

ELECTRIC RAILWAYS.

The People Want the Two Complete Systems.

There Are Plenty of Streets for Both to Occupy and Make Money.

Since the application of the Folsom Water Power Company was filed with the Trustees, asking for a franchise to put in an electric railway system in this city, the people have discussed the situation quite extensively, and it seems to be the general opinion that the more street railways we can get the better.

With very few exceptions they welcome the advent of the Folsom Water Power Company and at the same time favoring the charter to the Central Electric Company for the completion of its system by the construction of a line on G and Seventh streets, which will enable them to reach any part of the city for the payment of one fare of five cents.

A few are found who say that if the G-street franchise is granted to the Central Company the Folsom Water Power Company will not accept the franchise it asks for on F and N streets. To take this view of the case is simply to attribute bad faith to the latter company, which is entirely unwarranted so far as any public expression from it is concerned.

It is urged that it is not wanted the franchise if the Central Company gets the G-street franchise, because that line would run only one block from its line on F street, that proposition is answered by the fact that it is asking for a franchise to run lines on I and N streets, both of which parallel the old company's lines only one block away.

The fact that the Folsom Company has asked for these streets indicates that it does not fear the competition of the old line, and this is understood to be because it claims that it can bring electric power from Folsom for the operation of its lines for very much less than the Central Company pays for its power, and can therefore operate its road much more economically.

There is but one opinion as to the great benefit to accrue to this city by the introduction of electric power from the great Folsom dam. This, however, is no new subject. On the 21st of last May the Record-Union published an illustrated article, occupying a full page, in which all these advantages were set forth at length from data furnished by the Folsom Water Power Company. It may be taken for granted that every citizen of Sacramento will welcome the introduction of electric power. But this is no reason why the Trustees should refuse to grant the G-street franchise, which will complete the Central system and give its patrons the accommodation they desire.

The people on the north side of the city want a road in operation this winter. They have managed to get along very well without one during the summer, but when the rainy season sets in they will want street-car accommodations.

At the G-street franchise is granted to the Central Company the franchise asked for by the Folsom Water Power Company can be taken up and with some little changes, which will make it as fully as advantageous as the one asked for, it can be granted, and the city will have two complete and competing lines, which will give Sacramento better street-railway facilities than any city on the coast. This matter should not be decided on the basis of advantage to one company over the other, but the question for the Trustees to determine is, "What is best for the city?" It can be answered in but one way. Let us have two complete competing systems. There is room enough for all.

THE LABEL CASE.

Examination of the "Bee" Proprietors on the Dodge Charge.

The case of P. H. and Emma Dodge vs. V. S. C. and Mrs. Charles McClatchy, proprietors of the Bee, for criminal libel was called for examination before Police Judge Cravens on Saturday.

Grove L. and Hiram W. Johnson appeared as counsel for the prosecution (besides C. N. Post, Acting City Attorney), while the defendants were represented by Charles E. Jones.

Mrs. McClatchy was not present when the case was opened and Mr. Johnson's request that she be called gave rise to considerable conversation, but Judge Cravens held that her presence was unnecessary.

The cause of the complaint was the publication in the Bee of an item clipped from a Red Bluff paper which reflected severely upon Mrs. Dodge. The publication and certain other facts were admitted by the defendants, who claim that the item was published without malice and under the belief that it was correct.

SHOULD HAVE A PATENT.

An Elk Grove Woman's Remedy for the Gambling Habit.

Issue Zemanaly, the pawnbroker, who purchased a quantity of jewelry from Edward Schulze, the dishonest drummer for George Greensweig, a San Francisco wholesale jeweler, some months ago. In a deposition given by Cronin he testified that Johnson and Greensweig offered him money to color his testimony to suit the latter's case, and in fact paid him a portion of the alleged loot. Hence the charge filed by Mr. Johnson, who denies the accusation.

WONG SING'S SONG. He Was Filled With Gin and Robbed by His Husbands.

A Chinese giving his name as Wong Sing complained at the police station last night that he had been robbed in Chinatown by one Quong Song, a merchant, of $50.

Wong Sing was laboring under a heavy load of China gin, and before reporting his robbery to the police he endeavored to create a riot in the Chinese quarter, but the highlanders threw him into Lake Como. When he got out he renewed his attack, but his load of gin and the combined forces of I street were too much for him and he applied to the police.

At the station he explained in drunken accents and muddled sentences that he worked at McQuay's ranch, came to town with $50, and the highlanders, the Bing Kong Tong and the Chee Kong Tong, which he said were "all same one company," robbed him, Quong Song being their agent.

Wong swore out a warrant for his robber and went off apparently drunker and happier than before.

Subsequently it was learned that his money was taken from him by friends for safe-keeping, and then Wong was locked up for the same purpose.

THE CONQUERING HEROES. Reception This Evening to the Victorious Sacramento Canton.

There was a large and enthusiastic meeting of Odd Fellows yesterday to make arrangements for a suitable reception to the members of the Sacramento Canton, Patriarchs Militant, on their return this evening from the Supreme Grand Lodge at Portland, Or., where they won the first prize in the competitive drill.

It was decided to meet at Odd Fellows' Temple at 7:30 o'clock this evening and march to the depot in a body to receive them. The two Uniformed Rank of the local Knights of Pythias will accompany the Odd Fellows and participate in the reception, which occasion the Hussar Band has been engaged.

The entire body will return to the temple, where an address of welcome will be delivered by Louis G. L. Johnson. The members of the Canton are returning by steamer and will arrive from San Francisco by railroad.

CITY FINANCES. City Auditor Young makes the following report of the receipts and disbursements of the city for the week ending Saturday, September 24, 1892:

Table with columns for item, amount, and total. Items include City Auditor's Office, Police Court fines, R. O. Cravens, Police Court fines, R. H. Singleton, cemetery dues, etc.

At the Rifle Ranges. The members of the local military companies had their semi-annual target shooting at the rifle and pistol ranges near the American river yesterday.

There were a large number present, but absences will be allowed a few days to get in their scores. The 200-yard pistol-shooting on Company G's range resulted as follows:

Table with columns for name and score. Names include W. H. Kern, J. W. Guthrie, B. Hall, etc.

A Victim of Optum. William Gaffney, who pleaded guilty to petty larceny in the Police Court on Saturday, exclaimed to the judge, in piteous tones, that his craving for morphine was all he could plead as excuse for his predicament.

"O, Judge," said he, "if you only knew how I crave the drug, wretch that I am, you would not ask me a question, must have the drug!" and the poor fellow's speech ended in sobs.

The excuse was not deemed sufficient by the court, and Gaffney got ninety days.

Police Court Notes. In Saturday's Police Court J. Nicolovich, the restaurant-keeper found guilty of selling liquor to Indians, was fined $10.

J. McCall, for being drunk, made an effective excuse, and on condition of his leaving town escaped unscathed.

Fred Wilson was fined $5 for battery. Fred Melby, for disturbing the peace, was fined $5.

JOHNNY AND THE CATSUP.

Another Bad Case of Didn't Know It Was Loaded.

What a Suburban Lad Suffered for "Monkeying" With Home-Made Explosives.

An alarming report was current about 10 o'clock last night that a young man in the vicinity of Twenty-first and L streets had cut his throat.

Two or three physicians had been summoned, and news of the tragedy had reached police circles, Chief Rodgers, Officer Higgins and a few others, who were reporter started for the scene of blood.

The alleged tragedy was found to have occurred at 2108 L street, and the officers and reporters soon effected an entrance.

There the family of Thomas Warmby was found gathered about the bedside of Mr. Warmby's son John, a promising and handsome lad of 16.

John had really cut his throat. He had, however, not cut it with a suicidal intent, but even with a razor, a dagger nor a bowie-knife, and he was soon found to be out of danger.

The cause of all the alarm was a quart bottle of home-made catsup, for the tomato variety with which John had been on friendly terms, but it exploded. Johnny, at his mother's request, went to the cabinet to bring out the catsup, and in struggling to uncork it evidently shook up the contents, and the apparently harmless magazine of sauce exploded with a cat's roar, sending the catsup bottle to atoms, shot the tomato clamp mostly into Johnny's eyes, and some of the glass cut his throat and one hand quite severely.

Johnny was partially stunned by the concussion and blinded by the catsup, and when he put his hand up and got it full of catsup he thought, naturally enough, that the final crisis in his career had come. Thereupon he was not silent, but sent up an alarm so effectual as to summon the neighbors, who gathered about the neighbors, and everybody sent for a doctor, while Johnny tried to die as easily as possible.

Some one wrapped a table-cloth about his neck, which was soon dyed crimson with much catsup and some blood, and it really looked as though Johnny had shed his last drop of blood. The catsup had somewhat subsided, and he still survived, the catsup and table-cloth were removed, and when the doctor came it began to look less serious.

When the police arrived the whole thing was explained. Johnny was resting quietly and was found to be painfully, but not seriously hurt.

Mrs. Warmby will have the store of explosive catsup removed to a powder magazine in the outskirts of town, where it may explode with impunity, while Johnny says that when he opens any more of it he will do it with a shotgun and at long range.

VICIOUS FIGHT. Ranch Hands Pummel One Another at Folsom.

Max Fisher, John Grosler and H. Buack, are three fellows who had been employed on one of the ranches near town, says the Folsom Telegraph. Their term of service having expired they started for town. Before arriving here they stopped at the different symposiums and Arizona, and qualified the flowing bowl with such industry and vigor that the two last named became decidedly drunk.

In a short time the three began fighting. Fisher did all the fighting, Grosler being content to do anything but look on. Buack was knocked down and a couple of clubs broken over his head.

After breaking the clubs on his victim Fisher began using a sharp-pointed stone, and was beating his man fearfully.

About this time a number of school children arrived, and the school teacher, Officer Davis put a stop to the scene by arresting Fisher and Grosler. Fisher appeared to be sober, Buack had two fearful cuts on his head and a great deal. An old grudge has existed between his assailant and himself for some time.

In the evening Fisher was taken before Judge Steel and given a jury trial. He was found guilty as charged, and was sentenced to sixty days in the county jail, or a fine of $50. As he had no money he is to do the County jail.

TELLING THEIR EXPERIENCES. An Ex-Burglar and Ex-Pugilist Talking for the Salvation Army.

Captain Sam Wood, one of the survivors of the recent Salvation Army expedition through Southern California and Arizona, was the attraction at an army barracks last night. He came up Saturday night to lecture to the unsaved of Sacramento, and was given quite a reception by the local warriors.

Captain Wood related a burglar, but he changed his avocation. His enemies, as related by himself last evening, were quite interesting.

Captain Burke, an ex-pugilist, is with Captain Wood, and will give his story to-night at the barracks.

AMUSEMENTS. At the Clunie Opera-house this evening George Wessells, the well-known actor in melodrama, probably one of the best heavy villains on the stage, will begin an extended engagement, intended to last through the winter. He will be supported by Miss Nellie Eting, a young and handsome leading lady, represented to be thoroughly competent, and by George Turner, an experienced juvenile actor, and by Mr. Wessells' stock company. The troupe was at the People's Theater, Denver, for five months, playing with success, when the theater was burned down, it is being rebuilt, to be re-occupied by Mr. Wessells when it is completed. The business manager of the company is Henry Trent, late of the Carleton Company. The prices during the engagement are to be 25 cents, 35 cents and 50 cents. The piece to be produced this evening is entitled "A Double Life." It is dramatized by Mr. Wessells from Miss Braddon's novel, "Robert Dunbar."

Nellie Brown of this city and Arthur C. Eastman of Wolcott, Colo. were married last Wednesday at the residence of Mr. Fox, at the latter place. It was a very quiet affair, only the relatives and a few friends being present.

Miss Mary Dalley acted as maid of honor, and Fred Jackson as groomsman. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Herrick. After refreshments the newly-wedded couple left on the noon train for their bridal trip.

On Saturday a party was given by Edna Krasnow, her juvenile friends at the residence of her parents, 1229 P street, the occasion being her sixth birthday anniversary. The afternoon was pleasantly spent in games, after which refreshments were served. The youthful guests then dispersed, all declaring themselves delighted with their afternoon's entertainment. Those present were as follows: Roy Griswold, Mabel Siller, Charles Murray, Leopold Zoller, Ida Noble, Laura Siller, Alice Schadt, Ruby Siller, Edna Krasnow, Lester Schadt, Clarence H. Kromer, Richard Ochsner, Charles R. Kromer, Edna E. PAINFUL ACCIDENT. Contractor B. H. Covell Stops a Falling Brick With His Head.

B. H. Covell, the contractor engaged in the erection of A. Coolidge's new building on K street, between Ninth and Tenth, in which he narrowly escaped having his skull fractured.

He was standing in front of the building in which the bricklayers were at work some twenty-five feet above, when a brick fell and struck him on the head, cutting a severe gash and partially stunning him. It did not hit him squarely on the top of the head, the probability is that his skull would have been fractured.

Again in the City. Mrs. Charles Shepler, who recently abandoned her husband and children, because, as she said, certain neighbors had vilified her, was seen in the city a couple of days ago.

She is now residing at a late hour last night, and it is possible she is again in her own home.
