

BRADLEY AND THE GAMESTERS.

The Police Captain Stopped All the Games Last Night.

Lively Scenes at One or Two of the Haunted Places—Officer Ahern Ejected.

Police Captain Bradley distinguished himself last evening by attempting to carry out his threat to arrest the operators of all gambling games in the city.

As previously announced in the Record-Union he had notified all gamblers that, whether the Chief of Police ordered it or not, he would arrest them if they did not close up.

He started out last night with about nine police officers, and visited all of the places where games were reported to be running. He nor his officers succeeded in making any arrests, but the placing of guards at each place caused the gamblers to soon close of their own accord.

MAKING THE ROUNDS. The Western Hotel games closed down as soon as the Captain put in an appearance, and did not reopen during the night.

Considine's, at Third and K, was next closed, and then Lafayette Hall was visited. It was understood that a fare game was in operation in the back room, after the Captain made a bolt for it. In a twinkling, however, the door to the room was closed and the Captain stood outside and kicked himself, figuratively speaking. He placed Officer Rider on guard at the door with instructions to arrest anyone who should attempt to come out. He placed some more officers in the alley back of the place, cutting off escape in that direction. Fred Gibson, one of the proprietors of the place, informed the Captain that he did not desire to resist, but he did not propose to be closed down if other games were permitted to run. He would close when they closed. The guard was finally withdrawn.

A LEVELY SCENE. The Golden Eagle billiard-rooms were the next point of attack. The Captain, accompanied by Officer Ahern, entered the place shortly after 9 o'clock and found an immense crowd waiting for them—most of them being there out of curiosity, having heard that a raid was to be made. The games went right along, however, until the Captain ordered them to stop. Ahern was placed on guard near a door where it was supposed that a fare game was in operation, and then the Captain went out. He did not molest the "crap" games in the billiard-room and the latter did not stop because of his visit.

Officer Ahern had no warrant, or anything to show why he was stopping in the house, so W. O. Russell, proprietor of the hotel, stepped over to him and told him to get out. "You have no business in here," he said, "and you are not wanted. I'll send for you when I want you." With that he escorted the officer out. The latter offered no resistance at all.

BRADLEY RETURNS. Everybody laughed at the officer's expense.

Ten minutes later Captain Bradley reappeared with Special Officer Fitzgerald. A great crowd had gathered at the entrance to the billiard-rooms, and the two had great difficulty elbowing their way through. At the door Mr. Bradley stopped them with a pleasant "how-do-you-do," and asked what they intended to do.

The Captain was nervous and pale. "I'm going in there," he said, and he brushed past Mr. Bowers and ran in. A scene of great confusion, and one that was ludicrous in the extreme, ensued. Bradley ran up to one of the "crap" tables and instead of making any announcements or arrests, he simply whacked the table with his lead-headed cane, and then ran off to another table. Here he grabbed up a handful of half-dollars and ran off to another table, which he perambled over to another table.

Of course, there was scrambling right and left, and during the confusion several hard-looking individuals tried to get their hands into the money piles, but were fought off.

FRANK DAROUX'S SPEECH. The Captain meantime danced about the place whacking tables and chairs with his cane. Presently he slowed up and got into a discussion with Frank Daroux.

At his conclusion he called out for quiet, asking the crowd to "listen to what Mr. Daroux has to say to you."

But Mr. Daroux didn't say anything—that is, nothing that could be heard above the babel of jeers at Bradley.

So the Captain spoke for him. "Mr. Daroux promises that there will be no more games to-night, and that they will all close now," he shouted, and with that he marched out of the place.

The games dying down, the operators were confident that "everything would be all right."

Most of the places in town were closed by midnight, some of them saving the police the trouble of calling them by shutting up of their own accord.

STOPPED THE WHEEL. The "wheel of fortune" maintained at Agriculture Park was captured yesterday afternoon by Captain Bradley, and the outfit taken to the Police Station, the proprietor giving bonds to appear in court.

There seems to be considerable strife about the matter of allowing the wheels to run, the Park Directors having sold the privilege to the wheel proprietors, and being anxious to have them allowed to proceed with the game, which is considered a "square" one, while Captain Bradley insists on making a record.

George Borchers, the well-known Sacramento baseball pitcher—the big boy with the strong arm—has returned from Portland, where he has just finished an engagement with the nine of that city.

Borchers will play first base for the Scott & Gilberts at Snowflake Park tomorrow in the game with the crack team from Vallejo.

The two clubs are tied for first place in the Valley Commercial League, and the game tomorrow will go a long way toward deciding where the pennant should fall. The home club has practiced faithfully during the week, and while they know they have a hard game, expect to win. Either Calton or Moody will pitch for the Sasstras Sour boys, although Borchers is anxious to appear before the Sacramento public again. He will occupy the initial. McCreavy and Farrell will be the battery for the Vallejos, and the remaining players will be about the same as played by the team when they last appeared here.

Following is the make up of the clubs: Scott & Gilberts. Position. Vallejos. Pitcher. Calton. Catcher. McCreavy. First base. Moody. Second base. Farrell. Third base. McCreavy. Shortstop. McCreavy. Left field. McCreavy. Right field. McCreavy. Center field. McCreavy. Base ball. McCreavy. Umpire. McCreavy.

Colonel Thomas Robinson of Oakland, who has been visiting the city as a guest of the Native Sons, has been persuaded to remain over and will umpire the game.

AMUSEMENTS. A very nearly full house welcomed Sol Smith Russell at the Metropolitan Theater last night. The Los Angeles train arrived late with the company, and the curtain did not go up until 8:45, but "Peaceful Valley" was played with all the vigor, despite the weariness of the company. To-night Mr. Russell's greatest success, "A Poor Relation." The matinee announced for this afternoon has been announced. Mr. Russell does not feel equal to giving two performances today. A comedian in the full, broad sense of the term, a hinner of men, not a caricature, and of the highest grade, a student, a devotee of the theater, and without unassuming, almost bashful in everyday intercourse, yet possessing an irresistibly magnetic charm of mind and manner. Such is Sol. Smith Russell, whose simplicity and naturalness in all his stage work has endeared him to the American public. His vocal value, "A Poor Relation" is but one of the many examples of his charming facility of depicting a character in which mirth and misery alternately dominate.

The box sheet is now open for the Jeffreys Lewis engagement at the Clunio Opera-house, to begin Monday night, and for the Dan Study engagement at the Metropolitan Theater, also to begin Monday night.

BURNS ABLAZE. A lively alley fire that gave the Department trouble.

Senator Dray's Horse and Two Buggies Burned—Several Barns and Other Structures Damaged.

At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon a fire was discovered in the two-story barn belonging to ex-Senator F. R. Dray, in the alley between Thirteenth and Fourteenth, and J streets.

An alarm was turned in and the department responded promptly. There was some delay in turning in the alarm and with the usual scarcity of water, gave the fire a fine start on the fire-laddies. The flames communicated with the barn on the west, owned by M. Chisholm, and occupied by T. M. Lindley, and State Printer Johnston's barn on the other side. All three barns were well-stocked with hay and the fire burned fiercely. Next the cottage on the corner of the alley and Fourteenth street, occupied by J. C. Halderman, caught fire, and some sheds facing on the alley opposite the burning barns.

Senator Dray was not at home, else his handsome driving horse would have been saved. As it was, however, the ladies of the house became too frightened to do anything before the flames got under headway, and the poor animal was roasted. Two buggies were also consumed in the Dray barn.

At three o'clock the flames were totally destroyed, and several sets of harness and a large quantity of hay were lost. Miss Jennie Lindley, who lives in the cottage, bravely and saved the family horses after considerable trouble. One of her hands was badly burned in doing so.

The department got the fire under control before the Halderman cottage was destroyed completely. As it was, though, about half of the building was burned off. Mr. Halderman is only a tenant, and his loss will not amount to more than $200. There was no insurance on the building. Senator Dray's barn was insured, but he is out of pocket about $1,000 on the horse, and contents of the barn. There was no insurance on the barn occupied by Mr. Lindley, nor on the contents. His horse, however, was badly scorched, as was also the Dray and Chisholm residences. All were fully insured.

The fire was just about extinguished when another was discovered at the corner of Fourteenth and G streets. The building owned by Frank Stadler had become ignited from flying sparks from the burning barns. By this time, however, the water pressure was splendid, and in a few minutes one of the lines soon killed the new blaze. The roof was damaged to the extent of about $10.

FIGHTING DRUNK. A Big Injun Goes on a Tear of Extensive Proportions.

A drunken Indian went to the Police Station yesterday afternoon and complained that he had been robbed.

He was crazed with liquor, and Jaifer McManus promptly locked him up in the "hobo" cell, where the Indian as promptly got into a fight with the inmates, who evidently objected to his company.

McManus, in a struggle to get the now wild Indian into another cell, had his arm badly sprained, and thinks it was bitten by the warrior.

Bad Sidewalk. There were many complaints yesterday and the evening before of the condition of the sidewalk at the northeast corner of Second and I streets.

Several ladies, in coming up with the Native Sons' procession, had their dresses torn by the nails that stick up from the plank and the whole walk seems to be rickety and dangerous.

Not a Fakir. The lady who may be seen on the streets playing a little organ wishes it understood that she is not blind, not deaf, nor lame, and that she has very weak eyes, however, caused by paralysis, which also destroyed the usefulness of her right hand and affected her power of speech.

Wants a Divorce. Mrs. Addie Hoxie has commenced suit for the divorce against her husband, Charles Hoxie, for divorce. She alleges desertion and failure to provide.

FORTY-SECOND ANNIVERSARY.

California's Admission Into the Union Appropriately Celebrated.

Native Sons Visit Sutter's Fort and Have a Good Time at Oak Park—The Pioneers.

The forty-second anniversary of the admission of California as one of the States of the Union was appropriately celebrated in Sacramento yesterday.

Stores and shops as a rule followed the example of the wholesale houses, and remained closed for the greater part of the day. Flags floated from masts all over the city, and the city took on the usual holiday appearance.

The Native Sons, Native Daughters and Pioneers as usual in the celebration exercises. According to the programme prepared by the local Native Sons for the entertainment of the visiting Natives from Oakland, the members assembled at Grangers' Hall, from which place they took the cars to Sutter's Fort. Here a few minutes were spent in looking over the historic ground and old fort and hearing an explanation of the projected improvements, and then the cars were taken again to Oak Park, where arrangements had been made for music, athletic games and dancing.

No one but the members of the order and their invited guests were permitted to enter the park, so the day's entertainment was selected in every sense of the word, and the guests were made to feel free to enjoy themselves to their hearts' content. The athletic sports consisted of a baseball game and tug of war between the home party and the girls' department, which had been prepared beforehand.

After dinner the Hussar Band furnished music for the dance, which was soon covered with couples, who all entered into the spirit of the frolic, and enjoyed themselves until late in the afternoon.

In the evening the Natives participated in the historical tableaux at the Pavilion, as detailed in another column.

In commemoration of the forty-third anniversary of Admission Day the Sacramento Society of Pioneers gave a banquet at Pioneer Hall, at which about fifty persons were present, including invited guests, yesterday afternoon.

The long table of their banquet-room was well furnished with good things, both to eat and drink, and a very sociable and hospitable time was passed.

After the banquet, which was presided over by J. M. Stevenson, a number of toasts were responded to and impromptu speeches made.

Many incidents and reminiscences of the early pioneer days were recalled, and the speakers proved themselves to be in happy trim and unusually ready and witty in responding to toasts and calls.

Among the toasts were the following: "The Day We Celebrate," response by Felix Tracy; "The Union of States," Dr. Obed Harvey; "The Pioneers," Dr. C. A. Neale; "The State of California," Robert Gourie; "Commerce," William Cummings; "Native Sons," James McGuire.

After the toast list addresses were made by Major Wm. A. C. Sweetser, P. S. Lawson, N. L. Drew, E. T. Whitchell, Trustee E. H. Green and others.

Among those present were the following: John N. Andrews, W. P. Coleman, C. K. Daugherty, N. L. Drew, E. P. Figg, W. A. Galt, J. Goodell, James McGuire, D. Shirlan, A. C. Sweetser, Henry Treichler, Jefferson Wilcoxson, E. F. Aiken, Martin Azen, Louis Callahan, James Caplan, C. Chandler, Hiram Cook, J. E. Drescher, Robert Gourie, Leland Howe, P. S. Lawson, W. W. Light, W. H. Luther, John S. Miller, George M. Mott, Wm. O. Galt, David S. Ross, F. H. Russell, W. H. Strong, Felix Tracy, Charles J. Zeinwait and others.

Cards and sociability ensued after the banquet, and the old spirit of pioneer hospitality and good feeling prevailed.

Bindery Lay-Off. The chatter of female voices was not to be heard in the State Bindery yesterday. There has been a big "lay-off" on account of the lack of work, and operations will not be resumed until the girls' department until business livens up.

Just a Matter of Opinion. She had been having fun with Dudekins right along, and he made up what mind he had to get even. It took the form of a brilliant and cogent counter-drum, whose answer he thought was locked in his many bosom.

"I have a conundrum for you, Miss Fanning," he said, when he next saw her. "Ah," he replied, "what is it? Who gave it to you?"

"I made it up myself," he asserted, bridling up somewhat. "What is it?" "Why are my clothes like the moon?" She hesitated a moment and Dudekins began to look triumphant.

"You may think," she said slowly, and Dudekins somehow felt the sand slipping from under him, "it is because they have a man in them, and you have a perfect right to think you please, Mr. Dudekins, opinions differ."—Detroit Free Press.
