

CURRENT POLITICS.

The Work of the Late Republican State Convention.

Something About Each of the Presidential Delegates Sent to Minneapolis.

[Special Correspondence RECORD-UNION.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9.—The Republican delegation has been selected, and ready to act at Minneapolis. It is a body greater in some respects than any other. It is not bound by any rules or obligation. It can vote as it pleases, and is above all law. No other body of representative men is above all precedent.

These national delegates, though holding no office, are really far ahead of all others in power that they cannot be compared with them. The national delegates are at the very front of all important administrations. For the next four years they stand as how to influence the administration. And it is a primal fact that the administration depends largely on these men after it shall have been elected.

How well the convention did its work the RECORD-UNION readers can judge when they have carefully reviewed its work.

Charles A. Felton came here when he was a boy 17 years old. He came here in 1850 and at once took a prominent stand in Yuba County, where he was elected Tax Collector. He went out among the rough and once being accused of dressing too loudly, he said: "I bought these clothes, myself. Do you see these sleeve-buttons? They cost me $60 a piece in Paris; and this shirt cost me $12, and if you fellows don't want to dress as I do, when you have the money to do so, then don't you vote for me."

Mr. Felton got a large vote and probably owes his election to the fact that he engaged in the banking business, where he had come to San Francisco and was appointed United States Sub-Treasurer, which position he held for seven years. He was then elected a member of the Assembly from San Mateo County, and re-elected again. Thereafter he was chosen to Congress and re-elected. In the Senatorial fight of a year ago he was elected to succeed Hon. George Hearst.

M. H. DYONIS was born in Louisiana and came here when very young. He was chosen a delegate four years ago to the National Convention, and re-elected to the same position the National Committee. He, by his tact and energy, has succeeded in building up for himself a high position in the San Francisco Chronicle.

N. D. RIDEOTT was elected in the State Convention by the highest vote to represent this State at Minneapolis. He is a leading banker of Northern California, having branches in Sacramento, Marysville, Oroville, Chico, Willows and Auburn. The fight he made was won, and it had the effect of making him known as one of the shrewdest politicians in the State.

E. F. SPENCE is not a novice in the matter of getting on in the world. He formerly kept a drug store in Nevada City, but he afterward moved to Los Angeles and brought into the First National Bank, where he has succeeded exceedingly well. His bank was the depository of the large capital that was brought to that city about the time the "boom" started in the southern counties. He has since moved to 600 to aid the Methodist Church in establishing a new college in Southern California. He was a delegate to the National Bankers' Association, held at New Orleans, and contributed largely toward getting the bankers to hold their next convention here. Probably bankers representing $20,000,000 were expected to come here because of the herculean efforts of Mr. Spence.

GEORGE A. KNIGHT, of the electric works, was the first district delegate chosen. The early part of his life was spent on the ranch in Eureka, Humboldt County. Then he studied law and rose rapidly in his profession until in 1872 he was elected District Attorney. Afterward he removed to this city, and has been very successful in the practice of his profession. Eight or ten years ago he was nominated for Congress, but was defeated on account of the district being against him that year. He has been a delegate to a National Convention once before. When Garfield was nominated George Knight was one of the men who did it.

E. S. PILLSBURY is a new man in national politics. He was born in Maine and came to California in 1865. He practiced law in Stockton for ten years, four of which he was District Attorney. He then came to Sacramento, and commenced to practice here, first as a partner with Daniel Tittus, and afterward with Blanding, Pillsbury & Hayes. He is regarded as a prominent practitioner, having among his clients the street railway companies and other corporations. He is also the attorney of Mayor Sanderson and other men of that character.

A. J. RHOADS, the delegate from the Sacramento District, was born in North Carolina and came to California in 1850. He was of a roving disposition and located for a short time in Red Dog, but after traveling around through the mountains he located in Sacramento, where he has permanently resided ever since. For ten years he was engaged in draying, but at the end of that time he opened the Sacramento Theater and was successful in this, as in every other business he undertook. In 1872 he was Sergeant-at-Arms of the Assembly.

Z. THOMAS RIDDER, the other delegate from this district, is the well-known railroad man. He took the road leading from Colfax to Nevada City, and is a first-class man wherever he is placed.

D. T. COLE, the delegate from the Northern District, was born in Vermont and came here in 1851, where he lived for five years in Sacramento, since which time he has made Sierra County his home. He has been engaged in mining and is now engaged as proprietor of a stage line. He has prospered at all of these and is now a well-to-do man.

R. T. JACK, of Southern California, was born in 1842 in the State of Maine. He came to this coast. Coming here in 1864, he at once began the sheep and wool business with Colonel Hollister, who recently died at Santa Barbara. He afterward bought a half interest in the rolling ranch of 600 acres, which he paid for in eight years in his wool business, though there were several dry seasons. After this he sold his interest in the ranch and engaged in the banking business, establishing the bank of Jack, Goldberg & Co., now the First National Bank of San Luis Obispo County.

ELLI S. DENISON, This is Mr. Denison's third time as representative of his district in the National Convention. He was elected a delegate in 1881, again in 1884, and now again in 1892. He was born in New York, and commenced railroading on the New York Central when he was 21 years of age. Coming to California in 1851, he went to work in the mines, until the Sacramento Valley road was started. He then engaged to work for that company. Some four or five years afterward he took the position of conductor, and in 1859 he bought out the business of news agent for the Southern Pacific, and has continued to own it ever since. Two years ago he was elected to the State Senate, and has two more years to serve.

E. P. JOHNSON is the Los Angeles partner of Governor H. H. Markham. He has only been in the State a few years, but his little is known of him.

E. V. SPENCER is one of the most worthy men that could be selected from the northern district. He is a man of commanding appearance, and talks fluently and gracefully.

P. T. BAKER is one of the strong men of the great valley of the San Joaquin. He has a lion-like head, and is a stalwart, inviolent, and does. He will be found on the right side of every public question.

L. B. ROBBINS, This gentleman is the leading banker of Solano County. He was elected a delegate four years ago. He tried to get a position some years ago as driver of a country team, but failed, and then he took to driving a pair of mules. Now he is the richest banker in Solano County.

O. A. HALE, This is one of the youngest members of the California delegation. He is a popular merchant in San Jose, and has stores in a number of other towns. He discovered the shortage in the city finances a few months ago.

A GRATIFYING SUCCESS. Last Night's Concert and Ball Quite Largely Attended. The concert and ball at the new Pavilion last night was attended by about two thousand people. Many more would have been present had the weather been less unsettled. A number of those attending were provided with waterproofs and umbrellas, while heavy wraps, rather than light costumes, prevailed.

The musical programme heretofore published was rendered, and the two bands proved a fine combination. C. A. Neale, leader of the First Artillery Band, and Pedro Cortez of the Huzzar Band, acted alternately as conductors during the evening.

At half-past 9 o'clock dancing commenced, and was participated in by a large number, who enjoyed the occasion greatly.

George H. Clark was Floor Director, and the following-named gentlemen acted as Floor Managers: Howard K. Robinson, H. J. Kilgarriff, George Krauer, Frank Martin, John Wiseman, Fred Knox, Jr., Ira A. Robie, Ed J. Kay, Wilbur E. H. Johnson, H. J. Deffen, Gus Turner, Al P. Booth, Major W. H. Ennis, J. A. Gill, H. C. Chipman, James Graham, C. W. McLaughlin, J. A. LaFollette, W. W. Douglass and Frank Hollister.

A considerable sum was realized toward swelling the operating concert fund. The musical programme heretofore published was rendered, and the two bands proved a fine combination. C. A.
