Puget Sound Federal Officials Removed From Office.

CHARGED WITH ENGAGING IN CHINESE SMUGGLING.

The Department of State Will Not Interfere With the Execution of the Sentences Imposed by the Turkish Tribunal in the Case of Rioters at Cosaren and Marsovan.

Special to the Record-Union.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The official heads of Patrick H. Winston, United States Attorney; Thomas R. Brown, United States Marshal; Andrew Wasson, United States Collector at Port Townsend; C. J. Mulkey, United States Special Agent, and six special Inspectors of Customs in the Puget Sound district, all in the State of Washington, have fallen into the official hopper as the result of the reports made to Secretary Carlisle by Special Agents Wood and Lewis.

These reports are numerous and circumstantial as to details, and tell the story of one of the most extensive and successful conspiracies ever formed to smuggle Chinese and opium into the United States across the far northwestern boundary.

There has been hardly a day for the past two months that reports or telegrams have not been received at the Treasury Department from Agents Wood and Lewis, and on these reports the officials of the Treasury Department have been summarily dismissed.

The last batch of dismissals of customs inspectors was made Saturday, but Secretary Carlisle thinks the ends of justice may be defeated by making public their names. These officials, it is charged, by reports received, have been doing a wholesale business for several years in Victoria, B. C., in smuggling in Chinese by means of fraudulent certificates, and permitting opium smuggling either by commission or otherwise.

Scandals for the past twelve or fifteen years have attached more or less to these officials in the Puget Sound district, whose duty it was to guard from violation the law as to the illicit business of Chinese and opium smuggling into the United States. Politics never entered into it, but the immense profit in the business seems to have corrupted many officials.

More than two months ago Agents Wood and Lewis, new men from the East, were detailed secretly to investigate these alleged frauds, with the result as stated. Uninfluenced by local surroundings or affiliations, they went to work and unearthed what was regarded here as one of the greatest conspiracies in which Government officials were ever implicated.

Not to defeat the continuance of investigation all the prominent Government officials named were removed by the President and their successors appointed without the usual announcements being made. The purpose was to keep the public in ignorance that other implicated persons might be caught.

The new men appointed in the place of those removed were: James L. Saunders, Collector at Port Townsend; James C. Drake, United States Marshal; W. H. Brinker, United States Attorney.

Other removals are yet to come and the matter in due course of time will find its way into the courts.

APPLICANTS FOR OFFICE.

List of Those Indorsed for Coast Places Before the President.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The list of California Democrats who have been unanimously indorsed for important Pacific Coast Federal offices is now in the hands of President Cleveland's private secretary.

It is believed by those who have sounded some of Cleveland's friends on the matter that the list will be given very favorable consideration by the President.

The unanimous indorsement of the California Congressional delegation is expected to have great weight with the President, whose patience in the past has been sorely tried by the bickering of Western politicians.

Some surprise is expressed here that the delegation indorsed R. L. Whelan for United States Shipping Commissioner when William M. Gwin had been appointed to the office last Friday.

As the President is now almost overwhelmed with public business, there is some speculation as to when he will again give his attention to California affairs, but it is expected that he will fill some of the offices before his vacation.

ARMENIAN CHRISTIANS.

The Department of State Will Not Interfere in the Sentences.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The Department of State will not interfere with the execution of sentences imposed by the Turkish tribunal in the case of rioters at Cosaren and Marsovan last spring, resulting in the burning of the American College in the latter place. None of the prisoners were American citizens, and the Turkish Government made full reparation for the burning of the college.

CHENEY ASKED.

LONDON, June 20.—The Daily News telegrams have been sent to the Sultan of Turkey imploring clemency to the seventeen Armenian Christians sentenced to death for participating in the Cosaren and Marsovan riots. The paper declares the documents implicating them are known to be forgeries, and that the witnesses against them were purchased by the Government.

CHEN SHE LUM. He Has No Connection With the Chinese Legation.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—It is stated at the Chinese Legation that Mr. Chen She Lum, the Chinese gentleman who landed at San Francisco yesterday, and who is supposed to be the new Chinese Minister, is not the new Envoy.

Mr. Chen has no connection with the Imperial Government. It is said that he is the superintendent of a number of merchant clubs, and comes here as their representative to study the Geary law and its results. The legation says Chen has no connection with the legation.

Ford Theater Disaster.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Colonel F. C. Ainsworth, William E. Covert, Superintendent of the Ford's Theater building, and Francis Sasse, engineer, appeared voluntarily in the Criminal Court before Judge McComas to-day and gave bail in $10,000 each for appearance before the Grand Jury. Danit, the contractor, was not able to appear in court, but his sureties went to his house and qualified therein for the same amount. The army court of inquiry to determine the responsibility for the disaster will convene probably on Thursday.

The Atlanta Ordered Home.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—An order directing the cruiser Atlanta to return to the United States was issued to-day. The order indicates that the trouble in Nicaragua is an end; also, that Captain Higginson's delay in sailing, for which he was so severely censured, may be shown to have been justified by the condition of the ship, which is said to be bad.

Citizens' National Bank of Spokane.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The Comptroller to-day received Messrs. Newberry and Wood of the Citizens' National Bank of Spokane, Wash., who wished to arrange for the reopening of that bank. No agreement satisfactory to the Comptroller could be made. The bank will either go into voluntary liquidation or a receiver will be appointed.

Mrs. Cleveland Goes to Buzzard's Bay.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Mrs. Cleveland, Ruth and servants left for Buzzard's Bay this morning for the summer. The President did not go.

HORSES' TEETH AT VARIOUS AGES.

The Foal at Its Birth, or Soon After, Has Four Milk Teeth.

In interviewing a veterinary surgeon in regard to detecting the age of a horse, the following points were given: A horse that has reached his full growth has a full mouth of thirty-six teeth, six teeth on each side of the upper and lower jaw, and four milk teeth in each jaw, and below.

Mares have no tusks. The foal at its birth, or soon after, has four milk teeth in each jaw; at about one year two more milk teeth appear in each jaw, and these remain until he is three years old. The mouth of the yearling shows no signs of use, and the corner teeth are only snells; at two years old the teeth are strong, well developed and the corner teeth are filled up. Before the colt reaches three years old the two center teeth of each jaw fall out and are replaced by more permanent teeth; and before reaching four years old the two teeth on each side of the center teeth are replaced by permanent teeth, and before five years old the remaining corner teeth are shed and replaced by permanent teeth.

This means the permanent change of the front teeth, but the corner teeth are imperfectly developed, being shells. At six the shell is filled up and the tooth is complete. The more the difference between a five and six-year-old horse, the more the teeth are developed. As the horse grows older the teeth get shorter and blunter, and to an expert judge indicate the age. SHE NEVER TOOK ADVISE.

Disregarding the Man's Warning She Stepped Into the Slush.

He who had much occasion to be abroad on the day when the snow, rain and wind made merry with the population of this city, was a young man who stepped into the slush and snow formed an excuse of something which told nothing of the depth of the mixture. Here and there was a hummock which might be a solid footing, but probably would not. A young man essaying the crossing stopped on the way to the curb, and, deciding that the rest of the lot was impassable, turned back. As he did so he ran into an elderly woman who was close behind him.

"My pardon, ma'am," said he, "but you'd better not try it."

The lady gave her skirts an extra twitch and said to the young man, "I want you to know," she responded, "that I never needed a man's advice and I don't need it now. Let me go."

The young man jumped aside and she went on her way, but she did not get far. There was a splash, a half-smothered cry, a wild scramble, and she stood on the sidewalk. But the slush had gone down the tops of her stout walking shoes, and she looked back at her adviser, and the wind brought her remark to his ears.

"I never took a man's advice, but I wish I had that time," she said.

Running Up and Down Stairs.

Women defraud themselves of good looks and vigor by compelling themselves to stair movements after they come to years of maturity. If they were any other than healthy they could not keep so secure, but nature would break out and tempt them into running up and down stairs, dancing about the house, and those quick movements which heretofore conventional people, but are the secret of spirits and bright looks. They need to grow a healthy skin, treating it with an emollient night cream, which is applied softly and dusting with fuller's earth or talc powder, which is cooling.

While F. Hopkinson Smith was in London, he visited a wholesale grocery store with some friends and became very much interested in a young shipping clerk who stood on the sidewalk, marking brush in hand. "That's the way I began life," said the artist-artist, "and with a marking-brush on a keg of fish I did my first work in colors."

BATHS AND BATHING. Essential to Good Complexion and Healthy Skin. Absolutely Necessary to Our Physical Well-Being and a Safeguard Against Disease.

Bathing is essential to a good complexion and a healthy skin. The importance of cleanliness as a factor in the health of the community can scarcely be overrated, and yet, strange as it is, a recognized fact, surely it is strange and unworthy of our much-vaunted civilization that the immense advantage of public baths is only now, in the last days of the nineteenth century, receiving the attention that the importance of the matter demands.

Public bathing establishments are now at last springing up in every large town, and signs of progress we welcome with much approval. Our ancestors were far before us in this matter, and we may take some shame to ourselves that we have been so tardy in following the good example set us by the ancient nations of the world. All the ancient peoples of whom records exist were acquainted with the physical benefits to be derived from the application of heat and cold to the human frame through the medium of baths, medicinal and otherwise.

The increased luxury of the latter days of the Roman Empire the public baths became more and more magnificent and costly, so much so that it was said these buildings were erected rather with a view to displaying glory upon their founders than that of benefiting the public. They were built on a scale which appears extravagant in the extreme to our modern eyes, and the sum of money expended in the construction of them is a thing to be wondered at.

THE PHYSICAL EFFECTS OF BATHING. The body being moistened with the sponge, or wetted with cold water, the immediate effect is for the skin to shrink and all its tissues to contract. The blood, therefore, is thrown back on the interior organs and nervous system; these are stimulated by the process, and a more energetic action of the heart and blood vessels is the result. This reaction is the object of all kinds of bathing, and a upon the action of the skin is dependent the action of the internal organs.

And the use of the baths was by no means confined to the Romans and Greeks. Among Eastern nations they had a rank only second to that of the Moslems. In Spain their use was revived by the Moors, and thence spread to other nations. The Russians, who have among continental nations, will take the palm in the present day in this matter, for almost every village and hamlet in that country has its public bath.

It is certain that proper bathing is absolutely necessary to our physical well-being, and a safeguard against disease. The skin should be washed with soap and water, and the attention particularly directed to the consideration of this question, in the face of the visitation of cholera which has so recently been so prevalent in this country. Cleanliness is the greatest preserver of health, and as well as many other diseases, and should do well to take to heart that the most important of all the duties of life is to keep the body clean.

Now let us see what is the actual effect produced on our skin by the action of baths. From scientific men we learn that the skin is composed of several parts. The outer, or scurfy skin, is being constantly cast off from our bodies in tiny scales, but these are prevented from becoming detached by the action of the skin. The skin is constantly being renewed, and the process of its renewal is checked. The skin will then become irritated and damp and cold, from the attraction of saline particles, and will thus be a ready medium for the transmission of poisonous gases or infectious vapors. The pores being closed up, the elements of these transitory fluids will be thrown upon the system, and removed by other organs than the skin—by the lungs, kidneys and liver. This explains the necessity of daily washing and bathing.
