

CHIN HANE AND HOY YEN SING.

Lee Gong's Alleged Murderers to be Tried This Week.

Witnesses in the Jeffers Case Who Cannot be Present Before the Coming Week.

On Saturday morning, shortly after opening his court, Judge Johnson directed Deputy Sheriff Hendricks to call C. T. Jones and A. L. Hart, and also directed him to bring up the defendants, Chin Hane and Hoy Yen Sing, who are confined on a charge of murdering Lee Gong, on Third street, last May.

General Hart stated he was not ready with the case, but was ready to appear in the Jeffers case, which had been set for this time. The District Attorney said the Chin Hane case was regularly set for this time. Judge Johnson said he had set the cases for the same day in order that he might avoid the chance of having idle time on his hands in the present crowded state of the calendar. The Chinese case had been on hand ever since he had been on the bench and he had set it first.

General Hart stated that on account of Mrs. Jeffers' condition, if the trial of the case did not begin on Saturday it would have to be postponed for several months. Judge Johnson stated that as he was disqualified by the law recently passed from trying the case, on account of his being a relative by marriage, being employed in them, he had arranged with Judge Catlin to transfer the cases to Department One.

District Attorney Ryan stated that he was ready to try the Chin Hane case, but was not prepared in the case against Jeffers. Judge Johnson then directed the Clerk to enter an order transferring the cases to Department One.

The prisoners were transferred to Judge Catlin's Court, and in a few minutes the Chinese cases were called therein, and the District Attorney announced that the prosecution was ready.

General Hart said he was not ready. The Jeffers murder case was set for this day, and he was prepared on that. Mrs. Jeffers, if the case was not tried to-day, would not be able to appear in court for two months. There were many other witnesses in attendance. District Attorney Ryan had said he could not attend to it next week, but he thought that it was probably on account of the meeting of the Grand Jury of the Native Sons. He thought, however, that should not excuse Mr. Ryan from going on with the case. He himself was ready now, and did not want to wait till after the birth of Mrs. Jeffers' child.

Mr. Ryan said the Chin Hane case had been in court several times. He and Judge Johnson were agreed that the Jeffers case was set on the same day as a contingency in case the other was continued. He had a letter from Rev. Mr. Ferguson, an important witness, stating that his wife was sick and their two-month-old child was suffering from varioloid, and she would be unable to appear in the Jeffers trial at this time. She was one of his most material witnesses, and he could not go to trial without her. He could be ready, he thought, in a week, as she would probably be able to come by that time.

Judge Catlin said the case which was first on the calendar ought to be tried first, unless good cause could be shown for postponing it. General Hart thought he had shown good cause. He was willing to make affidavit that the Chinese case had been set as the contingent case. It was very easy for Mr. Ryan to produce letters, in order to gain a postponement. Mr. Ryan presented the imputation that he was presenting a letter without good cause, and quoted from it that a physician's certificate could be procured if time was given.

The judge remarked that the two attorneys stood on the same footing in respect to their showing, and that Mr. Hart ought not to cast such an imputation on Mr. Ryan.

He then continued both cases till this morning at 10 o'clock, and notified the witnesses and jury to be on hand.

YOUNG CAULEY CLEARED. Once Discharged He Lost No Time in Leaving Court.

Edward Cauley, the young man arrested on the charge of having robbed two women in the Clinie House during the State Fair last year, was examined in the Police Court Saturday.

The boy's mother was present, and had secured as counsel for her son Hiram Johnson. The two women who claimed to have been robbed—Mrs. Mary Smith and Miss Grant—were present. The evidence showed that they had employed and kept the boy to go upon questionable errands for them, and that he had free access to their apartment. One morning he went on a errand, together with about $20, which was taken from a handbag belonging to Mrs. Smith.

After hearing the evidence, Judge Buckley believed it sufficient to hold the boy, and he was discharged. The prosecuting witnesses were not satisfied, however, and immediately swore to a second complaint and a warrant for young Cauley's rearrest. By the time this warrant was placed in the hands of an officer the boy had received the "tip" by some means, and had vanished.

At last accounts he had not been apprehended, and there seemed to be a general feeling of sympathy for the police station for his side of the case. His mother left on the evening train for San Francisco, evidently believing the boy would evade arrest.

GRANGERS PICNIC. It Will Take Place at Graham's Grove on May 6th.

The grangers of the county are making preparations for their annual picnic, which is announced to take place on the 6th of May at Graham's grove, near the town of Elk Grove. These yearly outings are the most enjoyable affairs in the picnic line that take place within the county.

The grangers never do things by halves, and have no superiors when it comes to arranging the details of a feast in the woods; they are "right at home." Graham's grove is one of the most charming spots in the county, and is accessible by rail and good wagon roads from all directions.

The Hussar Band has been engaged to provide music for the occasion. Regular trains will leave the depot in this city at 8:30 and 10:40 a. m., and returning will arrive at 2:30 and 7:35 p. m. The grounds are but a short distance from Elk Grove, and there will be conveyances on hand to carry picnicers back and forth for a few cents each. Admission to the grounds will be free.

Bids for the picnic privileges will be received by R. E. Greer, at 104 J street, up to 10 o'clock next Saturday, the 24th, but no intoxicating liquors will be allowed to be sold.

SUPREME COURT DECISION. The Judgment of the Lower Court Affirmed in a Fresno Case.

An opinion has been rendered by Judge Garoutte of the Supreme Court, Judges Harrison, Paterson, McFarland, De Haven and Beatty concurring, affirming the order and judgment in the case of M. C. White and F. R. Thomas, respondents, and the Fresno National Bank appellant. The action was brought to recover a balance due from defendant to plaintiff for the construction of the bank building in the city of Fresno, and the plaintiffs in the assignment of the contract. The bank claimed that the work was not completed within the specified time, and for that reason it suffered damage in a loss of interest. AT THE RABBIT DRIVE.

How Colonel Lamphrey Showed Off at Franklin.

His Brief Struggle With an Overgrown Hare—And a Few Incidents On the Outside.

The rabbit drive near Franklin yesterday was largely attended, and while there was not a very great slaughter of the pests there were plenty of amusing incidents connected with the affair to keep everybody in good humor.

Quite a number of Sacramentoans went down there to show the country fellows what they knew about club-throwing and hare-slaying, but they did not particularly distinguish themselves, with the exception of Colonel William Lamphrey. The Colonel was a little soft and out of condition, owing to lack of leg exercise, but the way he went after those big mule-rabbits is said to have been a caution.

When the flock had been driven into the corner where the corral stood open to receive them, and the jacks saw the kind of trick that it was the intention to play on them, several of them started back in a determined effort to break the line of drivers. Billy was on the left of the advancing army of club-swingers, and in attempting to break the flank of the enemy met with disaster.

A big buck rabbit, that must have seen the shadow of a great many winters, came straight at the veteran railroad man with its ears laid back and blood in its eye. Billy saw him coming and squared himself. He did not intend to hit him, but to run him over with his shoulder, but between his legs, but from the size of the beast and the manner in which it carried its head he concluded that it was a butler.

So Billy turned his back to the advancing foe. If he should resort to butting he deemed it best to be prepared, and if it should try to get between his legs he would be in a good position to catch it by the tail as it passed by.

He stooped over just in time to receive the force of the charge. The tough old man was too big to get under, or Billy was too squat, for, while his intentions were honorable enough, circumstances were against it.

The collision was awful. The Colonel went down under the shock and landed on his head in a soft spot. The overgrown rabbit was less fortunate, and when picked up by one of the drivers it was found to have suffered a compound, double-comminuted fracture of the skull.

Some one suggested that it might have been a case of concussion of the brain in the case of the hare, of course, but Lamphrey—who had by this time got the mud out of his eyes and mouth—swore that a hunked critter that had no more sense than that one couldn't have any brains. He had seen hares along the Pacific Railroad for twenty years, and while none of them could be said to be intellectual developments of even an average order, still one of those El Dorado critters had run into him that was a whole colony of Franklin's long-eared, jackass-like rabbits in a lifetime.

The rabbit drive by this time lost its charm for the majority of the on-lookers, and they wandered aimlessly about until the fun was over. He grew very weary and wanted to sit down, but couldn't find anything suitably yielding to render sitting possible, owing to circumstances over which he had no control.

After the drive his friend D— got Psyche's idea of a rabbit drive, and gave them a couple of big buck rabbits to take to town. They wanted them to turn them in to the Fair Ground, but with what object in view they did not explain. They got the hares, anyhow, and put them in a bag. The bag had two hoies, one at the front and one at the rear. They had gone about half a mile toward Franklin when a shout behind them attracted their attention, and on looking about they saw the rabbit with the red cap, leaping through a field of growing grain. It had found the other hole in the bag.

The owner of the handkerchief clambered through a barbed wire fence, but lost time in so doing, and struck on the trail of the hopped-out country boy, who was crossing the field, eyed the spot on which he was standing, and with a quick flash of his eye, and with both hands, he was coming his way and well in the lead. As it neared him he jumped on the handkerchief, and he was off. The hare went down and the country lad grabbed it, took off the silk handkerchief with the name worked on one corner, and waving it aloft struck out for his ranch.

The Sacramento returned disheartened, only to find that in his absence the other hare had escaped right under Lamphrey's nose while he was enjoying the chase.

Notoriously the pair drove to town, and while they tried to look pleasant they failed to convince any of their friends that they had enjoyed the rabbit drive.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT. Manager Daly and Stage Manager Waldron Severely Injured.

Manager Daly and Mr. Waldron of the Clinie had a narrow escape from death or very serious injury yesterday afternoon. They had taken a buggy ride out on the Riverside road and were returning in company with several other teams, when a party who was in front of them suddenly slowed up just after crossing the railroad track at Tenth and I streets.

Daly's horse was going at good speed, and coming down the hill he was not prepared for such action. He pulled up short in order to avoid running over the front buggy and pulled to one side, when just as he did the other team pulled out alongside to pass him.

Caught between two fires he pulled to the other side to avoid the horse, and the wheels catching in the street car track overturned the buggy, throwing them both out and severely injuring them, although at the time neither of them realized that he was much hurt. Daly helped Waldron up and they got into the buggy and drove home.

who had fallen on his head and shoulder, found his hip and leg so badly bruised that it was only by the exercise of great pluck and endurance that he was enabled to get through his part on the stage, and in fact, he feared at times that he would have to succumb to the pain.
