

THE FIRST NUGGET.

It Will be Exhibited at Sacramento and Chicago.

The First Lump of Gold Found in California Likely to Become State Property.

In the mining exhibit to be made at the coming State Fair will be shown the original lump of gold found by Marshall in the mill-race at Coloma, which comparatively few persons have seen. This is the nugget brought to the old Sutter Fort one rainy winter night, where Captain Sutter tested it and pronounced it gold, and the discovery of which aroused the world and brought thousands of fortune-seekers to the Pacific slope. Referring to this nugget, and the proposition to place it in the mining exhibit here in September, the Examiner says:

It is a very ordinary nugget to look at, but it will be viewed by the thousands with feelings of mingled awe and admiration. It is a small piece of quartz, dull gray in color, embedded in the gold, and its corners are also rounded and worn off by the action of prehistoric waters.

For many years this bit of gold was lost to the public, only Attorney W. W. Allen and the Wimmer family, in whose possession it had been held since its discovery, knowing of its whereabouts. It was kept in a box at the safe deposit office of Mrs. Elizabeth Wimmer parted with it, and now the precious lump is carried in a glove finger rolled up and put into a chain-link leather pouch which is securely inclosed in a big purse belonging to Attorney Allen.

TAKING CARE OF THE BEAN. Superintendent W. G. Scott of the mining exhibit traced the nugget to its present owner and succeeded in getting a promise from Allen to allow it to be placed on exhibition. The next step was to get the nugget into the Columbian International Exposition at Chicago.

At the State Fair it is to be surrounded with the greatest possible protection against thieves who might be tempted to steal it. The nugget will lie upon a velvet cushion on the top of a pedestal. A plate-glass case will enclose it, and a railing surrounding all will keep visitors at a safe distance. Electric alarm wires will lead to the nugget, and if anybody attempts to steal it certain bells will ring and give the alarm.

Those people specially interested in the display of the Marshall nugget at both exhibitions are already discussing the most attractive way of exposing it to public view in Chicago. W. G. Scott, who has charge of the local exhibit, is of the opinion that a most appropriate method would be to place it in the outstretched hand of a reduced life statue of the heroic figure of Marshall at Coloma, which shows him in the act of holding his discovery to the world.

Attorney Allen, who has affidavits on the authenticity of the nugget and knows its history intimately, brings Marshall on the scene as a sort of understudy to Mrs. Elizabeth Wimmer, known as Polly Wimmer in mining days. She was married to the plains in 1846 with her husband, Peter Wimmer, in Harlan's band. In 1848 she arrived at Sutter's Fort, and there cooked a meal for General Fremont.

HOW IT WAS FOUND. Later on she found Marshall lying on the ground, raving in chills and fever. She took him into her tent, nursed him and saved his life. When Marshall recovered a site for a sawmill on the American River for General Sutter, he took the contract for building it, and gave a sub-contract to Wimmer. Mrs. Wimmer was cook in the new camp.

When specks of shining metal were noticed in the mud, the argument occurred as to whether the metal was gold or only mica. Marshall picked up a nugget carelessly and handed it to Peter Wimmer, saying it was mica and of no value. The Wimmers, who had been in the Georgia mines, thought differently, and tested the nugget in the kettle of soap suds, and then Marshall, still doubtful, had it tested at Sutter's Fort. It was gold. He kept it for a few months, but gave it back to Mrs. Wimmer, who claimed it as her own. She never parted with the nugget till 1878, when she gave it to Attorney Allen in trust, and he has held it since.

A. C. Henry, ex-Mayor of Oakland, Sam Brannan, D. J. Staples and Colonel Pitt were the first to see the nugget. He testified that it was one picked up by Marshall at the Coloma mill in 1848.

A son of Mrs. Wimmer living at Fresno is desirous of buying the nugget. Allen thinks it should go to the State Mining Bureau and so become State property.

Mrs. Wimmer died some time ago, but her husband is still living in the neighborhood of Santa Cruz.

AMUSEMENTS. The testimonial concert to W. H. Kinross last evening drew a large and representative audience to the Metropolitan Theater. The concert was a superior one and distinguished by general excellence. The program was carried out as printed in the Record-Union yesterday, save that Mr. Rosevall, by reason of illness, was unable to appear. Mr. Melvin, the baritone, was heard here for the first time, and won the applause of the entire set. His enunciation is a model of distinctness. He has a style of exceptional vigor and vitality, and his voice has the sympathetic and elastic quality so essential for the male singer. The favor he won was well merited. Mr. Wilkie, the well-known tenor, sang in excellent voice throughout the evening with fine taste and sweetness of feeling. Mrs. A. E. Brune, whose soprano is so well known to Sacramento audiences, sang in good voice and with entire familiarity with the music. Her tones, which are abnormally delicate, have gained somewhat in strength. Mrs. Charles Hickman, contralto, was heard here for the first time. She possesses a rich voice, trained in the refinement of vocal art, and managed excellently. It is marked by accuracy, sweetness and flexibility. She is not a dramatic singer, but one who sings with feeling, nevertheless. True intonation, fine taste, breadth of register and refinement of taste make her a singer to command recognition and excite the most pleasing sensations. Mr. Kinross, with whose baritone the audience is familiar, sang excellently and in good voice "Honor and Arms," and in a manner distinguished by self-possession, finish and good taste. He declaimed a number of the male choruses of some thirty voices proved to be well balanced, though a trifle light in basses. It sang acceptably and won the approval of the entire first part, and in the second, with Mr. Genshela and Mr. Cohn as soloists, gave, for the first time here, Dudley Buck's "King Olaf's Christmas" with pleasant effect. Mr. Melvin, Mr. Wilkie, Mrs. Brune and Mrs. Hickman responded to encores, that were sincere, and testified to the satisfaction of a critical audience. Miss Amelia Bohl was accompanied, and at no time in her long service in that capacity more won the attention of an audience or more deserved the general verdict that in that difficult office she has few equals. The orchestra of seven or eight pieces, while not faultless, was superior to the ordinary, played with good will, and was sympathetic with the conductor's spirit, the beneficiary of the evening's wielding the baton. In the overture, indeed, it won much applause, playing with especial spirit and precision. The Arion Mandolin Club, five gentlemen and ten ladies, with mandolins and guitars, supported by a flute and piano, made its first appearance in concert. It was the novel feature of the evening, and a very pleasing one. The club was heartily encored. It would be necessary to hear the club in several numbers under differing conditions to form an accurate judgment concerning it. But that it is a very promising organization is not to be questioned. Its success was undoubtedly last evening. It was very modest in its effort, but precise and introduced much color into its numbers. It made manifest the results of much study and of good effects in instrumentation. The difficulties in producing tasteful effects where strings instruments so greatly preponderate are not few, and that the Arion so gracefully met them speaks well for their future if they will maintain the organization and keep it in practice. The concert, as a whole, was highly enjoyable and a deserved testimonial to a gentleman who has done much for art in Sacramento.

To-morrow, at 11 a. m., a picnic will be given at Richmond Grove, under the management of W. A. Biese. There will be candies, ice-cream, etc., for all. Admissions, 25 and 10 cents.

A very pleasing entertainment was given at the German Lutheran Church last evening under the management of the ladies of the congregation.

Indorsed by Native Daughters. Miss Mae B. Wilkin of Santa Cruz, Grand President of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, has written to the Historical Section of the State Fair Inauguration Association inquiring about the movement for a historical exhibit and encouraging the Native Daughters to take part in it and aid in collecting for it.

Early in the Field. The Prohibitionists have nominated Mrs. M. J. Williams for County Superintendent of Schools. Nothing like being in time. The first election for that office will be two years from this fall.

The Next Concert. The First Artillery band will officiate at the concert to be given at the Plaza on Sunday evening, commencing at half-past 7 o'clock.

SHELDON'S ELOPEMENT.

Kelly and Miss Theobald Were Married by Contract.

Maud's Father Will Endeavor to Recover His Daughter by Means of Habeas Corpus.

The usual reconciliation at home and happy wind-up are not going to be features of the sensational elopement at Sheldon.

George Kelly, who ran away with Miss Maud Theobald, was found yesterday at his brother's place near the County Hospital—the old Lansing ranch. Maud was there with him, and seemed rather to enjoy the notoriety she had acquired. Kelly exhibited a document which proved to be a marriage contract signed by himself and Maud, setting forth that their ages were 23 and 16 respectively, and that they had mutually agreed to become man and wife; that they find it inconvenient to have the marriage solemnized in the usual way, and therefore desire to marry by contract. Kelly said he had the document recorded yesterday forenoon. He told of the elopement freely. Maud had been treated at home by her father, he said, otherwise the marriage would not have taken place so soon. They loved each other, and could not bear to see her abused. Heather, he said, would beat her every time she spoke to him (Kelly). Maud affirmed that this was the truth. Her father had even threatened to kill her.

Resuming his narrative Kelly said that after Maud had escaped from her home at Maud's ranch, he went to the Elk Grove where Justice Stick had promised to acknowledge the contract. But the Justice changed his mind when he saw the girl and they drove to Kelly's brother's house. Early yesterday morning the acknowledgment was made by H. C. Ross, Jr., a notary in this city, in the presence of Kelly's brother and the latter's wife.

But Maud's father does not intend to let Kelly have the girl if he can help it. Yesterday he petitioned Superior Judge Van Fleet for a writ of habeas corpus directing that Kelly produce the girl in court where the facts can be heard. He further sets out in his petition that his child is 15 years and 5 months of age, and that she is being unlawfully restrained of her liberty by Kelly.

The court ordered that the writ issue, and made it returnable before him to-day.

A SUTTER CITY LOT.

It Leads to a Suit Against M. P. Light by Ellen Cellarius.

M. P. Light, who visited Sacramento on Wednesday night as one of the grand officers of the Order of Chosen Friends, has been sued in San Francisco by Ellen Cellarius to recover $350, and she asks that defendant be adjudged guilty of fraud in converting said money to his own use.

The plaintiff charges that on May 1, 1892, she allowed $350 to be paid by Order of Chosen Friends. She says that Light handed her $50 of this sum, and persuaded her to intrust him with $300 to be invested in a lot in Sutter City. She says Light never gave her any deed to the lot, but gave her two promissory notes, one for $150 and one for $150. The plaintiff says she has not seen the money since, and cannot get around to attend to business very well.

YESTERDAY'S WEATHER.

The Weather Bureau's reports show the highest and lowest temperatures yesterday to have been 81 and 64°, with a cloudless sky and fresh southerly breezes prevailing.

The highest and lowest temperatures one year ago yesterday were 82° and 66°, and one year ago to-day 81° and 65°.

SOUNDING THE RIVER.

The Interesting Measurements Taken Yesterday.

An Unexpected Absence of Sandbars at the Present Time—Varying Depths of the Water.

At the suggestion of J. O. Coleman, representing the Citizens' Committee in connection with the proposed improvement of the levees, it was recently arranged to make some investigations as to the condition of the river channel below the city.

Mr. Coleman secured the steam launch Annie, and at his invitation Mayor Constock, Trustee Green, City Engineer Boyd and a Record-Union reporter yesterday took a trip down the river about twenty miles. Captain Dalton, the owner of the launch, volunteered his services and accompanied the party, as did Wm. B. Davis.

The launch left the foot of K street shortly after 8 o'clock a. m., and after taking soundings of the river at sixteen points between the city and Clarksburg, returned home, arriving about 3:30 in the evening.

The report of the Examining Commission on Rivers and Harbors of 1889, which shows with respect to the channel of the river from its source to Suisun Bay, was referred to for an idea of the condition of the river's bed at that time. This report shows that the channel to have undergone yearly changes for a long period, and that sandbars and shoals were continually shifting and changing. The investigation yesterday was made with the object of comparing the results of later and actual measurements with the official report mentioned, and to prove or refute the various statements which have been made in relation to the condition of the river's channel at these several points.

Some exaggerated rumors have been spread that the river's channel was almost filled up, and that sandbars and shoals were forming at various points in the stream. These rumors were brought to bear upon the question of levee improvement so frequently that the Trustees of the city were desirous to investigate the matter and collect positive information before taking definite action.

The measurements taken yesterday by City Engineer Boyd and the party show the soundings at the following points, as directly across the river as could be made from the launch. The first measurements were made on the city front as follows:

Between K and L streets, 50 feet from east bank, the water measured 17 feet, 18 feet deep. On the Yolo side the shallowest water was 6 feet, 25 feet from the west bank.

At a point opposite N street the soundings showed from 15 feet to within 25 feet of either bank.

Opposite Y street 7 to 18 feet was found.

At a point 200 yards below the Payne break in the Yolo levee the soundings gave from 7 feet, near the shore of the east bank, to 41 feet depth in the stream.

At Morkley's ranch 41 feet to 16 feet was found.

At 200 yards below the Lovdal break, 45 to 15 feet.

At Edwards' south line, from 6 to 16 feet.

At the Cheery ranch, from 6 to 38 feet.

At Riverside, from 6 to 40 feet.

At Brickyard, from 6 to 13 feet, which at Peter's ferry, from 10 to 37 feet.

At McVee's ranch, from 6 to 13 feet.

At Wexler's ranch, from 5 to 25 feet.

At Upper Freepoot, from 7 to 50 feet.

At Eagle Point, from 5 to 15 feet.

At Cane's, from 4 to 35 feet.

At Clarksburg, from 10 to 13 feet.

At many of the points above the measurement across the main channel of the river showed about the same depth of water from the natural slope of the bank as elsewhere.

Notably at Eagle Point, where the river is exceptionally wide, about thirteen feet of water was found to within a few feet of either bank. At other places the water was not deep, but no evidence of sandbars of consequence was found.

It was the prominent conclusion of the party, on completing the measurements, that the river bed was in a better condition than was expected by any of them.

Engineer Boyd stated, particularly surprised to find the channel as free as it proved to be, and that he expected to find it in a far different shape between Freepoot and Courtland. He said that the fact that the water was higher last spring at those places had led him to the belief that sandbars had filled in the channel to a great extent.

Two miles up from Courtland, at the head of Randall Island, the water was two feet lower last season than the previous high-water mark, by actual survey, and this had been accounted for by the theory that a sandbar had formed between Freepoot and Courtland. If, said Mr. Boyd, "any bar existed there it has evidently washed out."

It was Mr. Boyd's opinion that a bar formed in the channel anywhere within two miles of Freepoot would affect the measurement of the water as far as this city, and of course, at all intermediate points.

When asked for the soundings had been taken his opinion as to the bearing of the information gained upon the projected improvement of the levees, Mr. Boyd stated that he was not prepared to give it without some further figuring and estimates.

they are liable to do in others, and it would be wise for local Boards of Health in all cities to inquire closely into the methods of butchers and dealers in the interest of the people who have to eat meat, as well as of humanity generally.

He spoke eloquently and particularly pointed to his remarks a vote of thanks was tendered him by the meeting. The committee assured the speaker that they would now redouble their efforts to make the exhibit a success.
