DELAY IS EXASPERATING.
A few days ago we called attention to the imperative necessity of immediate steps being taken for systematic consideration by the people of better levee protection. It is very distasteful to be compelled to refer to the subject again,

THE PEOPLE EXPECT IT.
The late Chief of Police has demanded that the incumbent of the office vacate and turn the Chieftaincy over to him.
Scarcely anything short of a flood or a conflagration would be more calamitous to the city than acquiescence in that proposition.

NOTE AND COMMENT.
The Calaveras Prospect has entered upon its twelfth volume. The Prospect is a worthy representative of a county rich in material things and rich in historical and romantic incidents. It is a good paper, and that it receives a liberal local patronage is an evidence of the good sense of the people of Calaveras County.

of the name and fame of a public person, for good purposes, may not be justified without consent of the guardians of his memory. The court certainly did not mean to say that public characters may not after death be written of, their memory perpetuated in monumental art, and their example held up for public good, and their names used for the benefit of others, without the consent of their family, who might wish to make commerce of that consent. If the court so holds, we must beg leave to object to its reasoning.

OF course, if one sought to use the statue or the memory of a deceased public man as an advertisement, or for purely business purposes, or to further wholly selfish ends, his heirs or kin ought to be given admission to the law for protection of the name and fame of their ancestor or kinsman. So, too, these might have an excellent case in court if one in an effort to do honor to the memory of the dead brought the subject into unpleasant notoriousness by solicitation and ignoble methods. But that the family has the legal right to interpose to prevent a people from doing honor in a respectful manner to the memory of a public benefactor, who had not in life objected to public recognition of his services, is not to be thought of.

IN Mrs. Schuyler's case, therefore, the court was right, because that lady was not a public character; she deprecated publicity of her philanthropic labors, and had not courted but evaded applause. Her memory was properly protected from that which in life she would never have approved, and which would have pained her. But it is not settled even by the decision of the New York court that a public person may have his post mortem fame cut short when the people wish to publish it. The feelings of the family of one who was not a public character are to be respected in the matter of attempts to give notoriety to his private beneficences; but the family of one who has invited public criticism and approval, and has deserved public judgment, it would appear should not be privileged in the law to prevent public manifestation of approval in monumental art after the beneficial actor has ceased to live.

A STARTLING EXPOSE.
The San Francisco Chronicle of Saturday makes an expose of the milk trade of that city which is more than startling; it is astounding. If one half that is re-ported is true, it ought to cause such a shaking up in San Francisco as would command the attention of the whole country. It is charged, upon the strength of the statements of a Board of Health Inspector, that not a pint of pure milk is sold in San Francisco; that it is all adulterated and is doctored with "preservative" and similar coloring and preserving mixtures, all of which are dangerous to health; that most largely the cows are diseased and are fed on the distillery slops that are nothing less than disease-breeding and that do not contribute nutrition though they stimulate the flow of milk. To such an extent are the preservative and coloring mixtures used, that the use of ice to keep the milk has been wholly abandoned, save at one dairy.

Whether San Francisco will continue passive under the showing made remains to be seen. The concern of interior cities in the matter runs only to the inquiry, "Are the mixtures used and the adultera-tions practiced in interior city dairies?" What proves so profitable to San Francisco milkmen could scarcely escape the cupidity of unscrupulous dealers in the interior. We entertain the belief, however, that adulteration is but little practiced in the interior, and that there is but little "doctored" milk in interior cities, and that diseased cows are not often to be found in our dairies. But it would be well to know of a certainty that this is a just conclusion, and to know positively that there are no cows with tuberculosis permitted in the dairy herds of the interior. Certainly the expose made by the Chronicle, backed by the emphatic statements of the Health Inspector, are of such a character as to create alarm and to put inquiry on foot in every direction.

SUMMER IN THE HILLS.

Visitors Gathering at the Pretty Town of Auburn.

"J. W. R." writing to the RECORD-UNION from Auburn, Placer County, says:

"Your correspondent stopped at Auburn on Friday night and found the town full of visitors. Freeman's Hotel was crowded, and the proprietor was compelled to engage many rooms in outside houses to accommodate his guests. The Putnam Hotel and the Orleans were also crowded for room.

"Taken altogether, Auburn as a summer resort seems to be a favorite local city. The Southern Pacific is preparing to put up a fine depot, and making other needed improvements, which the growth of the town requires and for which the residents express themselves as very grateful."

TRUTH STRANGER THAN FICTION.
A True Story from North Carolina.

Some one has said that "the true and the false speak the same language." But there can be no doubt that this speaks with the truest truth to the letter and to the spirit.
Apex, N. C.—My son Harvey had scrofula from the time he was three years old until he was seven. We had the best doctors that the country afforded, yet he was given up to die, several times. Some one recommended Dr. Parro's Golden Medical Discovery.

After taking five bottles he was well enough to get about, and has mended so fast that he is now enjoying good health.
