

TO RELIEVE THE RIVER.

Farmers and Engineers Discuss the Matter at Length.

The Legislature to be Asked to Assist by Legislation—Another Session Called for the 25th.

Previous to the meeting of the Drainage and Reclamation Committee yesterday morning the Executive Committee held a meeting and elected Dr. G. M. Dixon Chairman and W. D. Lawton Secretary of that committee.

When the convention was called to order a number of new faces were noted, showing that interest in its work is increasing. A look over the assemblage would also convince an observer that it was a representative assembly of the best class of men fitted to grapple with a problem of such magnitude. It certainly comprised a larger number of brainy men than conventions usually contain, and the debates showed many original thinkers among them, who had not only plans to propose, but arguments to back them.

The first business done was to add Dr. Dixon of Sacramento and Will S. Green of Colusa to the Legislative Committee.

The report of the engineers was called for and C. F. Grunsky read the report, which was as follows:

"The fact is well known to the civil engineers who are familiar with the rivers of Sacramento Valley, that these rivers in their present condition do not afford sufficient flood drainage capacity, and that levee building and bank protection alone will not prevent the annually recurring disasters nor afford reasonable protection to valley lands.

"Recognizing this fact, your committee has to report that aside from the works required to accomplish the protection of other works of general benefit are necessary to facilitate and hasten flood discharge to the bay, and to control the surplus water which must be prevented from inundating valley lands.

"The treatment of rivers on this line means that the flood-carrying capacity of the natural courses must be increased to the utmost limit, and that works to accomplish this end must be supplemented by drainage channels of sufficient capacity to control and remove the surplus waters.

"The works required are of two-fold character: (1) Those that can be completed within a definite period of time, and (2) those whose construction must extend through several years. Those of the latter class are principally works that may be designed to correct river alignment and to deepen river channels.

"These two classes of works must be made the basis of systematic river treatment, and without undervaluing the importance of what particular system of works may be finally approved, our knowledge of the situation justifies the opinion that aside from the works of channel treatment, which will cover many years, the property benefited should be prepared to incur, within a period of five years, an expenditure of about $10,000,000 for the construction of works of general benefit, and it is our opinion that this expenditure is justified and advisable, and will afford reasonable protection to all lands of the Sacramento Valley.

"The benefits conferred by the expenditure of such a sum of money will extend to about 900,000 acres of land, and to cities and towns within the benefited district. But the benefits conferred thereby will be of varying degree, ranging from complete reclamation to a mere reduction of danger during flood period.

destroy the lower river and bays. There should be three commissions—first, of the Government; second, of the State; third, of drainage and reclamation. Mr. Pierson of Sacramento stated that, as he understood it, the question was whether a practicable plan to reclaim the land could be arrived at. As Mr. Manson had stated, an immense amount of money had been wasted. He did not think the Government would aid in reclaiming the land, but would aid to keep the river navigable. The land must pay the expenses of its own reclamation.

QUESTION OF EXPENSE. Fulwiler stated that in a reclamation scheme like the one proposed the land would have to be condemned and owners paid for the right of way. The State could well afford to pay for this, and it might be done by a special tax. There are three or four ways in which the money might be raised. The farmer, the miner, all were interested.

Mr. Pierson thought the first question to be considered in connection with the report was whether or not the property-owners were willing to contribute to the expense of carrying out the work. His experience made him think the necessary means to put the river in shape could be procured from Congress. In the past our great rivers have been very much neglected by Congress, mainly because our Representatives have not pushed the matter. He thought the finding out of the expense of reclamation to land-owners is the question before this convention. What methods will we take to secure the necessary funds?

MONEY THAT WAS WASTED. In response to a question by Dunn of Placer, as to the amount of money wasted in the past, Engineer Manson stated that he had traced $14,000,000, and there was probably more than that of which there was no record.

The question is now, he said, are you going to go on spending it without system, to the end of time, or ask the State to aid in doing the work at once and under a system that would effect the desired object.

BUTTE COUNTY. Mr. Fulwiler said he had just as much right to ask Congress to take care of the rivers as it had to appropriate millions through Captain Eads and others to the river in California.

Green of Colusa said that he had been studying the river for many years, and had years ago satisfied himself that the river could never carry the whole volume of water that entered it. He was sure the land could be reclaimed by a system of small districts, under a general system of supervision by the State. He advocated the employment of from 20 to 100 State prisoners in the work, and said that in Texas he had found out that the State reclaims land from a railroad company $50 per month for the services of State prisoners in building their road. The Sacramento River was once an arm of the bay.

As he had discovered by investigation as far up the river as Colusa. The ditrus of ages from the mountains had filled up all but the river bed, and one day there would be no Suisun or San Pablo Bay—nothing but a stream to the ocean. Our trouble is that we are leaving a gravel-carrying stream. We must find an outlet system having several outlets, and make the river conform as nearly as possible to a state of nature. He thought.

THE JETTY SYSTEM. Was only a temporary relief. The river comes to Colusa with a fall of fifteen inches to the mile, and in the next five miles it then drops down to six inches to the mile, and narrows at Knight's Landing to about 20 feet wide. We have stopped the river at Colusa, and must cut the ridges to make drainage, and make outlets where they are needed. Levees can be built from the lower edge of each outlet, and the water will pass to heaven by these outlets up the river where the gravel comes down, for if this is not done the water comes up behind the State should lend its aid in the work.

Atchings of Butte thought the convention was agreed that a general plan was needed, and that the committee was lost in stating the opinions of individuals. Dray of Sacramento thought the small districts would not work, but that there should be a general plan. He agreed with Fulwiler that the work should be carried on by the State, in conjunction with the General Government. Last year $50,000,000 was thrown away.

By the Government, as far as regards the reclamation of the land, in repairing the Payne break. Green related his experience in connection with reclamation districts, and said that property-owners wanted you to pay them for the privilege of protecting them and give them the money to pass to heaven by sea. You cannot get land-owners to agree to one general district. You must take into account not only conditions of nature, but the perverse conditions of human nature.

Rose said that 500,000 acres of the most valuable land in the world was waiting for reclamation. He believed it should be formulated for a comprehensive scheme to reclaim it by forming into proper districts, not taking it out of the hands of the people, but putting it under the direction of engineers. He thought only the land subject to reclamation should be taxed.

He thought that with the proper effort Congress could be induced to restore rivers; it is doing it everywhere else. He instanced the work of Geary for the improvement of Humboldt River and harbor. The plan must extend from the head of the country affected to Suisun Bay. It must be a system as a whole and under one management. He did not think convict labor feasible; the difficulties in the way were too great; most of the work would be dredging, and must be done by intelligent free labor. He believed the best way to raise the money would be to bond the district. The work should be accomplished in two years.

Lubin moved that a substitute be adopted, commencing at the source of the trouble and ending at the ocean. Engineer Grunsky offered a substitute, providing that the Legislative Committee be instructed to prepare and report a bill authorizing the formation of general drainage districts, and providing for the planning of the works of general benefit by competent State authority, and prescribing means for carrying out such planning at the expense of the property benefited according to the benefits conferred.

Lubin withdrew his motion in favor of the substitute, and it was resolved to act on it after recess, which was taken till 1:30.

The Legislative Committee elected Rose of Colusa President, and Dunn of Placer Vice-President, and Dunn of Placer Secretary.

Afternoon Session. When the Convention assembled the resolution of Engineer Grunsky was taken up and discussed. Fulwiler believed that all were agreed on the necessity of taking action in the matter under consideration, and only differed as to the method to be used. He still held that the commissions he advocated were the most feasible. As to the constitutionality of laws proposed, he thought that the courts could be overcome. The courts had decided that special legislation could be had in cases where a general law covering the whole State could not be applied, and making the Legislature the judge as to whether such special law was necessary.

Members were apt to consider the matter of controlling the waters simply as it applied to their particular locality, but no united action on a general plan had been taken. He gave.

OF THE QUESTION OF THE VALLEY. He said a district could be formed at the lower end for the reclamation of the land there; one near Marysville for reclamation of the same purpose. The surplus waters from the east side must also be taken care of, and this could also be done. You cannot, however, confine the trouble to a channel ten feet square.

Those, he said, who consider themselves safe now must not stand back and refuse to aid those in immediate danger, for their turn will surely come when they will need help, even if they refuse it now. His remarks were received with much approbation.

Let the State, he continued, cut the channels in the direction of the outlet of the whole State that it should be done. Let us put our shoulders to the wheel and ask the Legislature to do it, and we will accomplish our purpose.

LUBIN'S RESOLUTION. Lubin said that this morning he presented a resolution, and accepted a substitute for it, but he found that the substitute would not accomplish what he then thought it should. He offered again the original resolution.

THE REPORT OF THE MEMORIAL COMMITTEE was then read, and Rose moved that the report be referred to the rough text, with instructions to formulate a suitable memorial to be submitted to the Legislature and forwarded to Congress, and it was so ordered.

THE NEXT SESSION. Dr. Dixon moved that when the convention adjourned it adjourn until 4 p. m. the following day.

The motion was amended by Davis to read for one week. Rose thought that the bill should be carefully considered and could not be prepared in one week. He also favored adjourning for a week.

Lubin thought it would be well for the convention to adjourn sine die and leave the matter in the hands of the Legislative Committee, with full power and discretion to prepare the bill and present it to the Legislature, and furthermore that the committee advise its times of meeting.

He thereupon moved that the Legislative Committee have full power to draft a bill and present it to the Legislature, and that a copy be referred to the rough text, to be sent to each county delegation. After a discussion of the subject Rose moved that when the convention adjourns it adjourn till Saturday, the 25th, at 11 a. m.

The motion was carried and the convention then adjourned.

The resolution was referred to the Memorial Committee. MONEY THAT SHOULD BE USED. Dr. Dixon said the Harbor Commission cut $500,000 in its hands which had been collected in the banks of the product of the valleys of the State. He presented the following resolution, which was referred to the Committee on Legislation.

Resolved, That the Legislative Committee prepare a bill for introduction in the present Legislature providing for the expenditure by the California River and Harbor Commission of the sum of $50,000 annually in the improvement of the channels and banks of the San Joaquin and Sacramento Rivers and their navigable tributaries, said work to be done in harmony with the work projected by Federal Government Engineers.

The report of the Memorial Committee was then read, and Rose moved that the report be referred to the rough text, with instructions to formulate a suitable memorial to be submitted to the Legislature and forwarded to Congress, and it was so ordered.

Mr. Mills' Views. After adjournment the following telegram was received by the Secretary: SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 19, 1892. W. D. Lawton, Secretary California Drainage and Reclamation Convention. I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of the invitation to become a member and participate in its deliberations. Your notice was received too late to postpone other engagements, and I am sorry to be unable to attend the convention. Convey my compliments and sincere regrets to the convention, and permit me to make the suggestion that, in any scheme of reclamation, it should be remembered that all the lands are in private ownership, held for the most part in very large bodies; that the cost of their reclamation should be shared by the owners of the large holdings, so that such ownership would not continue to displace settlement and civilization.

Wm. H. Mills. The Lansing Property. Auctioneer Sherburn again discoursed on the beauties and value of the Lansing ranch yesterday in front of the Court-house, but the highest bid received for the property was $10,200. George Murray, the brickmason, was the bidder.

The proposition is that the court will hardly confirm the sale, but if it does Murray will have a bargain.

Will Remain in Sacramento. C. H. Hubbard, manager for the firm of Baker & Hamilton in this city, announces that the business is not to be closed out here, as was rumored shortly after the late fire which destroyed so much of the firm's goods. On the contrary, the business will be enlarged, and carried on by a stock company.

Thought to Have Been Accidental. An inquest on the body of Clara S. Galligan was held yesterday by a Coroner's jury, who returned a verdict of death from a gunshot wound. There was no evidence as to how the wound was received, but the impression prevails that the shooting was accidental.

The Senorita Was Musical. Domingo Arras yesterday caused the arrest of Guadalupe Metlock on a charge of unlawfully appropriating to her own use a guitar, the property of the complainant. The tamale lady is busily engaged in discussing the scandal.

A Deputy Constable. E. R. Knox, formerly of this city, has been appointed a Deputy Constable in the city of Stockton.
