Cold and Starvation Starving People in the Face.

HUNGRY PEASANTS DAILY BECOMING MORE LAWLESS.

Death of Right Rev. Harvey Goodwin, Bishop of Carlisle-Peikatto, the President of Brazil, Issues a Manifesto, Which is Received With General Satisfaction Throughout the Country—Long Sentence Dealt Out to a Blackmailer.

Special to the Record-Union.
ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 25.—It may be truthfully said that the news from the famine-stricken districts of Russia does not in the least degree take from the horrors of the conditions that now confronts thousands upon thousands of the Czar's subjects. Nobody can estimate the number of deaths that will result from starvation and cold during the winter. The area affected by the famine comprises a section of the empire equaling in size nearly half the area of the United States, with a population of more than 4,000,000 souls. In many districts no winter sowing whatever has been done, and consequently the inhabitants have nothing to look forward to. The hope that they may be able to escape through the coming winter lies in the fact that the Government is taking most energetic measures to help the sufferers, and it is believed under the direction of the new Central Famine Committee, of which the Czarowitz is President, that relief will be more systematic and effective. The hunger-stricken peasants are daily becoming more lawless and the acts of brigandage occurring more and more frequently.

FAVORING CONTINUATION OF GRAIN.
ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 25.—The press of this city are continually publishing vehement denunciations of the merchants who are holding grain for advances, and clamor for the Government to compel them to sell their grain, or that it be confiscated against vouchers of future payment as was done during the Crimean war.

He was Dean of Ely from 1858 to 1869, when he was appointed Bishop of Carlisle in succession to Dr. Waldegrave. He was the author of "A Memoir of Bishop McKenzie," "Essays on the Pentateuch," "A Commentary on the Pentateuch," "St. Mark and St. Luke," "The Hulsean Lectures," in 1855-56; "Lectures on the Church Catechism," "Guides to the Parish Church," "Parish Sermons, University Sermons, etc.," "Walks in the Region of Science and Faith," 1888; and of some mathematical treatises, including an "Elementary Course of Mathematics," "Mathematical Problems," "Elementary Statics," "Elementary Dynamics," Dr. Goodwin was the first to propose the erection of a Church House as the Church of England's celebration of the Queen's Jubilee.

LORD LYTON'S DEATH.

It Causes the Most Profound Regret in Paris.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—The death, yesterday, of Lord Lyton, British Ambassador to France, caused most profound regret in this city. All the papers publish articles on the dead diplomat, and all speak in the very highest terms of his great services to his country, and pay high tributes to his many attainments. They all concur in the opinion that in France France has lost a sincere friend. In an article on the late Earl, published by the Journal, the paper says the presence of the Earl of Lyton in Paris was the reassuring pledge of peace that all the protests made by the Cabinet of St. James.

Many ladies were so frightened that they paid when arrested a forged bill of exchange was found in his possession. He was also convicted on this charge, and given seven years additional.

THE UNIONISTS GIVE A LUNCHEON IN HIS HONOR AT BIRMINGHAM.

BIRMINGHAM, Nov. 25.—The Unionists gave a luncheon in honor of Lord Salisbury to-day.

In a speech referring to the tariff question he said on all sides there appeared constantly increasing protective duties calculated to stifle British trade. The protection herself on which the tariffs were founded grew like other evil passions upon what it fed. Watching the English statistics, he could not but feel anxiety lest the efforts of foreign protectionists should be partially successful. The errors of foreign statesmen might be transmitted to Great Britain. Undoubt-

SPECIAL TO THE RECORD-UNION.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Under date of November 17th Congressman J. D. Warner wrote to Senator Carlisle in reference to Congressman Mills' candidacy for the Speakership, saying, in part, that he recognized the strength of Mills claim, but that every Democratic member of Congress whom I know in favor of relegating tariff reform to the rear is opposed to Mr. Mills. It is, however, asserted by Mr. Warner, that Mills is unfitted by temperament to make a dignified and effective presiding officer. Warner begged Carlisle's opinion on the subject.

Senator Carlisle, in reply, refutes the assertion, and says he is sure if Mills is elected no one will ever have just cause to complain of his demeanor or general course on political questions.

Referring to the unfortunate disposition in some quarters to subordinate the question of tariff reform to others less important to the people and dangerous to the harmony and success of the Democratic party, the Senator says: "Upon the tariff question we are practically united, while upon the silver question, and perhaps upon some others, there are wide and honest differences of opinion among the members of our party, which can only be reconciled by patient deliberation. Why shall we, on the eve of a great national contest, when victory is almost within our grasp, abandon or ignore a vital issue upon which we are united, and waste strength in a fruitless controversy over questions which can better be adjusted after it has been determined what part of the platform the people shall be permitted to keep. The first duty of the Democratic party is to change the laws under which the earnings of the people are taken away from them by unjust taxation for private purposes, and whoever proposes to postpone the performance of this duty in order to inaugurate a new party, or to raise the silver question, or any other, is not a wise counselor, and would not make a safe leader."

The barkentine was hoisted by the Perkins back into the bay, but the hawser parted, and the Etina, coming up, made fast and brought her in instead. The Mincola continued on her voyage.
