

ZEMANSKY'S ASSAULT.

Captured Yesterday While Escaping on the Galt Train.

He Carried a Bullet from Ike's Pistol in His Side—A Case of Revenge—Zemansky's Condition.

The man who shot Ike Zemansky on Thursday night is now in the Receiving Hospital, where he lies suffering from a wound inflicted by one of the bullets from his victim's pistol.

The man, who gives his name as Vincent Gilio, was arrested yesterday morning on the train running from this city to Galt. He boarded the train at Brighton, and Conductor J. A. Moffitt, who had been given by Officer Ferral a description of the fellow, sent word to Elk Grove, and when the train reached that place Constable Springstead boarded it and placed Gilio under arrest, accompanying him as far as Galt, where Constable J. M. Haller was on hand to receive the expected visitor.

The prisoner was brought back to this city on the 2:30 p. m. train and taken to the police station, where he was admitted to Chief Rodgers that he was the person who shot Zemansky. He also stated that he was suffering from a bullet wound in his right side, received at Zemansky's hands.

Chief Rodgers then took Gilio to Zemansky's house for the purpose of identification, and shortly afterward returned him to the City Jail.

While his wound was being examined at the Receiving Hospital the injured man stated to a Record-Union reporter that he was a native of Gibraltar and of Anglo-Spanish parentage.

His story was to the effect that he called at Zemansky's store about a week ago and tried on a coat, which was too small for him, and he asked to see another. He claims he was dealing with the clerk when Ike Zemansky came from behind the counter and told him his own coat was cotton, while the one he tried on was wool, and a dispute ensued.

Gilio says he saw Zemansky reach into his pocket and get hold of some "traps." He evidently meant brass knuckles. While he was trying on the other coat, and when least expecting it, he says Zemansky struck him in the face. Why he took a week before seeking revenge, he did not explain, but he said he had resolved if any man marked his face in that way he would kill him. As to the wound he said he did not wish to kill Zemansky, but to punish him for striking him with brass knuckles.

After being shot Thursday night and dodging the officers, he took a room in a lodging-house on J street, between Fourth and Fifth.

When his wound was being examined his clothing was found to be saturated with blood, and by the time the cot was prepared he was very weak and suffered intensely.

When his clothing was being removed an ounce vial of chloroform dropped from his pocket and two $10 pieces from one of his shoes.

He said he got the chloroform to kill himself before he was jailed, but when he saw a hole in his pocket, the small bottle had dropped down inside his clothing, and he had no opportunity to get it after his arrest.

Gilio does not look like a man given to dissipation, and he has not yet been identified as being the man who shot Zemansky. It will be remembered that some three weeks ago a young man was found in a family at Swingle's station, in Yolo, suffering from smallpox. It was supposed that the Yolo authorities had quarantined the patient, but judging from a letter received in this city yesterday, such was not the case.

This letter was from a lady who keeps a boarding-house or hotel at Madison. It was addressed to a prominent physician of this city, and stated that a young man who had been stopping there for ten days or more and mingled with people about the village had been discovered to be the Swingle station smallpox patient.

The appearance of his face had caused some suspicion, and then the landlady recalled the fact that she had seen in the Record-Union report of young man in Yolo being afflicted with the disease. She asked the young man if he were not a one referred to, and he admitted that he was. He added that he had just received a letter from his sister, Mrs. Shoup, residing near this city, in whose family there are five cases of the disease (the result of this same young man's visit there recently), and that he was about to leave for Sacramento to nurse the patients in the Shoup family.

The physician who received this information from the Madison lady promptly wrote to Dr. Ross, President of the Woodland Board of Health, acquainting him with the facts, and suggesting that the young man referred to be looked after and quarantined. He has, apparently, been running about at large in Yolo while afflicted with smallpox in its contagious stage, and if many cases do not result therefrom, the people of that locality will be very fortunate.

The $100 reward offered by Zemansky's father for the arrest of his son's assailant was paid over yesterday to Chief of Police Rodgers, to be distributed in such manner as the arresting parties might agree upon. Constable Haller of Galt received $40, Constable Springstead of Elk Grove $25, and Conductor Moffitt $25. It was learned last night that neither of these gentlemen wanted to undertake the arrest of Gilio alone, although it could doubtless have been accomplished without difficulty, as he was weak from loss of blood.

SENT BACK. A Reckless Swill-Gatherer Checked by Sanitary Nichols. Sanitary Inspector George W. Nichols yesterday learned that a man who makes a business of gathering swill throughout the city was living at the house of a brother-in-law of Shoup, whose family is afflicted with smallpox. Watching for the scavenger, he stopped him as he was coming into town yesterday and sent him back into the country, forbidding him to enter the city again without a certificate from Dr. White to the effect that there was no danger of contagion from him.

The Inspector told him he might utilize his enforced rest in repairing his wagon and placing it in the condition the law requires, so that he will not longer drop seeds of disease along the street.

East-Bound Through Freight. The following freight was forwarded by the Southern Pacific Company from Sacramento during the month of December, 1892, to eastern points: Borax 10 tons, brandy 52, canned goods 201, cattle 9, flour and millstuffs 10, dried fruit 117, groceries 4, hides 49, hams 2, hops 79, horses 70, leather 1, lumber 26, machinery 15, miscellaneous 103, ores 1,811, powder 16, raisins 102, saddlery and harness 3, vegetables 10, wine 43, grease wool 11, pulled wool 35, woolen goods 1. Total 5,877 tons.

From other places: San Francisco 9,670 tons, Oakland 963, San Jose 834, Stockton 3,753, Marysville 432, Portland 771. Grand total, 20,022 tons.

SUCH IS LIFE. The Weary Waiting of a Mother and a Young Wife. As an instance of how the love of drink brutalizes a man and renders him cruel to those he should cherish and protect, a reporter going down K street last night saw a white-faced woman sitting in a wagon holding a team, while an aged one peering into the door of a saloon where her son, the husband of the younger woman, was presumably enjoying himself while they were waiting for him. Some time afterward the two women were still seated there, their weary watch in front of the saloon.

REACHING TOO FAR.

One of the Proposed Amendments to the Game Laws.

A Correspondent Intelligently Shows Up the Objectionable Features to the "No Dog" Bill.

A correspondent of the Record-Union, who evidently understands the subject on which he writes, contributes the following well-timed criticism on one of the game law amendments now before the Legislature. The author of the law apparently aimed at the hunting of deer with packs of hounds, but really prohibits or attempts to the use of one dog by the hunter. Says our correspondent: If the amendment to the game law prohibiting the use of dogs for trailing deer becomes a law, it will certainly be in favor of the "no dog" bill, still hunter, it is well known, can slaughter more deer and find less than the man who uses a dog. When a man goes in for what money he can get by hunting deer, the dog, as the dog is in the way. It is a fact that nearly one-half the deer shot by men who do not employ dogs to trail the animals are lost. The writer has had fifteen years' experience in hunting deer with and without the aid of a dog, and has found the hound to be a valuable animal. Such a thing as losing a wounded deer to a lingering death in the jungle has never happened when the dog was employed.

I do not believe in hunting deer with large packs, but it would be a great mistake to prohibit the use of any dogs. It is the only sure means a man has to trail a deer, and, besides, nothing about the great good a hound does in the way of routing varmints, such as panthers, coyotes, etc., the natural destructive enemy of the deer.

In this dry climate there is no need for such a law; the ground during the open season is dry and hard in the hills, making it most impossible to track a wounded deer, no matter how skillful a hunter becomes. H. L. in Forest and Field says: "When hunting where there are several packs of hunters, within a few miles of each other, it is not an uncommon occurrence to find deer, evidently killed by some of the hunters, I could multiply instances to illustrate the points under consideration."

He also says: "I believe not one-half the deer shot by good hunters, men skilled in the use of the rifle, are secured." This writer has found to be true from careful study. Such loss never happens where dogs are used.

When a true sportsman kills one or two deer, and finds them, he is usually satisfied, but if he wounds a dozen and does not find one, he is not satisfied, and he keeps on killing until he finds one. How much better it would be if he found the first one wounded, which can only be done by the aid of a hound.

The hound is also the best detective the farmer can have. Besides routing and killing varmints, it will protect the flocks by running off or scaring the killing dogs. Hunting dogs seldom molest domestic stock.

The writer has seen hounds for many years, and has not lost one single wounded deer, although I could have killed many more "sneak hunting," but this would mean the loss of my deer. I have found from careful study that it is impossible for a hound to track a deer, being so protected by nature by being so fast and so sure.

There is no class of sportsmen that favor protection more than do the men who use dogs, and they are most of all the intelligent and better class of sportsmen. The clause mentioned will not meet with the approval of the intelligent sportsmen, for thousands of deer will be lost that will become food for vultures instead of man. There can be no mistake about this.

New York State has over five million of people. Virginia is one of the States, and yet they have no need for such a law in those States, although pack hunting is prohibited in those States.

If the deer need protection, shorten the season. Six months is altogether too long, and three months should be sufficient.

Prohibit the use of the shotgun loaded with buckshot, protect the female and the young, and there will be deer in our forests for generations to come.

TRUE SPORTSMEN.

AMUSEMENTS. This afternoon for a matinee, to-night and to-morrow night, will be the last performances at the Clunie Opera-house, in which the comedy "An American Princess" will be the attractive feature. It has drawn good houses for the week, and deservedly so. Mr. Bailey's New York Stock Company, proving that it has not been weakened. Next week two new strong people will be introduced, both leaders, and the attraction will be the sensational and spectacular drama, "The Black Flag."

This afternoon at the Metropolitan Theater for a matinee and to-night, Atkinson's Comedy Company will present the laughable absurdity, "Peck's Bad Boy." It was played last night to a light house. Mr. Wenzel, as the grocerman, is a capital Dutch character, and a grotesque character and dancer of the first order. Miss Hellman is a dancer of superior quality, giving a contortion and "peck" dance with remarkable skill. Miss Randall is a fine contralto, and Miss Schuman a good soprano. The other members of the company are neither very good nor very poor. The piece is loose-jointed, absurd and little more than a weak job on which to give opportunity to the actors to produce songs, dances and some grotesque business, which has no merits beyond those mentioned, though it provokes considerable laughter.

"The Old Homestead," which has had such remarkable success everywhere it has been produced: "A Trip to China Town," which had a run of 500 nights in New York, and the Calhoun Opera Company, of which the high prize, and all billed for early appearance at the Metropolitan Theater.

The children of the Orphan Asylum have been invited to attend the matinee this afternoon, and their Superintendent has accepted for them.

A free lecture on "Human Nature" will be delivered at Grangers' Hall this to-morrow evening. To-night admission will be free.
