

SACRAMENTO ATHLETES.

Boxers Kelly and Rubenstein Are Now Coast Champions.

How They Vanquished All Comers in the Amateur Tournament—Other Contests.

The members of the Sacramento Athletic Club were in a high state of glee yesterday when they read in the Record-Union that John Kelly and Henry Rubenstein of the local club had won the middle-weight and bantam-weight championships, respectively, at the Pacific Coast amateur boxing tournament at San Francisco Thursday evening.

These two athletes were the only representatives of the Sacramento club who entered the tournament, and the fact that both bring home first prizes and championships is looked upon as a great victory, both for themselves and for the club they belong to.

Rubenstein had a hard row to hoe, but his gameness and cleverness landed him at the top of the heap. He only weighed 109 pounds—six pounds below the bantam-weight limit—and all of his opponents were heavier than himself. His first met and defeated Jerry Sullivan, unattached. His next opponent was Joseph Kenny of the San Francisco Athletic Club, who had previously defeated William Spellman of the Olympic Club. Rubenstein defeated him after six hard rounds. Prior to this bout he had announced to the press that he would box a relay with Skuce of the San Francisco club, who was still fresh, and if successful could enter the final bout for the championship. Kelly, however, declined to box with Skuce, both being members of the same club, and hoping thereby to secure Skuce's victory over Rubenstein, who had already lost his rounds. But, notwithstanding these odds, the clever little Sacramento barber went into the San Francisco and defeated him by his right left leads, coolness and generalship.

The little fellow was pronounced a wonder by the Olympians, who, when their own eyes were opened, naturally favored the Sacramento, as a strong feeling of friendship exists between the two clubs.

Kelly had a easier time of capturing the middle-weight championship. He only met one man, and that one did not last through the first round. His name was Kemp, and he represented the Little Athletic Club. Kelly knocked him all over the ring and was about to knock him out when Kemp's seconds threw up the sponge. Kelly is comparatively a new hand at the game. He is a pupil of Professor William Johnson, instructor at the local club, and he has shown a remarkable physical development, and being quite an apt pupil, advanced rapidly under Johnson's care. The Sacramento clubmen have looked upon him for several months as a possible champion, and now their hopes are realized. He went into the tournament as a second division, one of his eyes having been quite seriously hurt about a week ago. But he had his mind set on going, and go he did. There were four other middle-weight class, but one managed to get low enough in weight to go into the water class. Another saw Kelly being weighed in and drew out. This left only Kelly and Kemp.

The friends of both men were looking for their arrival yesterday, intending to give them a reception, but they did not come up. Rubenstein's friends decorated his shop with flags and bunting.

The various championships, as decided by the tournament committee, were during the ensuing year: Heavy-weight, John Kitchin, Jr., Acme Club, Oakland; middle-weight, John Kelly, Sacramento Athletic Club, water-weight, S. Little, Olympic Club, San Francisco; light-weight, George F. Green, Olympic Club; feather-weight, William Daly, Sacramento Athletic Club; bantam-weight, Henry Rubenstein, Sacramento Athletic Club.

PROSPEROUS SACRAMENTO. The County Has Practically No Delinquent Tax List.

In to-day's Record-Union will be found the official publication of the delinquent tax list of Sacramento County for the fiscal year. The list occupies but little more than a half-column of the paper. This is a remarkable showing, indeed, considering the fact that it has heretofore ranked less than one page of a newspaper, and that the delinquency was more than that, while the delinquency has run from $6,000 upwards.

It is doubtful if there is another county in the State, be it large or small, or otherwise, that can crowd its delinquent tax list for the year into a half-column of any newspaper.

THE SLEEPING BRAVES. A Large Congregation Attends the Synagogue Last Evening.

The memorial services held at the Synagogue on Sixth street, and conducted by Rev. J. L. Levy, called out a good audience. The Synagogue being fairly crowded. The decorations were very tastefully arranged, and consisted of flags, flowers, and banners of the various Grand Army Posts draped and festooned about the altar and walls.

Some seventy-five members of the Grand Army marched to the Synagogue in a body, and entering took seats reserved for them at the front. The opening service of prayer and song was impressively rendered, after which the river into the wagon and landed at the Police Station, still in fighting trim.

The audience was very attentive and evidently deeply impressed with the services. The speaker was very attentive and evidently deeply impressed with the services.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT. J. W. Greenlaw Squeezed Between a Wagon and a Building.

J. W. Greenlaw suffered a severe accident yesterday at the woodyard of C. W. Greenlaw, on J street, between Fourth and Fifteenth. He was standing between a wood-wagon and a building when the team attached to the wagon took fright and started up.

Mr. Greenlaw was pinned in so closely that his own weight was out of the wagon, and cut through to the bone. His right knee was also sprained, his hips bruised and left wrist injured. His injuries will lay him up for some time.

WANTS HIS CHILDREN. Augustus Laue Complains in Court of His Wife's Actions.

Augustus Laue appeared before Superior Judge Catlin yesterday with his attorney, A. L. Hart, and petitioned the court to issue an order directing Laue's wife to permit him to have something to say regarding the raising of their children.

The Laues have been quarreling for some time and do not live together. About a year ago Mrs. Laue sued for a divorce in Judge Catlin's court, but the latter, after hearing the evidence, denied the petition, saying that her grievances were exaggerated. The court directed that in the event of the husband and wife not remaining marital relations, the two children, both girls of tender years, should remain in the custody of the mother temporarily, but that the father should see them when he desired, and direct their education, etc. Laue called on his children often and, he says, offered inducements to his wife to permit him to live in the house with the children—all of which she refused.

When the matter came up in court yesterday Laue, through his attorney, represented that he was willing to provide maintenance for his family, provided they would live in his house. He did not insist that his wife should speak to him on the subject, but he did insist that she should have the children under his immediate care.

The children are at present with Mrs. Laue at the latter's mother's house, and Mrs. Laue's attorney, C. N. Post, argued that matters should be allowed to stand as they are. The children were being well cared for, and he said that he had had enough of him, however, he said.

Accident to the Solano. Yesterday forenoon the caisson on which rests the "apron" of the big ferry-boat Solano, which plies between Benicia and Fort Costa, sank, and it was impossible for the boat to make its usual landing to receive trains.

FALSE REPRESENTATIONS. Weinrich & Co. Make Serious Accusations Against Barrett & Berkey.

H. Weinrich & Co., the liquor dealers, have given notice in the Superior Court that they oppose the petition of Barrett & Berkey, insolvents, to be discharged from their debts.

The liquor firm in giving its reasons for the opposition make some serious charges against the ex-restaurant keepers. They say they are informed and believe that Barrett & Berkey swore falsely in their affidavits annexed to their schedule and inventory, in relation to material facts concerning their estate and their debts; that they are informed and believe that said debtors have concealed a part of their estate and effects, together with certain books and writings; that they are informed and believe that said debtors have been guilty of neglect in the care, custody and delivery to this court and the receiver and assignee herein of the property belonging to them; that, as they are informed and believe, said debtors have altered their books, documents, papers and writings, have lost a part of their property in garnishee proceedings, admitted fictitious debts against their estate; that they have not kept proper books of account, and while contemplating insolvency, have transferred, conveyances, etc., in the interest of preferred creditors.

STILL OUT OF IT. The Farmers Down the River Not Yet Injured.

The Farmers Down the River Not Yet Injured. The river rose an inch in this city, and was full twenty-seven feet. Then, when the breeze died away in the afternoon, the gauge showed an inch less water, the river standing at 6 o'clock last evening at twenty-six feet eleven inches.

Down at Freeport the gopher-holes gave considerable trouble, but at 6 o'clock last night P. G. Riehl telephoned to the Record-Union that everything was in good shape—"considering"—and that their sand-bag embankment would withstand considerable more water.

There was a rumor about noon that the Yolo levee had gone out at West's place, opposite Oak Hill, but it was soon proved that there was no truth in the report. Parties on the Yolo side still talk of mysterious shots at West's place, and attempts to cut the levee over there by residents of that side. If half the power were burned that is alleged to have been, it is strange that nobody has been shot, yet somebody is likely to do damage in that direction if the bullets continue to fly aimlessly about there every night.

CHASED BY A JAP. A Little Schoolgirl Frightened Almost Out of Her Wits.

When Nellie Proctor, a pupil in Miss Louise Conrad's class in the Capital Grammar School, returned to school yesterday afternoon, after going home to lunch, she was crying bitterly and so excited that all her teacher could find out as to the cause was that a "Japanese kidnaper" had almost caught her. As her nervousness only seemed to increase upon questioning Miss Conrad sent her home to her father, and she was taken to her room, where she was comforted by her mother.

AMUSEMENTS. Richard Mansfield Had a Good House at the Metropolitan Theater Last Night when he presented his play of "Beau Brummel."

The piece was handsomely mounted, staged without regard, apparently, to the cost, the sole idea seeming to be to make the most of the things as nearly a reflection of reality of the time of the play as is possible to scenic art and the artist's belief. The expense of mounting such a play as this of last night for a single evening must be great, goes without saying. Mr. Mansfield's own opinion was very close to the approach, if not an absolute realization of the original, as social tradition gives him to us. Mansfield is an accomplished actor, an artist, and a man who makes intelligence the keynote of his work. He is not an imitator. We should judge that he is original in all he does, and the character of Beau as he presented it last night demonstrated his capacity to give finish and completeness to whatever he undertakes. His precision is something surprising, indeed, in his command of the perfection of detail, rather than in achieving success by strong points here and there made. THE LOSS OF FLESH IS A TRIFLE. You think you need not mind it.

But, if you go on losing for some time or lose a good deal in a short time, you are running down. Is that a trifle? Get back to your healthy weight and generally you get back to health.

OLD LANDMARK GONE. The Ruins of the Old Rabel Tannery Destroyed by Fire.

At midnight last night the last remains of the old Rabel tannery, near the north levee and beyond Agricultural Park, was consumed. Mr. O'Brien, who owns the property, recently discharged his Chinese laborers and employed Japanese, and he thinks the Chinamen set it on fire out of revenge.
