'clock in the morning and after 5 in the evening.

About a year ago the Keon-Union called attention repeatedly to the nuisance caused by these rubbish fires of mornings and evenings, and so many persons complained of it that the matter was taken up by the Trustees. The impression was held that an ordinance was passed providing that rubbish fires would not be permitted before 10 o'clock in the morning nor after 5 in the evening. Certain it is that last fall Chief of Police Drew declared his intention of stopping evening fires if he had to arrest people by the ears.

It is said that City Attorney Hays has informed Health Officer Nichols that there is no ordinance prohibiting the burning of rubbish in the streets, and that the Trustees did last fall make the matter referred to, and that a diligent search among the newspaper clippings in the scrap-book which does constitute the city's compilation of its laws, will reveal such an ordinance.

The mere prohibition of placing rubbish in the streets will not correct the evil complained of, as the majority of the fall and winter months are but leaves dropped upon the streets and sidewalks by shade trees.

As a matter of fact, street rubbish fires should not be limited at any hour of the day or night. No other city allows it, and it is high time for Sacramento to cut loose from her provincial and shiftless habits. Unless some restriction be enforced, the stranger coming into this city at nightfall during the autumn months will find the streets covered with rubbish arising from hundreds of yard and street rubbish fires, which penetrates the houses and causes much distress, especially to invalids.

Just what to do with all the rubbish that collects from falling leaves, the trimmings of trees, etc., is the question. If it could all be gathered at regular intervals and carted away, it could readily be disposed of; but the leaves keep on falling for the space of a couple of months. If a residence front be cleaned up at 9 o'clock in the morning, it will be just as uncleanly a condition an hour later.

Poor people cannot afford to hire scavengers, and a city which is so miserably one a week to remove the collections of leaves. Neither is it desirable that rubbish should be piled away in back yards, for that would be to propagate disease.

The question of the proper disposal of street and yard rubbish is one that deserves the attention of the Board of Health and City Trustees. If burning is deemed necessary, it should be confined to middle hours, and to back yards or alleys.

AMUSEMENTS.
