

INDUCING IMMIGRATION.

Why Large Land Holdings Should Be Cut Up and Sold.

How the Solving of the Irrigation Problem Has Tended to Develop the State.

A year ago there had been organized under the Wright system thirty-three irrigation districts, covering, in round numbers, 2,000,000 acres of land, for which $11,000,000 in bonds had been issued and $4,000,000 worth sold.

Under the old regime 250 acres by annual cropping, or 500 acres by summer-fallowing, may be cultivated average capacity of one man to cultivate or the farm unit in wheat growing.

Under intensive systems we must reduce the farm unit to twenty acres to secure best average results. Under the old system the combined harvester, with a motor of mules and a human machine, calculated to run from early dawn till dark, with neither wife nor home nor any accessory of civilization to bring in annual earnings as grist to the whisky mill and end his weary days in the public hospital, are the means employed by the city landholder to cultivate his thousands of acres.

For the good of California the young, energetic and ambitious, who have their fortunes to make, should be encouraged by railroads every day and immediately engage in productive industry.

Under the Wright District a large share of the grain that is raised is being used for their mortgages as fast as nominal values could be increased, by taking and writing of the exceptional profits of fruit-culture under favorable conditions of skillful management.

Now, if that land is worth $100 an acre for fruit and will pay big interest on total cost when improved, why not put in fruit which you can handle and let some other fellow have a share in the rate which will give him a share of what his enterprise creates?

The People's Party Not to Be Named at the Ticket's Head.

Attorney-General Hart Takes Issue With Secretary of State Waite on the Subject.

Yesterday's Chronicle printed a three-column opinion prepared by Attorney-General Hart in reply to the one advanced recently by Secretary of State Waite, through the columns of the Record-Union, in which the latter officer held that the People's party was entitled to recognition at the head of the new reform ballot to be used at the coming election.

It is thus plain to my mind that the People's party, so called, is not entitled to a heading on the State ticket, and to insert one might invalidate the whole ticket. If the so-called People's party nominees on the ticket at the next election, of the voters its nominees would be entitled to be inserted on the ticket in their respective places and following their names the "general ticket" at this election their candidates should receive 3 per cent. of the votes cast at this election.

John Doe, People's party, is entitled to a heading on the general ticket. You can readily see that the nomination of John Smith, Non-Partisan, for the Assembly entered on the general ticket with a heading would have the effect of misleading the voter who voted for all other officers but John Smith, Assemblyman, and this would be a fraud on the elector.

County Clerks of the various counties of this State and the Registrar of San Francisco have no right to have printed a heading on the general ticket other than is certified by you, and you ought not, under the law, to certify headings for a ticket other than the three above specified.

If you give a so-called party a heading when it is not entitled to it all votes cast for such a heading would be lost and of no effect and might invalidate the whole ticket. As a matter of fact, the so-called party heading at the top of the ticket is an American idea and not in accordance with the Australian ballot system.

They Have Made Up. Chief Rodgers and Officer White Bury the Hatchet. The Police Commissioners held an informal meeting on Saturday for the purpose of hearing the statements of Chief of Police Rodgers and Officer White regarding the difficulty they engaged in recently at the police station.

There were present, besides the Commissioners and officers, Mr. White's two brothers, Clinton and Lincoln White. Chief Rodgers said he did not intend to bring charges against Officer White, and was willing to drop the matter. He gave the difficulty they engaged in recently at the police station.

There was no acrimonious debate over the matter, and everything ended pleasantly, both the Chief and Officer White agreeing that no good would come of stirring the matter up by an official investigation by the Commissioners.

Williams Will Contest. Mrs. Auzaeris Was Legally Adopted—Contestants Routed. Superior Judge Van Fleet rendered an important decision Saturday in ordering the partial distribution of the estate of Llewellyn Williams, deceased.

It will be remembered that a bitter contest was made by some relatives of the deceased living in the East against the heirs, Mrs. Auzaeris—the adopted daughter of the deceased capitalist. She charged that she was never legally adopted by Williams and that the deceased was under the influence of her and her adopted mother.

When Mrs. Auzaeris petitioned for a partial distribution the contestants came in with a large-sized objection for such an order would simply mean that they were "not in it," as the saying goes. The attorneys on both sides fought the contest on this issue, and read law and argued before the Judge for several days.

EBERHARDT NOT BATTERED.

His Charge Against Chief Rodgers Was Not Substantiated.

Chief Rodgers Was Tried in the Police Court on Saturday on a Charge of Battery Preferred by William Eberhardt.

Eberhardt and wife testified that Chief Rodgers used unnecessary violence in arresting Eberhardt, who was burning rubbish in violation of an ordinance, but the evidence was not supported by those who witnessed the arrest.

Justice Starr heard the case, at the request of Judge Craven, and found there was not sufficient evidence to support the charge, and discharged the Chief.

NOT ENOUGH EVIDENCE. The Pealer Divorce Case in Court—A Continuance. The divorce suit of Mrs. Martha A. Pealer vs. Charles Pealer was heard by Superior Judge Van Fleet Saturday.

Mrs. Pealer testified that she was engaged in the millinery business, and had supported her husband for years. He positively refused to work and insisted on depending upon her for support. Finally he deserted her and went East.

The court, however, was not satisfied with the evidence. It had not been shown, he said, that the Pealer desired his wife to support him, and the evidence showed that at the present time she was not supporting him.

Attorney E. F. Johnson, who appeared for the lady, asked for a continuance, in order that he might secure more stronger evidence. The request was granted.
