

GOSPEL OF ST. PETER.

The Newly Recovered Gospel Found in Egypt.

It Was Discovered in Akmtm—The Most Eminent Critics Pronounce it a Genuine Product.

[For the RECORD-UNION.]

In 1874 a pleasant surprise was sprung upon the learned world by the announcement that in the Library of the Most Holy Sepulcher in Constantinople had been found the "Teaching of the Twelve Apostles." It had long been known that such a work had been in existence in the early centuries of the church, but it had been given up for lost.

This hope was rewarded in 1885 by the publication of "Tatian's Diatessaron" in Arabic from two newly discovered MSS., and now a flutter of excitement is passing over the learned world by the publication of a newly found fragment of the Gospel of St. Peter, found among the Christian tombs in Akmtm, in Upper Egypt, by the French Archæologist, the Mission at Cairo.

It is a fragment of the Gospel of St. Peter, found among the Christian tombs in Akmtm, in Upper Egypt, by the French Archæologist, the Mission at Cairo.

To order that the public may read this fragment and get an idea of what many of the Christians in the early church accepted as history, I will here add to this contribution the translation made by J. Rendel Harris, Fellow of King's College, Cambridge. This is the first English translation, and in consequence may be largely corrected after the critics have given the work a more careful study.

"But none of the Jews washed their hands, neither did Herod nor any of the judges, and when they would have washed them Pilate rose up; and thereupon Herod the king bids that the Lord should be taken off, saying to them: 'Do with Him as I bade you do.' And there was come here Joseph, a friend of Pilate and of the Lord, and knowing that they were going to crucify Him, he came and begged the body of the Lord for burial, and Pilate sent to Herod and asked for His body, and Herod said: 'Brother Pilate, even if I had not seen Him, we should have had to bury Him, for already the Sabbath draws on; for it is written in the law that the sun must not go down on a body that has been left on the day before their feast, the feast of unleavened bread.'

"And others again struck Him on the face, and others again spat Him on the face, and some were wounding him with rods. This is the honor wherewith we will honor the Son of God. And they brought two malefactors, and crucified the Lord between them; and they seated Him in the middle, and they crucified him on the right and on the left. And when they had crucified him, they wrote above his head, 'This is the King of the Jews.' And having laid down His garments, they divided them and cast lots for them.

"But one of the malefactors reproached them, saying: 'I have suffered thus on account of the evil deed which I have done; but this man, who has become the Savior of men, what evil has he done?' And the Jews being divided, they seated Him in the middle, and they crucified him on the right and on the left. And when they had crucified him, they wrote above his head, 'This is the King of the Jews.'

"And the same hour the veil of the temple of Jerusalem was rent in twain; and then they drew out the nails from the hands of the Lord, and laid them on the earth, and the earth was wholly shaken and great fear came upon them. Then the sun shone out, and they found to the north, and the Jews rejoiced greatly, and gave the body to Joseph to bury, for he had been an observer of all the good deeds which the Lord had done.

"And I, with my companions, was grieving, and being overcome in heart, we said to ourselves, for we were sought for by them as malefactors, and as men who wished to burn the temple. And we were fasting over the Lord, and weeping, and night and day, until the Sabbath.

"And the scribes and Pharisees and elders were gathered together, and they had heard that all the people were mourning and beating their breasts and saying: 'If such mighty signs were wrought at his death, consider what how righteous a man he is!' The elders were afraid and came to Pilate, beseeching him and saying: 'Give us soldiers, that we may guard his tomb for three days, lest his disciples come and steal him away, and the people suppose that He is risen from the dead and that we have delivered to them Petronius, the centurion, with soldiers to guard the sepulcher; and with them there came elders and scribes to the sepulcher, and they with the centurion and the soldiers who were there altogether rolled a great stone and laid it at the door of the tomb, and they plastered seven seals, and appointed a tent there and mounted guard.

"And early in the morning as the Sabbath was drawing on there came a crowd from Jerusalem and from the surrounding country to see the tomb which had been sealed.

"And in the night when the Lord's day was drawing on, as the soldiers were on guard, two and two in each watch, there was a great voice in heaven and they saw the heavens opened and two men descended thence with great radiance, and they stood over the tomb. But that stone which had been cast at the door rolled away of itself and withdrew to the right side, and the tomb was opened and both the young men entered.

ing them, and the heads of the two men reached to the heaven, but the head of Him, who was being led along by them, was higher than theirs. And they heard a voice from heaven which said: 'Hast thou preached to them that are asleep?' and a response was heard from the cross.

"The watchers then deliberated amongst themselves as to going and making the thing known to Pilate, and while they were thus deliberating, the matter of the heavens appeared again open and a man descended and entered into the tomb. When those who were with the centurion by night saw these things, they hurried to Pilate, leaving the sepulcher which they were guarding, and they related all which they had seen, being greatly distressed and saying: 'We were for the Son of God.' And Pilate answered and said to them, 'I am pure of the blood of the Son of God, but this deed was your good pleasure.'

"Then they all drew near and besought him and entreated him to command the centurion and the soldiers to say nothing of these things. For it is better for us, they said, to be guilty of the greatest sin in the sight of God, than to fall into the hands of the people of the Jews and to be crucified with them. For it is better for us, they said, to be guilty of the greatest sin in the sight of God, than to fall into the hands of the people of the Jews and to be crucified with them.

"And at the dawn of the Lord's day, Mary Magdalene, a disciple of the Lord, who, being afraid of the Jews because they were inflamed by anger, had not gone to the sepulcher as women were wont to do to see the dead, and those that were beloved by them, took her friends with her and came to the tomb where He had been laid; and they were afraid, lest the Jews should see them, and they said, 'Though we were not able to weep and to be with Him in that day when he was crucified, yet now at the tomb let us do so.'

"But who shall roll away the stone which was laid at the door of the tomb, and we shall enter in and sit by Him and we shall dine? For the stone was great, and we are afraid lest some one should see us, and if we are not able to do so, we shall be crucified with them at the door which we are carrying in remembrance of Him, and let us weep and wait until we reach our own homes.

"And they came there and found the sepulcher opened; and drawing near thither they stooped down, and they saw a young man sitting in the midst of the sepulcher, beautiful and clad in a most dazzling robe, who said to them, 'Wherefore are ye come? Whom do ye seek? Is it the one who was crucified? He is risen, and he is not here; for He is risen, and has come to the place from which He went.'

"Then the women fled away in fear. And it was the last day of the feast of unleavened bread, and many people were going from the city to their homes, the feast being ended. But we, the twelve disciples of the Lord, wept and grieved, and each of us in grief at what had happened withdrew to his house. But I, Simon, Peter and Andrew, my brother, and James, and departed to the sea, and there was with us also Levi, the son of Alphaeus, whom the Lord

"Here this interesting fragment of one of the earliest gospels ends, leaving us expecting the recovery of the rest of it no distant day.

"Its value lies in this—it is a sample of the gospels as they were accepted as gospel history by many in the early church, and helps us to understand how freely the imagination was working with the history of the man who was crucified for us. DECISION AFFIRMED. The Supreme Court rendered its opinion in a Tulare County case.

The Supreme Court has affirmed the decision of the Superior Court of Tulare County in the case of Lindsay Irrigation Company vs. William Mehrtens and others, appellants.

The company was incorporated for the purpose of supplying water for irrigation and domestic use to the farming neighborhood situated between and lying contiguous to the town of Lindsay in Tulare County, and sought in the proceedings to condemn certain lands for the purpose of extending the canal through which to conduct water from Kaweah River to said farming neighborhood.

Judgment was rendered in favor of the plaintiff for a condemnation of the land sought to be appropriated by it, and fixing the amount of damage which should be paid for the land taken from him. In their appeal from this judgment the argument of the appellants was directed chiefly to an attempt to get the land to which the plaintiff seeks to conduct the water is not a farming neighborhood, and that the public use of the water is not a public use, and therefore the plaintiff cannot exercise the right of eminent domain for purpose of taking their lands.

The distance from the lands to the State to take private property for public use is an inherent element of its sovereignty, and its exercise is restrained only by the limitations contained in the Constitution. The term "farming neighborhood" is an indefinite expression, and whether it can be applied to the lands in question is to be determined by the evidence. A farming neighborhood may be defined as a region in which there are several tracts of farming land, and which can be regarded as a whole with reference to some common interests, though they are distinct in boundaries and held in individual proprietorship. The judgment is affirmed.

GRAND ISLAND AFFAIRS.

Important Meeting of the Land-Owners in That District.

Steps Taken to Harmonize Conflicting Interests—Appointment of an Advisory Committee.

At a meeting of the settlers of Grand Island, held at Hyde Landing on Tuesday, called by Trustee Figg to straighten out the bones of contention in that district, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

First—That an Advisory Board of five land-owners be appointed, whose duty it shall be to assist the Board of Trustees in carrying on the works of reclamation and drainage, whose advice shall be sought by the Trustees in all contracts made, and whose consent shall be obtained for all moneys paid out on account of the district; that said Advisory Board consist of C. W. Clarke, J. W. Ferris, T. W. Sheehan, H. Meyers and W. J. Smith; that said board be permanent, and W. J. Smith be permanent Chairman thereof; that C. W. Clarke be Treasurer of the district, to whom all moneys for the benefit of the district be paid, instead of the County Treasurer, and that he shall pay all bills against the district approved by the Board of Trustees, and that he shall file a bond, to be approved by Trustees and Advisory Board.

Second—That the Trustees and Advisory Board proceed with diligence to set a system of drainage and have it in operation by October 1, 1893, at whatever cost, and to include a pump at the wing dam and a dredger.

Third—That a rigid investigation be had into the financial transactions of the district for the past three years; that a system of accounts be set up, and all accounts, the books to be open to the inspection of all interested, at all times, in an office on the island.

Fourth—That Stewart, D. Leary, I. G. Hall, George L. Figg and W. J. Smith be appointed a committee to examine the lay of the land below Beaver Slough, and endeavor to find a way through which to construct a temporary drainage-way from Beaver Slough to the pump.

Fifth—That George L. Figg be instructed to notify the Board of Trustees that it is the sense of this meeting that the balance of the books of the district be immediately turned over to the trustees, and that the Board of Trustees act with the Advisory Board appointed by the settlers.

The following land-owners were present at the meeting: Cris Goldman, Chas. Goldman, Huey Meyers, James Collins, Fred Davis, A. W. Stewart, W. J. Smith, George L. Figg, G. Hall, Jos. Green, Sr., M. Madge, Chas. Hansen, Jos. Albert, Frank Peters, W. L. Jones, W. A. Keener, Jos. Miller, D. Corlezo, C. Berlin, G. Wickstrom, P. Hansen, John Smith, J. Lind, J. Johnson, John McCarthy, T. W. A Word to Sacramentoans. Eps. RECORD-UNION: I am pleased to see the spirit of improvement shown by the people of Sacramento. I see by the RECORD-UNION that sites for factories and all kinds of industries can be had for the asking, if the parties will only go to the trouble to ask for them.

As you are well aware, there is a railroad running from Colusa to Sites. If that road was continued on to Bear Valley it would open up a trade route for the Indian Valley, Sulphur Creek and its mines. It would secure the trade of Haugh Springs and the Allen and Bartlett Springs and the county, which is of no mean importance.

No other road or route could be built that could successfully compete against it, from the fact that the mountains on the Lake County side are so much higher than on our side, and the distance by stage and wagon travel so much greater. The distance from Sites to Bear Valley is only about fourteen miles. That is only a short distance, yet at the same time it throws nearly all of the trade of the above-named places away from Sacramento. That fourteen additional miles of stage and wagon travel gives the best part of the trade to the Lake County towns and places that Sacramento would secure if the railroad from Colusa were extended to Bear Valley.

Let us begin and start up what it is all worth. Send some good, reliable business men of Sacramento up to talk to the enterprising men of the places above named. Don't let any one tell you that a land miser that wants to sell everything under the hand of his hand, and keep the price of land low, and make it hard for the small rancher to buy, is really by keeping a railroad out, in order that the small rancher will have to sell out and get out. Go to enterprising small ranchers who want to raise chickens, eggs, butter, wheat, oats, barley, etc., and who have a few hogs and cattle to sell, and those who are beginning to raise fruit, and you would be hundreds of such if there was a railroad by which to ship their products to market. Transportation is all that is needed to open up a trade between this country and Sacramento.

The center of Bear Valley is only eight miles from Sulphur Creek, Oroville, the mines and the Hot Sulphur Springs, that are known to hundreds of Sacramento people to be the best bathing springs in the State. There are hot springs, and hot hands and are being fixed up for guests, which fact will be welcome news to many readers of the RECORD-UNION. There are also the above-named places, and all have more or less men at work most of the year, which makes Sulphur Creek a place of considerable trade.

A WOULD-BE CITIZEN.

He Does Not Know Whether This is a Monarchy or Not.

Sébastien Cayotte applied to Judge Johnson yesterday morning to be admitted to citizenship on the testimony of G. H. Corado and S. Rinaldi. The Judge asked him several questions touching the Chief Executive officer of this Government and his title.

Cayotte was not sure whether or not he was a King, but thought his name was Blaine. He did not know whether the form of this Government was a monarchy or otherwise. He had been too busy working to pay much attention to such matters during the six years he had lived in Sacramento.

The Judge thought that anyone wishing to obtain a citizen's rights and privileges should first attain to some little knowledge of the form of government under which he wished to live, but finally told him he would consider the matter and he could appear before him this morning for his answer.
