

HE RECHRED LOCKE.

A Startling Story of How the Manager Once Paid a Bill.

The Nickel-in-the-Slot Machine Certainly Does Pay—Trotting Races of the Future.

"Well, I see that Manager Locke, of the much famed company, had a stormy season in Oakland, too," said Professor Fred Knell, the violinist, when he was in town a few evenings ago. "His remarkable how that man gets around the country, and keeps out of jail as well as he does," he continued. "No matter where he goes, creditors pursue him in hordes. Bother him? Why, bless you, no. I know Locke very well, and I honestly believe he would fall into consumption, or some other deadly disease, if he should change his business methods. He can receive a howling creditor with the most supreme loveliness and amiability you ever saw. You can't get mad at him in his presence. He never denies that he owes you the amount of your bill, and always promises to pay. 'Now, my dear friend,' he will say to you, 'I am a little short, but I know you need the money, and if you will wait until the next morning I will pay you, even though there are other bills that have a prior claim on me.' You leave all of your confidence and trust in the next morning you learn at the theater that Locke has gone north, or south, as the case may be."

OFFICER TALBOT.

He Explains How He Was Told a Citizen to "Move On."

The published statement to the effect that Officer Talbot the other evening ordered a well-known citizen to "move on" without any apparent cause, evidently did the officer an injustice. Inquiry into the matter reveals the fact that there had been a fight on the street and quite a crowd gathered, causing excitement and confusion. Officer Talbot tried to disperse the crowd, and in so doing encountered Frank Bailey, whom he told to move on. The latter became indignant, and some words followed between him and the officer. As a matter of fact, it appears that the officer was simply discharging his duty, and a policeman's duty is not always pleasant. While Mr. Bailey was doubtless unconscious of any wrong-doing in the matter, still it was the officer's province to disperse the crowd.

SALOON "PARTY."

There Was an Exceedingly Lively One at Oak Park.

Philip Stevens, F. H. Stewart and Mrs. Hattie Stewart were arrested by Constable Rich and Deputy Constable Swift yesterday on charges of disturbing the peace. The arrest of Stevens and Stewart was on the complaint of Daniel Constock, who also charges Stewart, who is his son-in-law, with threatening life. Mrs. Stewart was arrested on complaint of J. H. Allen.

Will Try Again.

An Irrelevant Youngster.

One of the most respected "mothers in Israel" in the city recently delegated to her young son the duty of notifying the members of the church society. He was somewhat irreligious, and added to the notices, "no flowers," "please bring a cake," "please bring studied eggs," or "ward," "Christian soldiers" as struck his fancy. The notices caused much comment, and the ladies were much mystified.

Citizens' Alliance.

There was a meeting of Citizens' Alliance, No. 1, on Thursday night, at which the following persons were chosen delegates to the People's party County Convention: J. D. Jost, D. W. Bishop, W. V. Edwards, J. V. Vance, W. H. Haman, Charles Jenkins, J. H. McKune, James Eldred, John Nelson and J. D. Moynahan. The following were elected alternates: William Trites, J. H. Shelton, M. H. Strout and Otto Bell.

Saloon-Keepers Protest.

A committee from the Retail Liquor Dealers' Association called at police headquarters yesterday and protested against the action of the police in enforcing the midnight-closing ordinance. They declared that as long as the police permitted the faro games to run, they, the saloon-keepers, did not propose to heed the midnight ordinance.

To-Day's Picnic.

The Native Sons held their picnic at Eld Grove to-day, and no doubt a great crowd will be in attendance. Trains leave this city at 8:30 and 10:30 A. M., returning at 4:30 P. M.

Maggie McMasters Returned to Her Home by an Officer.

Little 4-year-old Maggie McMasters, who was found at Second and O streets on Thursday, and taken to the police station, was returned to her parents yesterday. Her mother was found at Eighteenth and O streets by Officer Fernal, who was nearly frantic with grief over the loss of her child, and had not thought to apply to the police.

A HEAVY LOAD.

"Brushy" Jones Had More Benzine Than He Could Carry.

"Brushy Jones," an old offender, was arrested and taken to the police station last night by Officer Higgins. Jones was found wandering about the Chinese quarter with a heavy roll of blankets and a heavier load of liquor. The double burden was more than he could carry and he was given a place of refuge and rest in one of the cells in the jail.

Purnell. Mrs. Beveridge was President of the Board of Lady Managers of the Centennial Exposition of 1890, and now occupies an important position in connection with the coming exposition in Chicago.

REPORTER MARSHALL.

The Newspaper Writers' Union takes up His Defense. At a meeting of the Newspaper Writers' Union last evening, a communication was received from J. B. Robinson, delegate from the Typographical to the International Typographical union, and delegate to the Council of Federated Trades, requesting the union to proceed no further in the matter of the dispute between the proprietor of the News and Reporter Marshall, who was recently discharged therefrom, on the ground that there was no question of the violation of Union rules involved.

AMUSEMENTS.

Miss Agnes Huntington presented Plaquette's comic opera, "Paul Jones," at the Metropolitan Theater last evening to a full house. She is a tall, statuesque and beautiful woman and assumes male character exceedingly well. It was observable that she dressed as a man of the time of Paul Jones, and not as most actresses do, as a woman poorly disguised. She presents Paul Jones rather of the English type, than as the American idea of that dashy, dandy, and not as most actresses do, as a woman poorly disguised. She uses her voice excellently, and not with that apparent effort. At times his range touches at details upon mezzo, but she does this rather to give a clew to show her vocal capacity. Not a great singer, but a conscientious and pleasing one is Miss Huntington, and her voice is fortified by dramatic ability of a good order and a presence that is very charming to look upon. "Paul Jones" is pleasant, tuneful, bright and has a deeply involved plot. The piece was mounted and costumed superbly, and acted and sung throughout with spirit by a support that was well trained and seemed to have an ambition to do their part well. The encores were numerous, and judging by their fever, the audience was well pleased with the performance. Scott Russell, Eric Thorne, Eddie Mostyn, Eddie Chafin, Millie Marsden and Home Weidman acquitted themselves well in their several parts. Mr. Mostyn being a very clever comedian. To-night for the last time the troupe will appear in the comic opera "Captain Thorsen," which is a very clever and original piece, bright, enjoyable entertainment. The composer is Plaquette, an author whose graceful style first found recognition in
