NOT GUILTY.

Case of the Fish Commission Against W. P. Taylor.

SAN RAFAEL, Sept. 16.—The case of the People vs. W. P. Taylor of Papertville, charged with allowing matter deleterious to fish to pass into the water of Paper Mill Creek, was tried before Justice Duffing and a jury to-day.

P. Babcock, a member of the Fish Commission, and complainant in the case, was first called. He stated that on July 7th, in company with E. W. Taylor, he visited Paper Mill Creek and secured samples of the waste water as it came from the mill.

Thomas Price was called and gave a detailed account of the analysis made by him of the water. It was found to contain a number of substances detrimental to fish.

Several witnesses for the defense testified that the water was pure and that many of the people in the vicinity had been using water from the creek for years for household purposes.

The jury, after deliberating ten minutes, returned a verdict of "not guilty."

The case has excited interest in sections where mills are located on favorite trout streams.
