Official forecast for the twenty-four hours ending at midnight, October 21st: Northern California—Fair, light wind and fog along the coast; southwest to southeast winds warmer, except cooler along the central coast and at Sacramento and vicinity, and stationary in the northwest portion.

THE BOOK RING AT IT. The book ring—there is but one now, and it is gigantic, monstrous and the most powerful publishing concern in the world—has "got away" with the Alameda County Teachers' Institute.

The cloven-footed agency of the book ring is discernible beneath the robes of the Institute. It is a fair and entirely justifiable suspicion that the agent of the American Book Company was at the Institute, "there or thereabouts"; or else he and his hirelings had industriously "worked" the membership prior to the assembling of the Institute.

It is a shameful piece of business, but we are rather glad that it came to pass. Better than figures, arguments and arrays of witnesses does this action of the Alameda Institute disclose what is afoot, and prove that the California text-book system is pinching the rapacious book publishers precisely where it was needed most.

That is to say, this action proves that it is not the California trade that the American book concern cares for, but for the effect of the success of the California text-book system in other States. Indiana is watching and waiting, and is about convinced that California is right. Ohio would ere this have adopted our system had not a soured official of this State given it a black eye by reporting to Ohio that it was non-successful.

So the American book concern sees its territory is in danger. It can save the situation only by crushing out the California system. Secure a Legislature that will deal the text-book system a deadly blow, and the dividends of the ring will spring up like Jack's bean stalk.

The book syndicate, which takes in all the old large publishing-houses of the country, is formed by a complete surrender of copyrights, plates, manuscript and stock to the new corporation, for which surrender certificates of stock issue, and upon which dividends are paid out of the profits of the new concern, which thus controls nearly all school-books used in the United States, excepting only California.

The power of such a concern for corruption is immeasurable. It has already begun its assault. In scores of papers in this State are appearing "reading" articles bitterly assailing the California books, pronouncing them extravagantly costly, poor in make-up, weak in construction, and not up to a low degree standard of excellence.

These notices are paid for so much a line, to go in without indication that they are advertisements. One of them was offered recently to the RECORD-UNION; for the purpose of exposing it we accepted it and in the same issue we replied to it. It was signed "A Sacramento School Teacher." It was not written by a Sacramento teacher; it was penned and prepared in New York and sent out here to poison the minds of the people. It so clearly exposed its purpose that we gladly printed it, and in the same paper turned its venom upon the source from which it came.

When we had the old system of State banks of issue, that the Democracy demands shall be restored, there was always a discount on the notes, even on the solvent currency, for sending the notes back to the place of redemption. This loss always fell upon labor and the poor.

To vote down the constitutional amendment extending legislative sessions to one hundred days will be to conserve economy. The Legislature given forty days more of leeway will simply take the time to accomplish no more than in sixty days.

Mr. Dana is in Europe, but the New York Sun evidently has an ample supply of force bill "copy" on hand. It is the one thing in the Democratic platform the Sun can cling to, and it holds on like a terrier.

LET the earth keep silence and the heavens be still—Tammany is now exercising its lungs howling for reform. Democrats in the Objective Case. (Chauncey M. Depew.)

But it is difficult to convince the Democratic brother of anything. He was born in the objective case. He was doing our best to put down the rebellion, he said, "I object, you can't do it." But we did it just the same.

When we were seeing the slaves he said: "I object; it is unconstitutional." But Uncle Abraham freed them just the same. He said: "I cannot reconstruct these States," but upon the remains of the old slave republic we have built this grand republic of freedom of forty-four States, just the same.

He said: "Your greenback currency will never be a fit currency for commercial purposes." But we restored specie payments and made gold and silver and paper equal, just the same.

As we meet him to-day he is still in the objective case. You point him to the enormous products that come from the farms, and he says they will bring no price in the market. You point him to the prices they do bring in the market, greater than they ever brought during any period of his time, and he says those prices will not last.

The difficulty with the Democratic brother is that his figures and his ways makes his figures in advance and always on the wrong side—they are always to prove that the country is going to the eternal how-works, especially if the Republicans are in power. Democratic figures in advance are always troubled by the facts which come afterward.

State Rights and State Banks. (Ex-Senator Warner Miller.) I come now to make a few statements upon the most remarkable plank in the Democratic platform. They declare for the abolition of the 10 per cent. upon State banks. I have had a score or more of men ask me how the Democrats could ever have made such a proposition.

Postal Reforms. We approve of extending to towns and rural communities the advantages of the free delivery service now enjoyed by the large cities of the country, and reaffirm the declaration contained in the Republican platform of 1888, pledging the reduction of letter postage to one cent.

THE Democratic platform declares for its party that "We view with alarm the tendency to a policy of irritation and bluster, which is liable at any time to confront us with the alternative of humiliation or war." The Democratic platform always "view with alarm," but here is the declaration of Benjamin Harrison, statesman, patriot and soldier: "Our relations with foreign Powers should be characterized by friendliness and respect. The right of our people and of our ships to hospitable treatment should be insisted upon with dignity and firmness. Our Nation is too great, both in material strength and in moral power, to indulge in bluster or to be suspected of timorousness. Vacillation and inconsistency are as incompatible with successful diplomacy as they are with national dignity. We should especially cultivate and extend our diplomatic and commercial relations with the Central and South American States. Our fisheries should be fostered and protected. The hardships and risks that are the necessary incidents of the business should not be increased by an inhospitable exclusion from the near-lying ports. The resources of a firm, dignified and consistent diplomacy are undoubtedly equal to the prompt and peaceful solution of the difficulties that now exist."

Mr. WHITEHEAD REID, the nominee of the Republican party for the Vice-Presidency, has shown fine fitness for public life. Says Charles Emory Smith, editor of the Philadelphia Press: "A high diplomatic position at an important capital like Paris, during a critical and creative period like the development of the commercial policy of the present Administration, furnishes a decisive test. Few trials could be more conclusive. It tries not merely the ability to do things, but the ability to do them in the right way. In diplomatic intercourse so much depends upon the manner of approach and the method of presentation and the skill of handling, that the quality of the agent is about as important as the merit of the question. Mr. Reid achieved very unusual success at Paris, and brought home practical trophies which rarely crown a diplomat's work in so short a time. He had the sagacity to combine the social with the political and argumentative persuasion, and he was not only winning results but lending luster to our representation."

WHEN we had the old system of State banks of issue, that the Democracy demands shall be restored, there was always a discount on the notes, even on the solvent currency, for sending the notes back to the place of redemption. This loss always fell upon labor and the poor.

To vote down the constitutional amendment extending legislative sessions to one hundred days will be to conserve economy. The Legislature given forty days more of leeway will simply take the time to accomplish no more than in sixty days.
